Orange/Trumbull Police Work Together To Arrest Burglary Suspect

By Richard Weizel -- Orange Town News Correspondent

A 25-year-old Bridgeport man suspected of being part of a burglary duo who struck in Orange and several other towns recently was apprehended by Trumbull police last week after a dramatic chase and pursuit in which one of the suspects managed to escape into the woods, according to Orange Police Chief Robert Gagne.

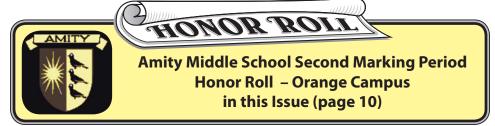

The police chief said the duo is suspected of burglarizing at least four Orange homes last week on March 1, the same day Trumbull police later apprehended one of the suspects. Gagne said that Fabian Rodriguez, 25, of 1036 Noble Avenue, in Bridgeport, was arrested by Trumbull police later that evening and charged with first-degree larceny as well as second and third degree burglary, after a Trumbull woman dialed 911 when she became aware of an apparent forced-entry in progress.

The first burglary occurred at about 1:00 p.m. on Robert Treat Ext. March 1, and the second reported at 2:06 p.m. on Longmeadow Road on the same day. No one was home during the incidents, and a laptop was taken in both incidents, Gagne said. At about 3 p.m. another family reported their house on Ridgeview Road had been entered and small items removed sometime during the day. "Entry was made in each case with some force," Gagne said. "The Department put out a Reverse 911 telephone message to the areas adjoining the locations involved to make residents aware of the incidents." Later that day, at 5:43 p.m. a resident of Gospel Lane also reported their home had been burglarized.

While Rodriguez was apprehended as he first tried to escape in a police vehicle, then on foot, the other suspect fled into the Pequonnock River Valley, a heavily wooded area behind Riverbend Road. He is still being sought by police, but Trumbull police said they are confident the accomplice will be apprehended, according to the Connecticut Post. The Post reported that Riverbend Road resident Kim Stagliano was home alone in the early evening of March 1, as her husband had just left in their minivan, when she heard glass breaking and the garage door opening. Stagliano, a blogger for the Huffington Post saw a strange car in the driveway, so she grabbed the phone, went out the front door, ducked behind some plantings and dialed 911, according to the Connecticut Post.

Police, already in the neighborhood investigating a burglary on Laurie Road, arrived shortly afterward, police said. As the officer was checking out the car in the driveway, the burglars ran out the front door. One of the

--he's a notorious ladies' man. But it is hard to resist the hot-blooded, silkytongued Latin lover who dons a tattoo of intertwined chili peppers as easily as his black leather pants. Luckily, this lady-killer is a cartoon character Black created that was selected as the winner in a recent contest to develop a new character for the hit TV show, "The Simpsons."

Black's character was chosen from among 25,000 who entered the contest sponsored by Fox Television. Black, an operations manager at a local hospital, is a die-hard fan of the show, having watched every episode since it first aired 20 years ago. She and fellow Simpsons fan, and physicist co-worker, Dwight Vonn entered the contest on a whim. Vonn, whose office is decorated with Simpsons' paraphernalia, is also a huge fan of the show. "I wasn't going to bother, because I never win anything," Black says. But she decided "what the heck," and downloaded the contest paperwork which included a series of questions about the prospective character.

Dwight Vonn and Peggy Black display their pride in their creation of 'Simpson's' TV character 'Ricardo Bomba'

The two put their heads together to develop the cartoon character and had a blast doing so. For days they walked by each others' offices' calling out physical and personality traits. For his occupation, we wrote, 'radiation safety officer' who would work as a consultant at Homer's power plant job," she said. "For blood type, we said 'caliente,' (hot) and for sex, we said 'often.'!" Black believes their answers were so elaborate and detailed it may have given them an edge over the other contestants. "We said he had wavy, long hair, with a little grey at the temples and a penciled-in mustache so when he kisses his conquests he leaves a little pencil behind," Black said. "His voice is so suave he can straighten a woman's hair from 15 feet away. The cleft in his chin so deep it could carve a turkey! And be sure to roll the R when you say RRRicardo."

