Orange World War II Vet Gets Early 100th Birthday Gift

U. S. Congresswoman Rosa DeLauro visits the home of World War II veteran George Posener with the news of the receipt of pension funds owed him for over thirty years. Posener is pictured with DeLauro and his caregiver Evelun M. Brown.

By Richard Weizel - Orange Town News Correspondent

While George Posener, 99, still lives modestly in the Orange home he built himself decades ago, the retired insurance company owner has given away close to $1 million in endowments to the Yale School of Medicine and numerous causes for children. Now, Posener, who insisted for decades that he was owed a small pension for vital military work he performed for the War Department as a civilian during World War II, will be able to give away even more. That's because Posener, who vowed he would fight for a military pension that was denied nearly four decades ago -- even if it took him until his 100 birthday – has finally won the battle. And just in time. True to his word, and possibly with a touch of prophesy, Posener recently got an early $34,000 birthday gift just 10 months before he becomes a Centurion in December. "I'm thrilled because this will enable me to help even more children and I

Zeoli Continues Negotiations Towards Hubbell Property Deal

Residents to Make Final Decision at Town-wide Referendum

By Laura Fantarella – Orange Town News Correspondent

Town officials now have an estimated value of the hundreds of acres of woodlands and open space they hope to purchase for town use currently owned by corporate giant Hubbell Inc. First Selectman Jim Zeoli said he cannot disclose the real estate appraisal at this time, but officials now have a "benchmark" on the Derby-Milford Road property which will be helpful in their negotiations to buy the land.

A town purchase would stave off Hubbell's original plan to build hundreds of "clustered" single family and duplex homes, including about 75 affordable housing units, on approximately 400 acres of land, some of which abuts the Merritt Parkway. Hubbell filed suit against the town after the Plan & Zoning Commission denied its request for a zone change which would have allowed the plan to move forward. Zeoli and several town officials are scheduled to meet with Hubbell representatives before a judge later this month. "I don't have any idea what this meeting is about or why we've been requested to appear," Zeoli said. "We'll know when we get there."

Hubbell dismissed "very fair," earlier offers from the town which began at about $4 million and eventually went to $6 million, Zeoli said. "We based our offers at that time on the value of other land in that immediate area and nearby land the town has already purchased. I'm not sure what their realtor will see," he said. In lieu of the latest information from an appraiser, Zeoli said he is "still very confident in previous proposals," to Hubbell.

Zeoli also pointed out that a town purchase would not include Hubbell's existing corporate offices or about 40 acres surrounding that site. "That will generate more money as well. The difference in revenue we are at with Hubbell is a snowflake in a blizzard to them," he said, pointing out that public records predict Hubbell will do $2.7 billion in business this year. "This is a blip on the radar screen to them, but it will have a major impact on the town," Zeoli said.

If purchase plans proceed, eventually residents will decide what will be best for the town in a town-wide referendum. Hubbell's corporate headquarters have been in Orange for nearly 35 years. Hubbell plans to move to Shelton later this year.

Parents Most Influential in Teen Decision Making

From proms to graduations, teens have plenty of reasons to celebrate this time of year. But no matter what the reason for celebrating, help keep the occasion safe for everyone by making sure alcohol isn't part of your teen's party plans.

Parents play an important role in helping teens make smart decisions, including choices related to alcohol. According to the 2008 GfK Roper Youth Report, the majority of youth—71 percent of 13- to 17-year-olds—say parents are the No. 1 influence on decisions about whether they drink alcohol or not.

At Dichello Distributors, Inc. we're parents too, and we share the same concerns as every other parent about these issues. That's why we distribute free copies of Family Talk About Drinking, which encourages parents to talk with their children about underage drinking. In addition, our Prevent. Don't Provide program reminds adults that supplying alcohol at teen parties is never a good idea. To help prevent alcohol sales to minors, we also provide retailers with I.D.-checking materials and training to help them serve and sell alcohol responsibly.

Thanks to law enforcement and these kinds of community-based programs, we're making progress in the fight against underage drinking.

We can all do our part this prom and graduation season to help keep celebrations safe.

Peck Place Uses Grant for Innovative New Program

By Laura Fantarella - Orange Town News Correspondent

An unconventional break from convention has first graders sitting up and paying attention in Mallory Gorry's class. The Peck Place teacher traded traditional classroom desk chairs for big blue stability balls in hopes of increasing her students' focus and decreasing squirminess in her classroom.

The balls are part of the "WittFitt" consulting company program whose mission is "to educate children and adults about the importance of proper posture, active sitting and the strengthening of muscles used in daily activities," according to the company's training manual. Gorry's class is the first in Connecticut to implement the ground-breaking new program. She got the idea when she saw a college friend's photos posted on Facebook. Her friend, who is a teacher at a Massachusetts elementary school, had photos of her own students sitting on balance balls in her classroom. "I looked at the photos and thought 'Oh my God!' - Innovative Teaching Grant!" Gorry said.

In fact, the project was ideal for the Orange school district's Innovative Teaching Grant program which provides support for projects that foster new teaching techniques, activities, and/or technologies to increase students' active engagement and learning. Gorry applied and was awarded $500 to purchase 20 new balls which arrived in the classroom in November. The program awards about $5,000 each year to such projects. The WittFitt program claims a multitude of benefits -- from improving balance, coordination, and posture, to enhancing attention and concentration and improving learning through movement and increased blood flow to the brain.

The first step in introducing the balls was a "Stability Ball Use Contract" that had to be signed by the student, parent and teacher outlining the four important rules. 'Bottom on the ball, feet on the floor, sit up straight and respect your ball chair - no bouncing, or recess behavior on your ball.' An infraction of any rule leads to the 'Ball chair time out' - one week off the ball with the teacher and two weeks with a substitute. "We've had just a few time outs and it's been one of the worst weeks in the students' lives!" Gorry said. Students were acclimated gradually, first sitting on them for a few hours at a time every few days until using them full-time in January. Students always have the option of sitting in a regular chair, but they rarely do.

In just a few short months, Gorry is happy to report the program is producing many of the promised results. "There are so many benefits. Because the leg is slanted when sitting on the ball, the body has increased blood flow which leads to better focus," Gorry said. "It forces you to engage your core and back muscles and to sit up which improves your posture and flexibility." Even the students' printing has improved because the students are holding their pencils correctly. "It's hard to write if you're slouched over your desk," she said.

She isn't the only one to see a marked improvement in attention, posture and schoolwork. "The other day when my class lined up to go to music, the music teacher said to them, 'I love your great posture," Gorry said. "I think they are all standing a little straighter." School principal Al DeCant agreed. "I've seen a significant difference in attention, focus and general behavior," he said.

Gorry also pointed out that today's kids are different than past generations. "They love technology, they are used to constant stimulation, they don't like to sit still," she said. The balls enable them to move around to balance while still paying attention. But perhaps the best benefit of all – this is fun! Gorry's students had this to say about their unique chairs. "It helps me color neater," Avery said. "I write neater," Anika chimed in. "I like bounce time!" Liam added. "It makes me stronger! Chloe said.

"The kids absolutely love it," Gorry said, summing up the experience. "They feel very special. The novelty hasn't worn off."

Register Your Team for the American Cancer Society "Relay for Life"

By Laura Fantarella – OTN Correspondant

When a young friend of the family had a reoccurrence of his cancer, Kathrine Carangelo hoped participating in the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life event would help her feel less helpless. "I wanted to do all I could to be supportive and help our friends through this trying time," Carangelo said. "I never dreamed someone so close and so young would be affected by cancer. This event seemed like a good thing to do."

The Relay for Life event has been held in the Bethany, Orange, and Woodbridge area since 1999. The American Cancer Society describes the event as an occasion "to celebrate the lives of people who have battled cancer, remember loved ones lost too soon, and fight back against the disease." Anyone can organize a team – typically honoring a friend or loved one affected by cancer. The team raises donations and then camps out in tents all day and night at a local venue, taking turns walking around a track or path. Because "cancer never sleeps," teams are asked to have at least one team member walking the track for 24 hours straight. There's plenty of fun, food and entertainment throughout the two day event, including performances by the Amity High School Drama Club and a local dance team, volleyball and Frisbee games.

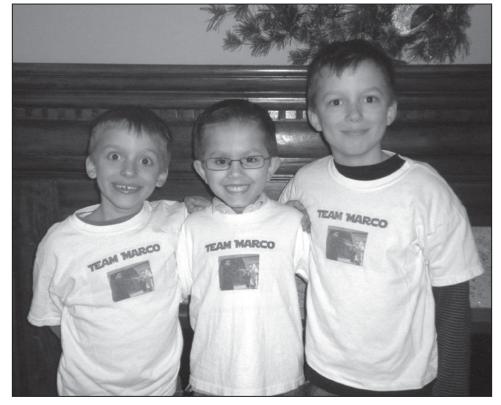

This year's Relay will be held May 21 and 22 at High Plains Community Center. Last year Carangelo organized "Team Marco" to honor Marco Bonato, 6-years old at the time, who was diagnosed with a rare eye cancer when he was two. The 13-member team, that included family and friends, raised over $9,000 in donations. One team member was Marco's kindergarten teacher, Katlyn McDonald who was a first year teacher at Mary L. Tracy School. McDonald went the "extra mile," walking about seven miles from 4 p.m. Saturday to 7 a.m. Sunday. "Marco is just the best kid. He has a constant smile on his face. He's really special. I wanted to keep walking for him. I couldn't stop," she said. "Marco was in my first kindergarten class and I will remember him for every year to come."

By all accounts, Relay for Life is a life changing event. Both Carangelo and McDonald were overwhelmed by how positive the experience was. "It really brings the community together. For one night everyone puts aside their own issues to honor others," McDonald said. Carangelo described it as "heartfelt." "It just makes you feel good about humanity," Carangelo said. Best of all, said Marco's father, Bill Bonato, Marco was thrilled his friends walked in his honor. "He was excited everyone was rallying for him," Bonato said. "He wears his 'Team Marco' tee-shirt to bed every night." Thankfully, Marco is now doing well and is a first grader at Turkey Hill School.

Mary Shaw never dreamed when she first organized a team in 2007 that cancer would later strike so close to her own home. Shaw happened to attend a PTA meeting that featured a presentation and video about Relay for Life. "I knew immediately I wanted to sign up and get involved," said Shaw, whose father had died of cancer years before. Unbelievably, just a few months later, her husband Matt was diagnosed with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma at just 39 years old. "It was the shock of our lives," she said. "My heart and soul were already in the cause, but suddenly the event took on a life of its own. We really had a focus. The Relay took place while he was going through treatment." Then, in 2009, Shaw was diagnosed with breast cancer. "The event evolved even more," she said. "The Relay for Life happened to fall into our lives in an odd way. I just hope our stories may motivate others to start their own teams."

Shaw's original team, which started with a small group and raised about $4,000, is now one of the largest teams in the event. Last year about 50 friends and family joined in, raising more than $10,000 for the cause. "This has never been about Matt and I, it's irrelevant we both got cancer. We were already emotionally wrapped up in this. We just don't want cancer to affect anyone else," she said. Luckily both Shaws are cancer-free and preparing to walk in this year's Relay.

The most moving part of the event is the "Luminaria Ceremony" at the end of the walk, when participants assemble around the field with illuminated bags called luminaria. Each luminaria, bears the name of someone who has battled cancer. Survivors and others share their stories, inspiring the family and friends who continue to fight back in their honor. "The Luminaria Ceremony is a highlight of the event and intensely emotional," Carangelo said. "There's not a dry eye in the crowd."

This year, Relay for Life committee chairpersons George Geane and Debbie Davis say they want to exceed last year's donations. "Last year our goal was $90,000 and we raised over $114,000, "Geane said. "This year our goal is $110,000."

For more information on how to register a team or make a donation, visit www.relayforlife.org and enter the Orange zip code, 06477 in the "Find an Event" box in the upper right hand corner.

Weather Dampens OHS Antique Show

The 4th weekend of February has come and gone; the traditional weekend of the Orange Historical Society Antique Show. It was with deep regret that the Board of Directors and I chose to cancel this 20 year-old show due to the possibility of inclement weather and rising show costs. The response from the dealers was one of regret since they considered our show one of the best in the area. To those of you who have helped to make this the best event, we give you our heartfelt thanks. We couldn't have done it without you.

actually work in the industry," she said. Her first jobs were on the sets of commercials, music videos and non-union films. The "big break" came in 1984 when she was hired to do make-up for an ABC television movie starring Ellen Burstyn and Paul Sorvino. Her freelance career took off as she got jobs working on the sets of movies and television series that included Babylon 5, Dr. Vegas, Better Off Ted, Dodgeball, Valentine's Day, Iron Man and more. She is currently working on the set of the CBS hit "The Mentalist," starring Simon Baker, where she makes up all guest stars on the show.

Though the job has "moments of being glamorous," mostly it is just really hard work that requires a great deal of physical stamina. Days often begin at 4:30 or 5 a.m. and can continue until well after midnight. "We may be shooting inside or outside, in the day or night – it could be really hot, really cold, maybe raining, and I am usually climbing all over the place. It is very physically demanding. I have to stay very fit and healthy," she said. Still, she would never trade her job for nine to five. "I love the variety of my work," she said. "I love the nice locations and the opportunities I've had to meet so many people." Her job has brought her to locations all over the United States as well as China, Rome and Mexico. Zanetti said she is rarely star-struck, even though the celebrities who have sat in her chair include Ben Affleck, Terri Hatcher, Heather Locklear, Angela Bassett, Gwenyth Paltrow, Allyssa Milano, Courtney Cox, Ben Stiller, Rob Lowe, Stockard Channing, George Clooney, Jerry Seinfeld, Mario Lopez, Colin Farrell, Anne Hathaway, Jennifer Garner and Isabella Rossellini, to name a few. "In general the actors I meet are usually pretty great people," she said. "I just care about whether they are polite. Now if I were to do Mick Jagger's make-up –I think then I'd be nervous!" She is even low key about her three Emmy nominations for her work on Babylon 5 and being among the glitterati on the red carpet attending the awards ceremony. By the end of her 70-hour work week Zanetti packs up and leaves her L.A. apartment and retreats to her Palm Desert home where she relaxes by taking long walks and Jacuzzi soaks, shopping and going out to dinner. One of the perks of the job is a few months hiatus from shooting when Zanetti can kick back and do some travelling, often returning to her Martin Lane home in Orange to visit family. Although she's not sure where her next job will take her, it will probably be somewhere warm and fabulous. "Who knows what's next? That is part of the fun," Zanetti said.

Geane and Davis start every day with a friendly, 6 a.m. walk on treadmills at the Amity High School weight room.

Cancer Survivors Join Forces as Committee Co-Chairs

By Laura Fantarella – Orange Town News Correspondent

Debbie Davis and George Geane were casual colleagues for many years before they realized how much they really had in common. Both work at Amity Regional High School, Davis as a health and fitness instructor and Geane as a security officer. But it wasn't until they both volunteered to work on the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life committee in 2006 that they realized they were both cancer survivors as well.

When they first met, Geane was a patrolman on the Orange Police Department. "We'd run into each other for years, he was often the police officer at many after-school events and I was often there attending one of the athletic events," Davis said. "But once we started working together on the Relay for Life committee we just developed this special bond." For the last two years, Geane and Davis have co-chaired the event together as well. When Geane was asked to assume the job, he looked at Davis and said, "I won't do it alone!' and bingo – here we are."