No one was more surprised than Black when she got a call from a Fox producer telling her to check her email for the contract. "I went running down the hall screaming for Dwight!" she says. "We were so excited." The prize was a trip to L.A. to the Simpson's set, which is actually Shirley Temple's and Marilyn Monroe's former bungalow. Black and Vonn met with the Executive Producer and the show's animator and writer. The staff told her Ricardo had been selected as the winner because he felt most like a Simpson's character. "The animator started sketching the character while we were in the meeting and it looked exactly as we had envisioned Ricardo, "she said. The pair describes their visit to the Fox studios as "extraordinary." "We just couldn't believe we were there," Black said. "It was so much fun."

The most exciting moment of all was the February night when Ricardo debuted and alas, met his immediate demise on the show. Black, Vonn, and a group of friends went to Duffy's Pub in West Haven to watch the show and celebrate. "We started screaming when he came on; we didn't even hear what he said! But then right away he hit a wall, crashed and died," she said.

Black and Vonn weren't the only ones disappointed about Bomba's short life. Black said there were many blog postings by outraged fans who wanted to see more of this man that "every woman wanted and every man wanted to be." Since characters seem to die and revive often on the show, Black said she is hoping Bomba may make another appearance.

Since the contest Black has had more than her own 15 minutes of fame. She has appeared on Fox-61, been interviewed by several radio stations and featured in a host of print articles. She had to turn down many more requests for appearances and interviews as it conflicted with her work.

For Vonn and Black the experience has been the thrill of a lifetime. "We'll always be a piece of history, even if it was short-lived," Vonn said. "We'll be that trivia question...where was Ricardo Bomba killed and what were his last words?"

FROM OUR READERS

Prom Safety is Everyone's Resposibility

From proms to graduations, teens have plenty of reasons to celebrate this time of year. But no matter what the reason for celebrating, help keep the occasion safe for everyone by making sure alcohol isn't part of your teen's party plans.

Parents play an important role in helping teens make smart decisions, including choices related to alcohol. According to the 2008 GfK Roper Youth Report, the majority of youth—71 percent of 13- to 17-year-olds—say parents are the No. 1 influence on decisions about whether they drink alcohol or not.

At Dichello Distributors, Inc., we're parents too, and we share the same concerns as every other parent about these issues. That's why we distribute free copies of Family Talk About Drinking, which encourages parents to talk with their children about underage drinking. In addition, our Prevent. Don't Provide program reminds adults that supplying alcohol at teen parties is never a good idea. To help prevent alcohol sales to minors, we also provide retailers with I.D.-checking materials and training to help them serve and sell alcohol responsibly.

Thanks to law enforcement and these kinds of community-based programs, we're making progress in the fight against underage drinking. According to the 2009 Monitoring the Future Study, the 8th grade past-month drinking rate is at a record-low level, declining 41 percent since tracking began in 1991, and high-school senior drinking is down 13 percent since 2000

We can all do our part this prom and graduation season to help keep celebrations safe.

Sincerely,

Tony Lota, Alcohol Awareness Coordinator Dichello Distributors, Inc.

With the school year well under way, we have been diligently preparing for the PTSA sponsored Amity High School Post Prom on May 28, 2010 from 12-4 a.m. at the high school. The purpose of this event is to provide the students with an alcohol/drug free and safe environment for continuing their celebration. Because of the enthusiastic support of local businesses, the professional community, Board of Education, PTSA and service organizations, we are able to run a well organized theme party.