Geane, now 59, was just 34 when he had a cancerous tumor removed from his neck. Davis was diagnosed with breast cancer 12 years ago and after undergoing treatment, has been cancer-free since. Both took the news in stride. "I didn't even tell my wife before the surgery that the tumor was cancerous," Geane said. "I didn't want to worry my family." He was fortunate to not have to undergo any further treatment. Davis was matter-of-fact as well. "If this is the deck I was dealt, so be it," she said of learning her diagnosis. But while they may have stiff upper lips when it comes to their own illnesses, the two get emotional when talking about the Relay for Life event and others who are fighting a battle with cancer. "When we hold the luminaria ceremony after the relay on Saturday night, there is not a dry eye in the house," Geane said. "It's sad but joyous. When you see all those candles lighting up the night it is really something to see." Davis agreed. "It's very moving to see someone walking the track at 3 a.m. in the morning," she said.

Now the two are inseparable, meeting at 6 a.m. each morning to work out on side by side treadmills in the high school's weight room; trading good natured barbs throughout the work day and organizing this year's Relay for Life. "I think we complement each other. He's more pragmatic and professional, I'm more laid back. We work well together." But probably best of all, Davis said with a twinkle in her eye, "We both have a good sense of humor."

Members of the LHC take turns speaking to students about their eyewitness accounts of history.

Youth Services Living History Club

The Youth Services Living History Club recently went to Amity High School to address combined History classes during two of their sessions. The Club spoke on the subjects of the Great Depression and World War 2 which they had personally experienced. The event was arranged by Wendy Carrafiello, a History teacher at the school. The sessions took place in the Student Media Center. The Club members started the program with a brief description of their background, first-hand experiences within the two events, and a variety of anecdotes in regard to how friends, family, and the general public were affected by these historical events. Also, there was an open forum for students who wanted to ask questions. Students had recently been studying the Great Depression and World War 2 and now had the opportunity to gain a different perspective and insight on the events directly from individuals who actually lived through them. Members from the Living History Club attending the sessions were William Dietz, Rosemary Courtney, and Dr. Don Tasso. The Club also has as members Lea Turner, Mary Cardea, and Marty Stofik. The session was also attended by Pat Pepe, an invited guest from the school. Youth Services wishes to express it's sincere appreciation to Dr. Charles Britton and Wendy Carrafiello for their encouragement and speaking opportunity of the program for the Amity students. The Living History Club is a first-hand, eyewitness learning Club that encourages senior citizens to share their personal experiences with Middle and High School students who have a keen interest in Social Studies. Examples of subjects include the Great Depression, World War 2, what home life was like half century ago, economic times, entertainment, the advent of television and computers, world events, political elections, songs of the day, latest fashions. The Club will be able to visit classes during or after school hours and have an informal exchange that would be educational and fun.

Choosing a Retirement Plan That Works For You, Your Business and Your Employees

By Richard J. Zorena, CFP®

ost of us look forward to enjoying the freedom of a financially secure retirement. Of course, how well you live tomorrow is largely determined by how well you plan – and save – today. It used to be that workers could rely on Social Security payments as a major source of retirement income. However, that is no longer the case as Social Security payments simply do not go as far as they used to, and people expect to maintain higher income streams during longer periods of retirement.

The secret to a financially successful retirement can be summed up in one word – planning. Essentially, that means planning early, planning sensibly and planning knowledgeably. There are a number of effective ways for business owners, professionals and their employees to save for the future – with many retirement plan alternatives from which to choose.

A retirement plan can offer important advantages to business owners:

- Tax-deductible contributions to the plan that may reduce your current tax bill
- A valuable recruiting tool which may be positioned as part of the total benefits package offered by your business, and which can in turn help in retaining valued employees. Whether you are considering adopting a retirement plan for the first time or evaluating an existing one, it's important that you understand your options.

What Are Your Options?

In general, there are two types of retirement plans - defined benefit plans and defined contribution plans.

With a defined benefit plan, each participant's retirement benefit is determined by the formula set forth in the plan. Employer contributions vary from year to year and must meet certain funding requirements, and the plan sponsor assumes the investment risk. This type of plan may be most appropriate for businesses with predictable earnings that want their older employees (with less time to accumulate retirement assets) or longer-service employees to benefit the most.

Defined contribution plans provide an individual account for each participant into which employer and/or employee contributions are made. The benefits that will eventually be paid to participants are based solely on the amount of those contributions and investment performance of the account. The plan may be structured so that each plan participant assumes the investment risk of his/her own account. Some of the plans available include simplified employee pension plans ("SEP-IRAs"), profit sharing plans, 401(k) plans, and savings incentive match plans for employees ("SIMPLE IRAs"). Let's take a look at each of these plans.

A SEP-IRA is for business owners seeking a simple, lower-cost employer-funded retirement plan that is easy to establish and maintain. With the SEP-IRA, each eligible employee sets up an individual retirement account ("IRA") into which the employer makes contributions. This plan may be especially suitable for new businesses or companies with cyclical profit histories since the employer can vary the amount to be contributed from year-to-year - or even choose not to contribute at all in less profitable years. Also, there is no minimum or maximum number of eligible employees necessary to establish the plan; however, eligible seasonal and part-time employees must be included.

A profit sharing plan is for business owners seeking an employer-funded retirement plan with more flexibility in plan design than is available in a SEP-IRA. Although both plans can be structured to allow contributions to vary each year, a profit sharing plan can have additional features such as a vesting schedule (to reward longer-term employees) and a loan program.

For employers who want their employees to share in some or all of the cost of funding the retirement plan, a 401(k) plan may be a viable choice. A 401(k) plan is a form of profit sharing plan that allows employees to contribute pre-tax dollars through a salary reduction agreement. In addition, the employer may – but is not required to – make matching and/or discretionary contributions for which the employer may be able to take a tax deduction. Before adopting a 401(k) plan, the employer should first consider the additional administrative requirements and costs that may be incurred with this type of plan.

A SIMPLE IRA is for businesses that have 100 or fewer employees and do not currently contribute to a retirement plan. It enables a business owner to establish a 401(k)-type savings plan without all of the typical costs and complexities associated with a traditional 401(k) plan. Employees can elect to make salary deferral contributions, subject to lower annual contribution limits than a 401(k) plan. In addition, the employer is required to make contributions each vear under one of two formulas.

"The Turkey Hill School Drama Club is a dream come true for me," says Colleen Murray, principal of THS. "With the rigor and high accountability in education these days, it is more important than ever to offer children multiple opportunities to integrate the arts. This is no easy task and I am grateful for the many parent volunteers who are making this possible."

Seventy-five students are participating in the production from grades one through sixth grade. Another 15 students are behind the scenes working on the props and stage crew. "The kids are doing so much to make this a great show including learning their lines, painting, singing and learning dances," says Deborah Sansone, Drama Club chairperson and producer. "The best part is that they are using their imaginations and having fun!"

The show is directed by all parent volunteers including; Rebekah Melville, Donna Ricciardi, Tracey Papelo, Sheri Morrison, Debra Tashlein, Jackie Hutchison, Alicia Dwyer, Jen Hayes, Monika Gagnon, Kathy Gulia, Phyllis Kraut, Lauri Dougherty and Ginger Sherrick. Twisted Vine Restaurant

I really love when one of our readers sends me an e-mail about an enjoyable restaurant experience. I am sharing what I received from Gary Spadoni, Orange resident:

"Susan, I enjoy reading your column in the Orange Town News and thought you should know about a gem of a restaurant in Derby called "The Twisted Vine". It is in an old 1892 bank building (vaults intact), very homey with oak and stained glass and old electrified gas fixtures. We went there Saturday night and they started out by bringing a basket of warm homemade garlie toget. We ordered both of the

made garlic toast. We ordered both of the special homemade soups, Mussel (with loads of mussels) and Italian wedding soup (again loaded with meatballs, spinach, etc.) which were superb. Since a salad add-on was only $2, we all ordered salads and were pleasantly surprised to see that not only were the salads very large, they consisted of different types of greens, not plain iceberg, and also olives, tomatoes, cucumbers, etc. The house Italian was delicious! We then ordered the meals, which were ample and delicious (I had rare seared tuna on a bed of rice, my wife had a chicken dish with tons of fresh veggies, and our friends had tilapia, also delicious). After dinner we went downstairs into the basement where they have an intimate lounge with a bar and live music that actually appealed to our age group (50 +). The place was packed so we sat at the bar and had excellent drinks. The entire experience, great food, friendly staff, and reasonable prices made it one of the best dining experiences we've had in a long time. Try it out!"

Thank you Gary for your suggestion and I did try it out on a Sunday for an early evening dinner. My experience was similar to Gary's and I would certainly recommend "The Twisted Vine" for lunch, dinner or just cocktails. My favorite appetizer was the "Seven Layer Portabella" w/fresh mozzarella, roasted peppers, squash, eggplant, Provolone, tomatoes w/sun dried tomato aioli & balsamic reduction drizzle-very unique & delicious. Great ambiance, service, large portions, along with reasonable prices. The Twisted Vine also offers some very private tables for two. Perfect for that special wedding proposal, anniversary or just a couple looking for a cozy and romantic evening.

This location was formerly Tartaglia's and the Old Birmingham Restaurant. The Twisted Vine opened in July 2005 and offers a comfortable yet elegant atmosphere. As Gary mentioned above, this historic landmark, built in 1892 was originally the Old Birmingham Bank and still maintains the very impressive original vault from the bank in the main dining room. The downstairs "Birmingham Cellars" cocktail lounge offers the full dinner menu & cocktails. Happy Hour Wednesday-Friday. Live entertainment Thursday-Saturday beginning at 8:00pm. Catering available for special events both on & off premises. Hours: Lunch Tuesday-Friday 11:30am-2:00pm – Dinner Tuesday-Thursday – 5:00pm-9:00pm Friday & Saturday 5:00pm-10:00pm – Sunday 4:00pm-8:00pm – Dinner in lounge on Friday & Saturday until 10:00pm. Visit their web site for complete menus & special events: www. twistedvinerestaurant.com. Reservations recommended – All major credit cards – Handicapped accessible-Take-out on all menu items.

Final notes: Make a visit to this historic and charming restaurant in Derby. It has been rumored that some "friendly ghosts" reside in the building. I will let the staff & regular customers of the "Twisted Vine" be the judge of that! Remember to support our local family owned businesses. From Your State Representative By Themis Klarides

Klarides Responds to Governor's Budget

State Representative Themis Klarides of Woodbridge, Orange and Derby expressed deep concern about the levels of taxation and increased spending in Governor Dannel Malloy's proposed budget. The proposed budget fails to curb state spending. The governor's proposal spends $900 million more over the next two years, according to Malloy's own budget director Ben Barnes.

The governor spoke of "shared sacrifice" but Klarides was hard pressed to find the state government's share in the acclaimed sacrifices. "For months we've heard this budget would be based on cuts and sacrifices. The people of Connecticut and our small businesses have already sacrificed. We're getting hit on all fronts with tax increases, but who among us are getting pay raises? With unemployment over 9 percent, tax increases are not the right answer to creating jobs. It's our small businesses who will be the ones that suffer most," said Klarides.

The proposed budget increases the size of the state budget from $19.3 billion this fiscal year to $19.7 billion and then onto $20.2 billion the following year. The budget also includes billions in new taxes. "A $3 billion tax hike over the next two years paired with a budget increase will be a hard pill for residents in my area to swallow. If you include the hospital taxes, we're looking at $4 billion in taxes. Taxes were supposed to be a last resort. Instead we see increased taxes and increased spending," Klarides said.

She and fellow Republican leaders said tax hikes on hair cuts, alcohol sales, clothing and gas would hit Connecticut's middle class the hardest, claiming the increased costs would only hurt the small businesses that provide them.

Klarides praised Governor Malloy on several aspects of the proposal. "Union contracts currently go into effect without the approval of the legislature. I was glad to hear the governor included measures to increase accountability on these contracts and is committing to pushing for $1 billion in union concessions. He also stuck to his promise not to cut education aid to Connecticut municipalities," said Klarides.

She applauded the governor for keeping his commitment not to use borrowing to fill deficit and supports the switch to Generally Accepted Accounting Principles. Klarides expressed her optimism in these areas, but fears he missed what should have been a top priority of curbing the state government's addiction to spending.

Change Proposed to Affordable Housing Statute

Under current state law, municipalities in the state of Connecticut sit on an uneven playing field in negotiations with developers seeking to build on undeveloped land commonly held as open space. Pending legislation proposed by state Senator Gayle Slossberg (D-Milford), however, would change state law to reform the affordable housing appeals process to give towns greater opportunity to preserve pristine land within their borders. "We have two equally important policy goals in our state: providing affordable housing opportunities and preserving open space and land of environmental significance," said Senator Slossberg. "Right now, the statutes favor development. However, that isn't necessarily in the best interest of the municipality and I believe we should be allowing for greater local control in situations where these two policy goals collide."

Under Senator Slossberg's proposal, applications for affordable housing developments would be referred to local conservation commissions which would then determine the environmental significance of a tract of land. If a parcel is designated and certified as potential open space, appeals procedures would no longer apply—giving towns greater opportunity to negotiate with developers on equal footing. "While pursuing the laudable goal of encouraging development of affordable housing options, I believe our procedure has put the system out of balance," Senator Slossberg said. "The system overrides, in part, the state goal and our local interest in preserving what little open space we have left. I believe this proposal would be a great stride toward leveling the playing field and restoring that balance."

The proposals—codified as Senate Bill 302 and House Bill 5781—currently await action from the Housing Committee.

The 2011 regular legislative session adjourns on June 8. Senator Gayle Slossberg represents Milford, Orange and a portion of West Haven in the Connecticut State Senate. She serves as co-chair of the Government Administration & Elections Committee and vice chair of the Public Health Committee and the Select Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

A very Happy Valentine's Day at Great Beginnings Preschool in Milford. The children at the preschool made 150 Valentine's for the Valentine's Day Dance at the Milford Senior Center with candy and balloons.

The students in grade two at Turkey Hill School were visited by the Goodwives of the Orange Historical Society. It is the second history class presented by Mrs. Reinhard, Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. Vadney. This was made possible through a grant from the Jamie A. Hulley Arts Foundation. The students made taper candles. First, they held a small branch with an attached string and dipped the string into hot wax. Then, they dipped the candle into cold water and repeated this procedure many times, until a candle was formed. The children learned that people living in the 1700's needed to make candles every day for light and that it was a necessity, not a hobby. The students are looking forward to the next visit!

Q: I just watched an excellent movie called "Shooter" with Mark Wahlberg. There also is a Donnie Wahlberg, I think, on "Blue Bloods." Are they related? Also, was one of them in the Backstreet Boys? -- Nancy G., Punta Gorda, Fla.

A: Mark and Donnie Wahlberg are brothers. The elder Wahlberg, Donnie (41), got his start in New Kids on the Block back in 1984; however, the group didn't really break out until 1988's "Hangin' Tough," NKOTB's second album. The group broke up in 1995. Donnie then embarked on an acting career, co-starring in "Ransom," "The Sixth Sense," "Band of Brothers" and "Boomtown." While he hasn't given up his acting career, he and the rest of the New Kids have reunited, and this summer they are touring with, ironically, the Backstreet Boys.

In the late '80s/early '90s, brother Mark, 39, had some success with Marky Mark and the Funky Bunch, whose single "Good Vibrations" became a No. 1 hit in 1991. Mark segued into film after doing numerous ad campaigns for Calvin Klein, costarring in "The Basketball Diaries," "Boogie Nights," "The Perfect Storm" and "The Departed" (for which he was nominated for a Best Supporting Actor Academy Award), among many others.