Our theme this year is Island Oasis. In addition to food and soft drinks the students will enjoy several indoor inflatable obstacle courses, a DJ, games, airbrush tattoos, pictures and a hypnotist interactive show provided by Boppers Entertainment. A prize raffle will top off the event. Because this event is free to the students, at this time we are focusing on our fund-raising endeavors and are counting on support from surrounding communities. Our biggest challenge in producing this extravaganza is raising the money. We hope we can count on our communities to help us with this endeavor. Please make checks payable to: PTSA Amity High School, c/o Jacqueline Scheck, 588 Dogwood Road, Orange, CT 06477. We are also welcoming raffle prize donations such as gift cards or college related items. For raffle donations, please contact Suraie Saleh at suraie615@aol.com . On behalf of the Post Prom Committee, we thank you for your support this year!!!

Orange Lions Easter Egg Hunt on March 27

The Orange Lions Club is sponsoring its 48th annual Easter Egg Hunt on Saturday, March 27th, at the High Plains Community Center in Orange. In case of inclement weather, a "rain or snow date" has been set for Saturday, April 3rd at High Plains Community Center, with the same procedures as scheduled on March 27th. The Easter Bunny will arrive at 12:30 PM, one half hours before the start of the Easter Egg Hunt itself half-hour before the start of the Easter Egg Hunt itself. There will be face painting for the children, and hot coffee for the adults.

The Easter Egg Hunt is divided into (4) four ages. This allows each child to have an equal opportunity to collect the thousands of chocolate eggs that will be hidden. The four age groups are: (1) Pre School through Kindergarten; (2) First & Second Grades; (3) Third & Fourth Grades; (4) Fifth & Sixth Grades. Over 10,000 chocolate eggs will be distributed during the bunt. Prize

An adult should accompany all participating children. Each child should have a bag or basket to collect their eggs. Parents may wish to bring a camera for a picture of their child with the Easter Bunny. Please note that parking for this event should be on paved parking areas only.

Lion Jim Mossey is the Chairman of this year's event. Anyone who wishes to make a donation is asked to contact Jim at 203-799-1354. All donors will be acknowledged for their generosity at the Easter Egg Hunt.

The annual Easter Egg Hunt is but one of many community events and activities sponsored by the Orange Lions Club each year. Among the other annual events are: the community Thanksgiving Dinner, the Senior's pizza party, a wine tasting fundraiser in January, and "A Taste of Amity". In addition, the Orange Lions make contributions to many community organizations; and for years, the Lions have run a Community Grants Program for local groups who are seeking funds for a special reason. In particular, the Orange Lions Club has made many gifts to the Case Memorial Library over the years for the purchase of large print books and audio tapes for the sight impaired and the general public. The Orange Lions also fund two $1,000 scholarships each year for students graduating from our local High Schools.

The Orange Lions Club co-sponsors (with the Milford Lions Club) the Foundation High School Leo Club (Lions youth group) for special needs youths, the only club of its kind in North America. The Lions provide needed funds each year to support eye research, training of Fidelco guide dogs for the blind, to Lions low vision centers which provide vision aids to the sight impaired, to the Connecticut Radio Information System, and to Camp Hemlocks for blind and sight-impaired children. The club also collects used eyeglasses for refurbishing and recycling to Third World countries, helping to restore the gift of sight to thousands of people all over the world.

2010 Census to Begin

With the U.S. Census process beginning, the Better Business Bureau (BBB) advises people to be cooperative, but cautious, so as not to become a victim of fraud or identity theft. The first phase of the 2010 U.S. Census is underway as workers have begun verifying the addresses of households across the country. Eventually, more than 140,000 U.S. Census workers will count every person in the United States and will gather information about every person living at each address including name, age, gender, race, and other relevant data.

The big question is - how do you tell the difference between a U.S. Census worker and a con artist? BBB offers the following advice:

If a U.S. Census worker knocks on your door; the worker will have a badge, a handheld device, a Census Bureau canvas bag, and a confidentiality notice. Ask to see the worker's identification and badge before answering questions. However, you should never invite anyone you don't know into your home. Census workers are currently only knocking on doors to verify address information. Do not give your Social Security number, credit card or banking information to anyone, even if the worker claims it's needed for the U.S. Census. Remember, no matter what you are asked, you really only need to tell the worker how many people live at your address.