Q: Is TNT going to make another movie in "The Librarian" series? -- Bridget C., via e-mail

A: While "Librarian" star Noah Wyle has stated that there are no immediate plans for another movie, he is definitely on board when they decide to make the next one. For now he is busy with his new TNT show (debuting June 10) "Falling Skies," while "Librarian" executive producer, Dean Devlin, is busy with TNT's "Leverage." However, this might bode well for "The Librarian" series, as Noah said in an interview last summer: "I miss ('The Librarian') so much. In fact, one of the big reasons I wanted to do 'Falling Skies' for TNT is that Dean's got his show ('Leverage'), I've got my show, and we can apply [pressure] to TNT to make some more 'Librarian' movies."

Q: Now that Arnold Schwarzenegger is no longer the "Gubernator" of California, will he return to movies? - Alan H., Akron, Ohio

A: Arnold took to his Twitter account recently to let the world know he's ready to act again: "Exciting news. My friends at (agency) CAA have been asking me for seven years when they can take offers seriously. Gave them the green light today."

Q: Has "Chase" been taken off the air? We really enjoy the show and miss it! -- Karin R., via e-mail

A: As of this writing, "Chase" has not OFFICIALLY been canceled; however, it has been pulled off NBC's schedule with no plans to air the remaining episodes. So, yes, the series is pretty much dead in the water. "Chase" was replaced by the game show "Minute to Win It," which scored 3.2 million more viewers than "Chase."

Cruises for Food and Wine Enthusiasts

Theme cruises provide the opportunity for a group of people to indulge in a particular hobby or interest. There are themed cruises for activities such as wine tasting, quilting, gardening, motorcycling and dancing, musical tribute cruises for groups like the Beatles, Elvis and the Rat Pack and fund-raising cruises to help a favorite charitable organization (I am currently organizing a fundraising cruise for SOaR-INg, Saving Orange Residents in Need). Programs might include guest speakers, classes, special performances and theme related shore excursions. One of the most popular themes is cooking and Celebrity Cruises and their "Savor Your Destination" program gives food and

Co owners and siblings George Chatzopoulos and Dina Bajko will celebrate Chips' 45th anniversary by offering customers a short stack of their award winning buttermilk pancakes for only 45 cents, just like in 1966.

Chip's Celebrates 45 Years - 1960's Style

By Laura Fantarella – Orange Town News Correspondant

A landmark Orange restaurant will go retro on Monday, March 7th in celebration of its 45th anniversary. Chip's Restaurant will party in true 1960's style – with music from the era, servers dressed in sixties attire, and best of all, offering a short-stack of its famous buttermilk pancakes throughout breakfast for 45 cents, just like when it first opened in 1966.

Co-owners and siblings George Chatzopoulos and Dina Bajko, bought the restaurant eight years ago from original owner Chip Marks. It's a true family business with Dad Dennis helping out and Mom Angelica working in the kitchen. When it first opened in 1966 it was a Perkin's Pancake House franchise which Marks' later renamed Chip's. When Chatzopoulos and Bajko took over they made a smooth transition with few changes to the menu and dining room. Most important, they retained the Chips' secret buttermilk pancake recipe that has reaped rewards and accolades from customers and local media alike, even winning "Best Pancakes" in Connecticut Magazine's popularity contest in 2009 and 2010. "Chip's always had good food and a good reputation, we never wanted to take anything away," Chatzopoulos said. Instead he and Bajko gradually added new items to the menu and new flavors like pumpkin and cranberry orange to the pancake selection. They have daily specials and even offer a three course dinner and beverage for $12.95 each day. Several years ago they redecorated the dining room and built an addition to hold 25 more seats. Chatzopoulos and Bajko say they love being part of the Orange community. "We have so many regular customers and the townspeople have always been so supportive of us. I love seeing the generations of people who've been coming here for years," she said. She particularly enjoys when people who have moved away stop in and tell her, "I used to work here when I was a kid!" They also are generous in supporting many town fundraisers and events. "We do what we can to give back to the community," Chatzopoulos said.

HISTORY CORNER

With Ginny Reinhard

Who Was Mary Rebecca Woodruff?

For those Orange residents who were fortunate to have bought the 1949 History of Orange have no doubt read it from time to time and stored it away or as in some cases, donated it to the various library collections. It is 177 pages of facts, figures, stories, events and above all people of the past that established the Town of Orange in 1700.

It was not then known as Orange but Bryan's Farms, with the first purchase made by Richard Bryan Jr., from the Paugussett Sachem, Ansantawae. The availability of this information and the history of Orange are due to the diligence and research skills of Mary R. Woodruff, born in 1876 to a well-known family. The daughter of Stiles D. Woodruff, founder of the S.D. Woodruff & Sons Seed Company had 3 brothers, Frank, Watson and Robert with the family holding prominence in both Milford and North Milford (Orange), not only as a seed company but also as owners of the Orange Water Company.

Yes, Orange had its own water company established in 1911 and sold to the New Haven Water Company in 1937. Not only was Mary a director of the fledgling company, she was also the treasurer! The source of supply came from a reservoir on Grassy Hill and as the subscriber the list grew, this supply was increased by a pipeline from a reservoir of the New Haven Water Company. When the Orange School opened in 1909, a pipe was extended to the school as well as the Green and fire hydrants were installed in the center of town. At the height of its business, there were over 75 subscribers.

Mary was a graduate of The Academy, an 1878 building on the Green erected for a high school and public purposes and, as near as we can tell from extensive research, she attended Wesleyan Academy in Massachusetts, going on to Oberlin College in 1897. Her major was arts & sciences but it appears that she stayed for her freshman year only. The school in Ohio supported missionary programs and social programs and her attendance at the Orange Congregational Church as secretary of the annual meetings and as a member of the missionary committee were only a couple of the missionary positions she held throughout her life; an obvious connection to the time she spent at Oberlin. A tall, stately woman in later years, Mary received the respect of all who knew her and as she became more and more prominent in the Town of Orange, she was approached, at a town meeting in 1946 as the unanimous choice to compile the history of the Town of Orange. At this request, Mary conducted countless interviews and searched histories, manuscripts, photographs and family papers to present the history from the colonization of the Milford to attend a 4H meeting to teach the little girls how to sew while always sewing fancy dresses for her family. In 1935, when Connecticut was celebrating its 300 year anniversary, Mary can be seen, standing in front of the Congregational Church wearing a period dress, cape and hat of the era and holding, for authenticity, a foot warmer. Mary knew just what to do.

As a child, she was not considered to be very healthy, rather frail at times but her graduation day picture, at the Academy, shows a determination that obviously lasted until her death in 1973 at age 96 having outlived her 3 brothers. In fact, rumor has it that her brothers were somewhat daunted by her determination and forthright attitude toward her many obligations and life itself.

Never marrying, Mary Rebecca spent her life living with family members in her home in Orange, New Haven and, at times, in Florida as the Woodruff family stayed nearby giving the family the closeness that is all but a memory for many families today, as jobs take them to the far reaches of our country and in some cases abroad. Given what we have been able to discover about the author of the History of Orange, the choice of her as its compiler was indeed a good one.

The Orange Historical Society has been given a grant by the Orange Foundation through the O'Sullivan Family Fund to reprint this history book and it will be available this spring at the Town Hall, The Academy and the Stone-Otis House.

As close as she was to her love of history, her family was of greater importance as interviews with her great nieces tell of her love of children, her generosity with her time and just sharing with family whenever possible. Receiving 15 pounds of fabric samples, Mary whipped up 50 aprons to sell at a church bazaar and then asked for more fabric. It was not uncommon for her

With a focus on being fashion savvy and shopping smart, Plato's Closet[®] recently opened to buy clothing in Orange from the community's residents in anticipation of their grand opening.

Located at 575 Boston Post Road in Orange, Plato's Closet is part of a unique nationwide recycling retail store chain that specializes in clothes for teens and twenty-somethings.

always knew I was right, even when they denied me the pension all those years ago," Posener said. Not only did he win his fight for a military pension, but Posener, with the help of Congresswoman Rosa DeLauro and her staff, discovered he was also due a civilian pension for work he did during the war – amounting to $34,000 – going back several decades.

It turns out that as an ordinance inspector redesigning weapons, inspecting ballistic tests and transporting arms in New Haven during the war, Posener was due a lot more money than even he thought, De-Lauro said. Her staff's research proved that he qualified for a civilian pension for the work he did during the war and an ongoing monthly military pension as well. DeLauro delivered the $34,000 check to Posener personally at his home last week, indicating to the media throng at the event, that he contacted her office recently inquiring yet again about a veterans' benefit he always believed was owed to him. Posener had tried numerous times to collect the pension over the years, only to be told over and over he wasn't eligible for it. "George was slated to be drafted into service during World War II, but due to his engineering skills was retained by the War Department as a civilian worker. He worked (in New Haven) as an ordinance inspector, redesigning weapons, inspecting ballistic tests and transporting arms. He also helped convert a Thompson submachine gun into a better weapon through the use of a fixed firing pin," DeLauro said.

Posener, who will turn 100 on Christmas Day, attended the Yale School of Ballistics. His "beloved wife" Leah died in 1987 after more than 40 years of marriage, but Posener has continued his work as a "generous philanthropist," say those who know him best. "He is a wonderful man, he lives to help others, even now as he approaches his 100th birthday," said his full-time caretaker, Evelyn Brown, who explained that Posener and his late wife devoted their lives to helping young people after experiencing two still-born births during the 1940's.

"He's always talking about all the children he wants to help, so he was very excited to have gotten this pension money – not for himself – but for the help it will provide others," Brown said. Brown, who has been Posener's caretaker for more than three years, described him as a "simple, but wise man," who has given $1 million to Yale School of Medicine and contributed to the Smilow Cancer Center, and other Yale facilities including the Sterling Memorial Library, Harkness Hall, and the Payne Whitney Gym. He has also established several funds at his synagogue, the Congregation Beth El–Keser Israel (BEKI) on Harrison Street in Westville. Brown described how Posener said he was once being treated at Yale New Haven Hospital, when a young doctor came into his room and told Posener that if it hadn't been for his generosity to an endowment, he couldn't have afforded medical school. "I'm just looking to improve what God has given to me," Posener said. "He truly is a remarkable man." DeLauro said. "He's been very generous."

Brown showed DeLauro and the media who attended the check presentation a room where several violins were laid out on a bed. "He's giving them away to children who want to learn to play but can't afford to buy an instrument," Brown said. "That tells you all you need to know about him."

REALTH AND FITNESS Got Pain?

by Mary Schwartz, CPT

I recently attended the 2011 IDEA Personal Trainer Institute conference that was held in Alexandria, Virginia. It was a great opportunity for me to learn from the best trainers in the industry. I took many different classes, including program design, kid's fitness, semi-private training and corrective exercise. I came away from the conference humbled. I was reminded that although I have been in this business for nearly a decade that exercise science and program design is always evolving and changing.

Attending this conference made me reflect on the way I currently train my clients and to think about how I can utilize my new knowledge and skills to help my clients achieve better results. I learned how to properly design a program that incorporates soft tissue work, corrective exercises, core training, strength training and metabolic work. I learned the importance of not only giving my clients what they want, but also giving them what they need.

One common theme that was reiterated over and over again was the issue of chronic pain. Chronic pain is defined as pain that extends beyond the expected period of healing. I learned that most people, regardless of whether they are active or not, are currently experiencing chronic muscle or joint pain that limits their mobility. I learned that most joint pain is the result of dehydrated connective tissue and nervous system imbalances and how addressing the neurofascial system can help reduce or eliminate the pain.

Regardless of whether your chronic pain is the result of dehydrated connective tissue and nervous system imbalances, an acute trauma, an overuse injury or improper body mechanics, it must be addressed before continuing with your current exercise program. The "No Pain, No Gain" philosophy is no longer accepted. Pain is the body's way of letting you know that something is wrong. If you experience any pain while working out, you should take a step back and re-evaluate the movement. Are you performing the exercise correctly? Is the weight you are using appropriate for your fitness level? Are you injured?

If you are unable to identify the cause of the pain, try modifying the exercise by reducing the weight you are lifting or by using only your body weight to perform the exercise. Pay close attention to your form and see if that alleviates the pain. If that doesn't work, try reducing the range of motion of the exercise. If you still feel pain after making the proper modifications, completely eliminate the exercise and seek professional help. Do not perform the exercise again until you can perform it without pain. The personal training industry has changed dramatically over the last decade. Today, we are more focused on health and wellness than ever before. Clients not only want to look great on the outside, but also want to feel great on the inside. They want to grow old gracefully and are seeking out ways to remain healthy and active as they grow older. So, if you are experiencing chronic pain, don't ignore it! It is possible to reduce or eliminate your pain and go on to lead an active pain-free life.

Orange Lions To Make Community Grants

The Orange Lions Club is pleased to announce that it will provide a limited number of mini-grants to eligible community organizations and/or individuals in 2011. The program is intended to provide funds to worthy causes and activities in the town of Orange that might not otherwise be funded, announced Orange Lions Club President Marianne Miller. She explained, "While our Lions Club continues to provide funds to Lions blindness prevention programs, aid for the blind, and eye research, which are long-time Lions Club priorities, we feel strongly that it is important to allocate funds to local projects as well." Miller emphasized that this funding is in addition to two $1,000 college scholarships which the Orange Lions Club has awarded to Amity High School graduates from Orange for many years, in conjunction with the Orange Scholarship Fund. In addition, the Orange Lions continue to provide such community activities as the annual Community Thanksgiving Dinner, Easter Egg Hunt, and Seniors' Pizza Party. The Orange Lions also collect used eyeglasses for restoration and distribution to needy people all over the world. Drop boxes for used eyeglasses are located in the Case Memorial Library and the High Plains Community Center lobby. The Orange Lions also conduct eve screenings for glaucoma and other eve diseases, which has been done at the Orange Senior Health Fair in recent years. The Orange Lions also co-sponsor, in conjunction with the Milford Lions Club, a Leos youth group at the Foundation High School for special needs youths.

Miller has appointed Mark DeFeo of Orange to chair the community minigrants program this year. DeFeo stated that blank applications for the community mini-grants program are now available at the High Plains Community Center in the Community Services Department, at the Peoples United Bank branch on Orange Center Road, and also at the Case Memorial Library. He stated, "In addition to our ongoing commitment to fund anti-blindness programs and provide aid to those with sight problems, the Orange Lions feel that it is crucial to continue to use some of our fund-raising resources for local community-based projects and activities. We have an outstanding review committee which will enable us to make fair and appropriate decisions regarding all allocations." Completed applications are due to be submitted to the Orange Lions no later than April 15, 2011. All Orange non-profit clubs and related non-profit organizations, individual Orange residents, and Orange government entities are eligible to apply. The recipients of Orange Lions mini-grants will be announced in early May after the selection committee completes its review of all timely applications.

He also recently competed at the North American Grappling (NAGA) New England Championship and won first place in both the Gi (in which the grapplers wear uniforms and No-Gi (no uniforms) divisions in his age group. In last year's NAGA World Championship, he placed first in the Gi competition. The differ-

Holy Infant Orangemen Come In 2nd Place

The Holy Infant Orangemen 5th/6th Grade Team got beat by St Theresa's 6th grade team in the championship game of the St Theresa Invitational basketball tournament by a score of 40-22. The Orangemen, who trailed at halftime 27-8, played a tremendous second-half, by packing in a tight 1-2-2 zone defense, forcing St Theresa to take outside shots. The Orangemen made a run outscoring the eventual champions 14-13 in the second half. Michael McGurrin led the Orangemen with 14 points. MJ Dziczkowski and Marc Chodos also scored for the Orangemen. In the semi-final game, the Orangemen avenged an earlier season defeat by besting the St Theresa 5th grade team by a score of 32-19. Patrick Winkel led the Orangemen with 10 points, while McGurrin and Gerald Singleton chipped in with 6 apiece.