While the Census Bureau might ask for basic financial information, such as a salary range, you do not have to answer anything at all about your financial situation. The Census Bureau will not ask for Social Security, bank account, or credit card numbers, nor will employees solicit donations. Anyone asking for that information is NOT with the Census Bureau. Also be aware that the Census Bureau has decided not to work with Acorn on gathering this information. No Acorn worker should approach you saying he/she is with the Census Bureau.

Eventually, Census workers may contact you by telephone, mail, or in person at home. However, the Census Bureau will not contact you by Email, so be on the lookout for Email scams impersonating the Census. Never click on a link or open any attachments in an Email that is supposedly from the U.S. Census Bureau.

For more advice on avoiding identity theft and fraud, visit www.bbb.org. As always you can reach Dennis Marsh at Orange Community Services in the High Plains Community Center (203) 891-4787.

two suspects even jumped into the police cruiser, but got out quickly when he realized there were no keys inside the car. Gagne said both suspects were wearing dark clothing and hooded masks when confronted by police.

Gagne said police are looking into connections between these two suspects and burglaries in a number of other area towns and cities. The police chief said items that included jewelry, laptops and electronics taken in the Orange burglaries were recovered from a stolen 2004 Black Infiniti that was reported stolen from Norwalk late last year. "We are very pleased that by working in cooperation with the Trumbull police involving the Orange burglaries they were able to identify and arrest one of the individuals suspected in the burglaries in our community, as well as in several others," Gagne said. "Trumbull police did a great job and we have been working together on apprehending the suspect and exploring the distinct possibility the man apprehended may have been involved in other Orange burglaries too," the chief said.

Gagne wanted to make it clear the burglaries and thefts were not isolated to Orange. "These two (burglars) have apparently been busy in numerous Fairfield and New Haven County towns," Gagne said. "We want to assure the residents of Orange this was an isolated case and that we are just one of many communities where the duo apparently struck." He said anyone with further information involving the burglaries or identity of the remaining suspect is encouraged to call the Orange Police at 203-891-2130.

Orange Historical Society to Present Program On Connecticut State Heroine, Prudence Crandall

The Orange Historical Society will present Donna Dufresne performing her one-woman show interpreting the life of the Connecticut State Heroine: Prudence Crandall, Voice of Conviction.

The Spring Fundraiser will be held on Saturday, April 10, at the Orange Congregational Church Community Room. A light lunch of homemade soups, breads and desserts will be served at 1:00. The performance will begin at 2:30. The event also includes a Chinese auction of gift baskets.

This one-woman play portrays the private voice of Prudence Crandall and the events in her life, which led her to open an academy for black girls in 1833. It takes place in the private rooms of the Canterbury Female Academy. The Quaker-raised Crandall came under fire when, in 1832, she admitted Sarah Harris, a 20 year old black woman and the daughter of a prosperous farmer, to her all-white school. Some parents met the unpopular decision by immediately pulling their daughters out of the school and Crandall was forced to dismiss the remaining students.

Undaunted by the negative experience, Crandall was determine to do what she could to provide education for "Young ladies and Misses of colour" and began to recruit students from middle-class families throughout the Northeast. With the support of numerous Abolitionists, Crandall reopened her school on April 1, 1833, the first boarding and teacher training school for black women in the country.

Connecticut's response was quick and severe. On May 24, 1833 the General Assembly passed the "Black Law," making it illegal to establish any school for academy for the instruction of "colored persons who are not inhabitants of this state" or to instruct or teach in any such school without the consent of local authorities. The law was repealed in 1838.

Prudence Crandall was a woman ahead of her time. She was an educator who believed all young women, regardless of race, were entitled to an education. Committed to excellence in education, she set high standards for her students, enduring arrest, threats, and mob violence. On October 1, 1995, by an act of the General Assembly, Prudence Crandall became Connecticut's State Heroine.