Wine from a Box?

I have had several questions about box wines and I have had some that are very good. The biggest enemy of wine is air. If you open a bottle of wine and have a glass of red wine especially, then stick the cork in and have a glass the next night you will most likely notice the wine is not the same as you had enjoyed the night before. Some oxidation has taken place. Repeat the procedure and have a glass the next night and you will notice the wine has degenerated considerably. It is now oxidized. The color is compromised and the taste is not good and the aroma indicates there is something wrong. There are a couple of ways to go with this problem. You can drink white wine that you chill. Being in the fridge stabilizes white wine and the oxidation process is not nearly as profound. The wine retains its stability for about two weeks and is drinkable for almost a month. There are a couple of ways to solve this problem with red wines as well.

This is a Vacu Vin set. What the procedure entails is to poor a glass of wine and then insert a rubber cork into the wine bottle and then pump out the air with the pumping device in the picture. The wine is not affected by the exposure to air and no oxidation can take place. The cost is about $30.00 for the set and it is well worth it. Additional rubber corks can be purchased if you open a couple of reds. The Vacu Vin procedure is usually good for a week or ten days and sometimes much longer. It is easy and works well. By the way, most bars do not know how to handle wines. They open reds and shove the cork in and sell a glass at a time. They always say that they run through the wine very quickly and they do not need to vac the wines. Do not believe them. I have had wines that are hopelessly oxidized that had to be there for a week or more. Ask them to open one up for you or have a beer. Most restaurants and bars have no idea how to deal with wines. They all know how to charge for wines, however.

Another possibility is to try a red wine in a box. There is a plastic bag that houses the wine that collapses around the wine as you pour off a glass. It does not allow the air to get to the wine to become exposed to the air and prevents oxidation of the wine. Back in the middle 1960s when the collapsible bag was invented, fair to poor wines were placed into the bags. However, there are currently some very good to fine wines available in a box. One of my favorites is "Black Box" wines. The Cab and Merlot are very, very good and the other red varietals are very good as well. At $22.00 a box for the equivalent of four 750 bottles of wine, that is a great bargain. Try some black box reds, you will be glad you did!

Black Box wine

My American Wine Society Chapter recently had a great wine dinner at a new restaurant in New Haven called The Old School Saloon and Bistro. It is located at 418 State Street. We judged two white wines. One was a New Zealand Sauvignon Blanc from the Marlbogh region called Monkey Bay. Big fruit and nice finish are the characteristics of this wine. At $14 it is a great buy. The wine we placed with it is a Chillian Savibnon Blanc that sells for $4.99 a bottle. It is called Francesca and is a great buy. The monkey Bay scored higher, but only by one half a point! Be Alert to Internet Scams During Tax Season

By Roberta L. Nestor

"Experience is the name everyone gives to their mistakes." — Oscar Wilde

Experience can be a good thing, but not when it comes to fraud. One mistake you don't want to make is to fall victim to an Internet scam, as it could lead to the loss of money or even your identity. Cyber crimes are a widespread threat these days, but tax season presents some specific attempts to be wary of.

As surely as you are working hard to file your paperwork, Internet scam artists are working hard to defraud you by posing as the IRS. You should always be cautious about opening unsolicited e-mails, but it's easy to overlook a scam at a time when you are also receiving legitimate messages about your taxes.

Common Internet Tax Scams

To help you discern the "real" e-mails from the phony, here are three common scams to watch for:

Underreported income. Claiming to originate with the IRS, these fraudulent e-mails allege that you have underreported income and that you can find out how much you owe by opening an attachment. But beware: doing this downloads a virus.

A virus attacks your computer and can attach itself to other programs on your system. Many e-mail viruses replicate themselves when you open the viral attachment or read the e-mail and then send themselves to your contacts, who think the message is from you. Viruses can cripple your computer; you don't want to send them along to your friends and coworkers.

Refund. These communications promise quick and easy tax refunds—in exchange for your personal information and for details about your financial institution. It's obvious that this type of information could allow a wouldbe criminal to pose as you and access your personal finances. If your social security number gets into the hands of the wrong person, that person can do serious damage to your credit, which can take years—or even a lifetime—to repair.

Making work pay. These messages refer to reduced payroll taxes for qualifying individuals through a provision of the 2009 government stimulus package. They ask for personal information so that the IRS can deposit money owed you into your bank account. In reality, the provision provides a tax credit for qualified individuals in the form of reduced withholding from their paycheck.

Like the Refund scam, the perpetrators here are fishing (or, rather, phishing) for your identifiable personal information to do things like open credit lines in your name and access your bank and investment accounts.

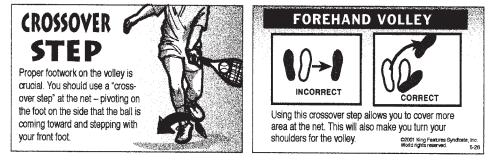

Tips To Help You Avoid Becoming A Victim

- 1. The IRS never discusses official tax matters over the Internet. Forward any communication where the sender poses as the IRS via e-mail to phishing@irs.gov; then, delete the e-mail from your inbox.
- 2. Don't open attachments from unknown senders.
- 3. Research a company or website before you submit personal information.
- 4. Never give your social security number to an unknown source online.
- 5. Visit the FBI website, www.fbi.gov/cyberinvest/escams.htm, to learn whether the type of e-mail you received is a common cyber scam. The site also offers tips for avoiding Internet scams.

COMICS / CROSSWORD / HOLLYWOOD

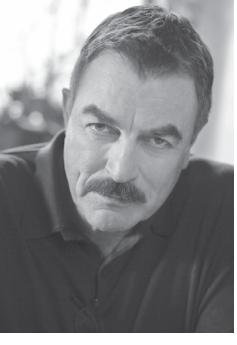

By Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- In the 1970s, I met an actor in the contract program of 20th Century Fox. They gave him small parts with a few lines until his big break came in the movie "Coma" -- he played a corpse. Next came a contract at Universal Studios, where his six TV pilots didn't sell. Steven Spielberg wanted him to star as Indiana Jones in "Raiders of the Lost Ark." With five days left on his contract, Universal talked CBS into buying a show, starring him, without a pilot, and off he went to Hawaii to shoot the series. Then, the Screen Actor's Guild called a strike, and he sat there, unable to work on the series, doing landscaping to pay his rent. As soon as the strike was over, "Magnum P.I." became a mega hit. The actor -- if you haven't already guessed -- was Tom Selleck.

Post-"Magnum" he became a bona fide movie star because of films like "Three Men and a Baby." In 2005, Tom became Jesse Stone, the police officer in Robert B. Parker's series of novels. "Stone Cold" (the fourth book) was the first to air, followed by "Night Passage" (the first book), "Death in Paradise (third book out) and "Sea Change" (fifth book). Next came "Thin Ice" and "No Remorse," original stories written by Selleck and Michael Brandman. All are available on DVD. Next up is "Innocents Lost," also written by Selleck and Brandman and filmed in Halifax, Nova Scotia. It will air on Monday, May 9. CBS is so happy that it's ordered an eighth film.

Tom passed on turning Jesse Stone into a weekly series, so CBS came up with "Blue Bloods," his new hit series. It did so well in its Wednesdaynight time slot that CBS should put it there permanently. In the 40 years

Tom Selleck

I've known Tom Selleck, I've always found him to be a regular guy who just happens to be one of the biggest stars in Hollywood. Watch his show once, and you'll be hooked. ***

When "Dancing With the Stars" returns on March 12 for its 12th season, it will be without three-time professional winner Derek Hough and his sister, two-time winner Julianne Hough. Derek will be filming "Cobu-3D" with Asian star BoA. It's a modern Romeo and Juliet story, not unlike the recent "Step Up 3D" film. Julianne was in "Burlesque" and is starring in the new "Footloose," due out in October. She's currently dating "American Idol's" Ryan Seacrest. Mentioned for Season 12 are "Barnaby Jones" beauty Lee Meriwether, Charlie Sheen's ex, Brooke Mueller, and "Falcon Crest"/"Renegade" star Lorenzo Lamas. They should change the name of the show to "Dancing With Celebrities," because it rarely gets big-name stars!

ducing the major characters and the premise of the series. Police officer Rick Grimes (Andrew Lincoln) is wounded in a shoot-out and falls into a coma. When he eventually awakens in a hospital, he soon discovers that the world is ending. Somehow the dead now walk the earth.

Grimes makes his way back to his home outside of Atlanta, where he finds his wife, son, police partner and a few survivors. Together, they must avoid -- or battle -- zombies as they search for a safe haven to make a new home.

"The Walking Dead," although unrated, is definitely for mature audiences only. It contains strong language and graphic depictions of violence and sexuality.

"Jackass 3" (R/Unrated) -- Johnny Knoxville, Steve-O and Bam Margera are back with another film chock full o' Pain & Stupid. If you're looking for a movie that has stunts involving stun guns or cram-packed porta-potties, "Jackass 3" is right up your alley. (And I think we all know how uncomfortable that can be.) The film is available in 3D DVD, Blu-ray, DVD and theatrical and unrated versions.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"The Walking Dead: Season 1" (Unrated) -- Written, produced and directed by Frank Darabont ("The Shawshank Redemption") and based on the popular series of graphic novels by Robert Kirkman, AMC's "The Walking Dead" is a solid, edgeof-your-seat adult drama -- even for people like me who aren't particularly big fans of the zombie genre.

Season 1, although only six episodes long, does a great job intro-

"Excalibur" [Blu-ray] (R) -- John ("Deliverance") Boorman's 1981 epic telling of the story of King Arthur is the best Arthurian Romance movie ever made. From the drawing from the stone of Excalibur, to Arthur's meeting and subsequent marriage to Guenevere, to the formation of the Round Table and Arthur's tragic death at the hands of his son Mordred, "Excalibur" is a sweeping and spellbinding film, featuring bravura performances by Nigel Terry, Helen Mirren, Nicol Williamson, Liam Neeson, Gabriel Byrne and Patrick Stewart.

Midnight Rambler

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I have an 8-yearold Schnauzer, "Fixer," who has recently started getting into things during the night, after I'm in bed. He has torn open bags, taken things from my purse and gotten into my grandkids' arts and crafts box. Now I have to be careful not to leave anything around. We have not changed the way we are doing things. Could this be his age? -- Phyllis H., Rochester, N.Y.

DEAR PHYLLIS: I'd be remiss if I didn't recommend you take him to the veterinarian first thing, just to make sure there is no underlying health issue causing his sudden behavioral change.

If everything checks out, tackle the problem from two angles. First, even though you haven't changed his daily schedule, something subtle may have changed in the house or yard. Pay attention to nighttime happenings. Is there some new noise outside? Did something happen while you were asleep, perhaps, that may have caused Fixer to become anxious?

Next, make some changes in his day and night routine that will help him feel more secure when you're asleep. Extend his evening walk a bit and add some basic obedience training and play time to the evening schedule. When it's your bedtime, lead Fixer over to his bedding and have him lie down and stay. Check back in five minutes, then in 30; if he's still in his bed, praise him and give him a little treat. If he's not in his bed, lead him back and repeat. Place a favorite chew toy next to him.

At first, Fixer will hop right back out once he thinks you're asleep and proceed with his nightly rummaging. Be patient. It will take some time for him to associate this routine with the idea that you want him to stay there at night. Meantime, keep placing people things out of reach. Put doggie toys in their place.

What's Happening at The Goddard School

Have you ever imagined what it would be like to travel over the rainbow? During the month of March children will learn how imagination and creativity shape our world. The children will be exploring various authors and illustrators, will be reciting nursery rhymes and will be reading various fairy tales. Building, music and dramatic play evoke imagination and creativity, so you will be sure to see a flurry of activity in all of those areas. There is no telling where this month will take us as the children use their imaginations!

We are gearing up for summer here at The Goddard School. This year we are taking a trip around the world through our imaginations during our Passports Around the World summer program! We have visitors planned from Science Snoopers, Safari Rides, Critter Caravan, Kindermusik, My Gym and more! Grab your passport and get ready for a fabulous adventure. If your child is at Goddard this summer then they are in the right place!

During the week of April 11th-15th, we will be celebrating The Week of the Young Child. The goal of this week is to create an opportunity for educators, programs and parents to promote awareness of the needs of young children throughout the community. In order to accomplish this goal we will be offering a week-long event called "Take 5 with your Child," and "A Day in the Life of a Preschooler." These activities are designed to create an additional opportunity for each parent/caregiver to spend a few extra moments with their child or to walk in their shoes for a morning and become involved in the typical daily activities. We hope that these activities will give parents a sense of what is accomplished at Goddard on a daily basis as well as give them an opportunity to spend some quality time with their child. For more information on The Week of the Young Child, you can visit the NAEYC (National Association for the Education of Young Children) website or phone our office for details (203-795-5575).

Tickets are only $35.00!

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might feel more encouraged about changes in your personal and/or professional life. However, it might be best not to rush things but rather work with them as they evolve.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's business sense is especially keen this week. But remember that it's always best to investigate before investing. Make sure there are no hidden factors that can rise up later on.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Working on a family project could create tension between and among those concerned. Your good sense and your patience can help reduce bad attitudes and raise positive feelings.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You should be seeing more progress in the development of your plans and more supporters joining in. News from the past could help change someone's long-held position.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) With personal aspects strong this week, Leos and Leonas might want to spend more time with family and others who are especially close to them. Also expect news of a possible career change.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Taking a strong stand can be helpful this week. But be careful you don't cross the line into obstinacy. Best to take a position on facts as they are, not as you want them to be.

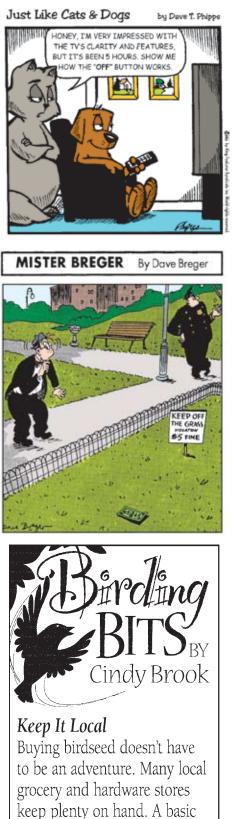

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You have a strong sense of the needs of others. This week, turn some of that sensitivity into an honest selfappraisal, and let it find places where you can help yourself.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Creating an emotional comfort zone to handle a personal problem helps at first. But by midweek, you'll realize you need to deal with it directly or it could linger for too long. SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Turning the page on a mistake to start fresh might not be the thing to do. Better to go over each step that led up to the decision you made and see which one misled you. CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Goats enjoy a varied diet, but eating crow isn't on the menu -- at least not this week. An embarrassing situation might have gone wrong before you got into it. Check it out.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your sense of honesty might impel you to speak up about a situation you disapprove of. That's fine. But do so without sounding accusatory. You might not know all the facts behind it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Being asked to create a reassuring attitude in the middle of chaos isn't easy, but you can do it. Support for your efforts comes slowly, but it does come. Enjoy an arts-filled weekend. BORN THIS WEEK: Your honesty about people and issues is expressed in a positive, not painful, way.