Dufresne is a teacher of gifted and talented in a school-wide enrichment program at Chaplin Elementary School in Chaplin, Connecticut. She began storytelling while teaching in an Environmental Education Program. She uses storytelling and theater to bring historical characters alive and to engage students in historical and scientific thinking. She has performed in schools, libraries, historical societies, museums, and other civic organizations. A singer and songwriter, she recently released her second album.

The Orange Historical Society needs the support of its members, residents and business owners in order to continue to fulfill its commitment to maintain the Academy Museum and the 1830 Stone-Otis House, both located on Orange Center Road, as well as trying to raise funds to complete the restoration of the 1740 Bryan-Andrew House, located on Old Tavern Road. Anyone willing to be a co-sponsor of this event or would like to volunteer to cook, bake, or serve, call Phyllis Gwatkin at 795-4549. If you would prefer to bring a raffle item, call Priscilla Searles at 397-1465.

Reservations can be made by sending your check for $20, payable to OHS, and addressed to OHS, P.O. Box 784, Orange, by April 1. Make it a family affair. Children, as well as adults, will enjoy the performance.

"Dining with Susan"

Bar-B-Q Restaurant

I grew up in Milford and have fond memories of the city including the great restaurants. Milford's slogan is "A Small City with a Big Heart!" This shoreline community has 17 miles of Long Island Sound coastline that funnels into a harbor that winds its way to meet the Wepawaug River in the heart of town. Milford is the 6th oldest town in Connecticut and over 50,000 residents are proud to boast of a meticulously maintained "Town Green", the 2nd longest in New England.

I was so pleased to hear that one of the oldest continuously working restaurants in Milford that originally opened in the 1940s has been "resurrected" by Howard Baccash, the son of the original owner. The Bar-B-Q has a great new sign outside and a complete facelift inside.

When I called to make a reservation for dinner the voice on the other end of the phone was someone I worked with in the restaurant business over 20 years ago, lovely Lisa Boardman-McCarthy. We both were so excited to be able to reconnect after all these years. She is now a dedicated multitasking mom living in Orange like myself. Lisa and the rest of her staff are so friendly and welcoming along with being very committed to making your dining experience a pleasurable one.

The Bar-B-Q offers a casual atmosphere that is kid friendly but also with a touch of class for romantic dining. The menu offers many choices including nightly specials. The seafood is delivered daily and mostly bought locally in CT. The Bar-B-Q still offers their trademark "Twin Lobster Special" 7 days a week. I did especially enjoy one of the appetizers, "Winter Scallops", featuring pan seared scallops served on a bed of arugula with butternut squash, chestnuts, mushrooms and lemon dressing. Definitely a winner and healthy choice. But, on the other hand I couldn't resist the homemade batter-dipped and lightly fried Onions Rings. My dinner selection was broiled cod served with fresh vegetables and "real" mashed potatoes. My dining partner had the New York Strip which was cooked perfectly.

The menu offers many choices of appetizers, salads, pasta, meats, fish, sandwiches, children's menu and, of course, desserts. The full service bar has great wines by the glass, vodkas infused with fresh fruit and Lisa's martini specials. I love a restaurant where you can get a fresh lobster or just a burger along with a well made cocktail!

Open 7days a week for dinner (future plans include lunch) - Monday thru Friday from 4:00pm - Saturday & Sunday from 2:00pm. All major credit cards accepted – Handicapped Accessible – Ample parking in large private lot – Take out available on all menu items – See Lisa for info on private parties. Web site still under construction-stay tuned.

Bar-B-Q Restaurant 591 Boston Post Road, Milford Phone – 203-874-4227

Final notes: I find it very comforting when something old becomes something new again. The staff of the Bar-B-Q will definitely make you feel like you have come home again. The prices are reasonable with good American food and I am sure the Bar-B-Q will bring back a lot of special memories or make some new ones. Remember to support our local businesses.

Grapes in Connecticut?

One of the biggest secrets we have here in Connecticut is the Connecticut Wine Trail. There are currently nineteen wineries in Connecticut and I have more friends and wine society members that have visited Napa Valley than have visited the Connecticut wine trail! The wineries and vineyards of the Connecticut Wine Trail are all members of the Connecticut Vineyard and Winery Association. They include Jones, Mclaughlin, DiGrazia, White Silo Winery, Gouveia Vineyards, Bishops, Heritage Trail, Chamard, Maugle Sierra, Stonington, Jonathan Edwards, Priam Vineyards and Sharpe Hill. The wine trail is divided into an east and a west section and I suggest you visit four or five over the course of a weekend. The buildings and tasting rooms are classic New England at its finest.

Chamara 115 Cow Hill Rd. Clinton, CT 06413 860-214-0299

One of my very favorite wineries on the trail is Gouveia. (See above) It is only about twenty minutes from Orange and it is one of the most beautiful places on the wine trail. The winery was opened in 2004 and they grow Seyval Blanc, Vignoles, Chardonnay, Pinot Noir, Cabernet Franc, Merlot, Cayuga, and St. Croix. Joe and Lucy do a great job making the winery a pleasant place to be and the wines are pretty good too! My favorite is Seyval Blanc. It is crisp and clean with a great nose. The Vignoles is very well made also and the Chard will surprise you! The tasting room is gorgeous.

Another great place to start on the wine trail is Chamard in Clinton. This is also a beautiful place to be. They have about 40 acres, 20 of which is under cultivation. They are known for their single barrel ferment Chardonnay. This was planted in the mid-1980s and has been consistently voted as Connecticut's best wine. They do some Cabernet and Pino Noir as well. They are all very nice wines.

For additional information you can contact the Connecticut Vineyard and Winery Association at 195 Farmington Avenue, Farmington, CT 06032-1600 860-677-5467. Get on the Connecticut Wine Trail. You will be glad you did!

Q: I really loved "Avatar" and have been hearing talk of sequel(s). Please tell me this is true! -- David G., via e-mail

A: Director James Cameron has hinted that the rumors are true. I spoke recently with CCH Pounder -- who plays Mo'at, the mother of Neytiri and the spiritual leader of Omaticaya clan of Pandora -- and she also verified that the idea of further adventures on Pandora is definitely a great possibility. CCH explains: "I know that he (James Cameron) did semi-announce that he is going to make a sequel -- that he is going to take a break, but he did have a story idea. I think perhaps it was always that this would be some sort of a trilogy story.

"I don't think it would take as long, because we already have the world of Pandora created, and it all exists in the digital world. All you have to do is put the story and characters in it. I think, Suzy, his wife, would greatly appreciate a break, and his children would love to see him hang about a bit. He's kind of a workaholic guy. It might be four years, and it might be next year (that he starts working on it)."

Q: I was really starting to get into the new Fox show "Past Life," but I suddenly can't find it on the schedule anymore. Has it been canceled, or is it merely on hiatus? -- Charity E., via

A: After airing only three episodes, Fox has decided to pull the plugged on the struggling and poorly received supernatural crime thriller. It has been replaced by original episodes of "Kitchen Nightmares."

When I caught up with Taylor recently, he told me how much he is enjoying trying his hand at acting: "(Being in "Grease") has been great. It's allowed me to get into acting and understand role-playing, and it's just a great starting point for me in the acting field."

CONTEST ALERT: Speaking of Taylor Hicks, it's time for another contest, with five copies of his "Whomp at the Warfield" DVD up for grabs. Correctly answer this Taylor-related trivia question: "What songs did Taylor sing in the 'Idol' finale, which ultimately crowned him the winner?"

HISTORY CORNER

What Do You Know About Norwich?

James Fenimore Cooper

With all of my interest in history, I am embarrassed to say that I know nothing about Norwich well, that is to say, I didn't know anything about Norwich until Margaret Wright gave us a sampler to add to our growing collection at The Academy. Upon first looking at this wonderful work of art, we were surprised to see a name I have never seen in my genealogy research and as a matter of fact, none of us in attendance at that special moment had either.

I am now going to tell you of the doors that have opened with a little 11-year girl by the name of Sally B. Leffingwell, the maker of this sampler and her hometown of Norwich, CT. About the year 1637, only a short time after the first settlement of New England, a young hunter appeared in the forest of Connecticut, described as a boy out of Cooper's The Deerslayer who almost immediately became friends with the native Mohegans and their young chief, Uncas. He appeared to be a strong youth, courageous and determined and it has been suggested that Thomas Leffingwell, our adventurous youth, had perhaps come here with one of the prestigious colonists either in 1630 with the Pilgrims, Hartford's Thomas Hooker in 1635, John Davenport, New Haven's settler of 1637 or perhaps the stalwart Henry Whitfield congregation in the settlement of Guilford in 1639.

Nonetheless, he was here, grew up and to the greater knowledge in 1647, married a young girl named Mary

White, her heritage questioned as much as Thomas' origin with one idea that Mary was a daughter of a Mohegan Native American. placed her in England...so much for that. The earliest recorded event for Thomas was a petition he and Matthew Griswold presented on behalf of the inhabitants of Saybrook giving reasons for "feeling aggrieved and wronged" by the General Court becoming the people's advocate and defender.

Saybrook records have preserved the birth of his seven children, failing to note the exact place of birth but one has only to look to 1645 when our young man of many faces did accomplish a feat that has been most significant in the settlement of Norwich. It was then that Thomas Leffingwell, hearing of the siege of the Mohegans by the Narragansetts did load a canoe with beef, corn and "pease", paddled by cover of night into the Thames River and rescued Uncas and his men. Seeing the relief given to the Mohegans, the enemy retreated. For this heroic deed, Uncas gave Leffingwell a deed of a great part, if not the whole, of the town of Norwich!

By 1659, Uncas and his two sons Owaneco and Attawanhood, with formality, deeded the whole township of Norwich about 9 miles square to Thomas Leffingwell. Although hence, it has been put forth that Thomas Leffingwell did not undertake this venture alone, it would be more than probable that it was his leadership that accomplished the deed and history has only hinted at other names. It would seem that this marked Leffingwell as a friend of the Indian raising him to an arbiter who would help to address the grievances of Mohegans. His home lot was significant as it fronted on an old Indian trail and wigwams were still located on portions of his pasture lot. Known as Lieutenant Leffingwell, he was only the beginning of a long line of heroes and military men. During King Philip's War, Uncas had lost lands and in 1682 became somewhat troublesome with his demands of the land's return but with Thomas Leffingwell's negotiations, a satisfactory agreement was made, later to be made official by Her Majesty, Queen Anne, commanding that after hearing both parties, said Mohegans would have their lands restored.

Born in 1649, Thomas Leffiingwell Jr. became probably the most enterprising and successful businessman becoming a representative in Hartford's General Court with large land interests. In 1679, he built a house near his father's and in 1700, he was granted permission to open an ordinary "where only the best citizens were permitted to 'enterteyne' strangers." It's also noted that ammunition was stored in his home as well. His inventory was substantial with furniture, linens, woodenware, utensils, pewter and silver in abundance.

Benajah, his son, born in 1695, is recorded as having large land holdings and a generous supply of "movable" property with his probate records requiring 23 pages! Perhaps his most important role was to educate and influence his son, Christopher, born in 1734. For many years, Christopher was most likely the most illustrious citizen of Norwich introducing a variety of enterprises that were destined to become the source of revenue for the colonies in the Revolutionary War. Yes, our little Sally B. was part of one of the most important families of Norwich. With his pottery shop, paper mill, fulling mill (wool), grist mill and of all things a chocolate mill, Christopher Leffingwell was skyrocketed to one of the pivotal members of General Washington's army. It was said that no company equaled in order and equipment the light infantry of Norwich under Col. Christopher Leffingwell becoming a member of the Connecticut Committee of Correspondence and confidential advisor with Gov. Trumbull!

After the war in 1784, Col. Leffingwell was appointed by Washington to be the first naval officer under the new government. And the story goes on, one Leffingwell after another bringing glory and bravery to Norwich, a little town where an 11-year old sat by a lighted candle stitching the alphabet with her best hand and at the very end a Proverb which says: "Many daughters have done virtuously but thou excellest them all." Seems as though the Leffingwells "have excellest them all.

The Leffingwell House Museum is open to the public and can be located on www.leffingwellhousemuseum.org.

ARTS AND LEISURE

TALKING ABOUT THE ARTS

Do Emotions Drive What People Enjoy in Art?

By Ken Warren

A few months ago a stockbroker came into the gallery, visibly shaken by the forces that have reshaped her landscape. She stopped in just to escape the world where the global titanic plates were still shifting.

She decided to buy a statue of a mother and child elephant, because she said it gave her a warm feeling. And then she selected a small chimp portrait, the last one of about 12 that were initially done for a Broadway producer as a gift to his cast. It was the lone orphan. She smiled as she looked at it and said he looked serene, content. The name of the picture was "Happy." She bought it.

Emotions Drive our Decision

Though some select art based on how big and "reasonably" priced it is, others because of the "investment" capabilities, but a high percentage buy because they are driven by their emotions. Picasso once said that the artist "is a receptacle for emotions that come from all over the place; from the sky, from the earth, from a scrap of paper, from a passing shape, from a spider's web."

The more you understand why you buy a piece of art, the more you can better understand if you want to buy it.

Places & Faces

Often people buy art because the image reminds them of their twin daughters at age five, or when they were younger. It can look like granny Jeanne or uncle Scott. This reflects their values, their lives, and they will enjoy the picture for many years.

When it comes to places, memories surface. The image of a couple walking by the Eifel Tower reminds them of themselves, and "do you remember when we walked along and then had a light lunch at that small bistro on the side street?" The memories it captures, and the feelings associated with it are what draw you into the picture.

Vision and Your Brain

Jean-Paul Courchia is a French doctor of endocrinology and metabolic diseases who is fascinated by science. He lectures in France about the visual strategy of visitors in front of art. Measurements of eye movements in the discovery of a painting show how vision is often disconnected from the brain. Starting out from a preliminary study into the behavior of museum visitors, and in particular the average time spent in front of a picture (12 seconds), his research highlights the information picked up by viewers exploring various paintings. He has also evaluated the eye gaze strategies in paintings by Henri Matisse or Francisco Goya.

In a new work presented at the French Society of Ophthalmology he discussed the exploration of the last painting of Van Gogh, and shows how the artistic information actually conducts the eye of the spectator.

Next time you go to a museum or gallery, think about where your eyes are going and why. And if you buy a painting, first define why, and what it does for you.

Orange resident Ken Warren owns the Westport River Gallery in Westport, with his wife Pat. Questions for the column can be directed to WestportRiver@ optonline.net. Not all questions will be used, and they may be condensed or included with other similar queries.

THEATER REVIEW

"Sylvia"by A.R. Gurney at Long Wharf Theatre

Theater Review by Zander Opper

"Sylvia," A.R. Gurney's outrageously enjoyable and endearing play, is currently being given a gorgeous production at Long Wharf Theatre. With a dream cast of four and stellar direction by Eric Ting, the show is filled with laugh-out-loud lines as well as moments of genuine warmth and insight. Rarely have I seen a play that grabs one's affection immediately and not only sustains that feeling throughout, but deepens it until one has fallen completely, hopelessly in love with everything about the show and its production. "Sylvia," by the way, is the name of the dog at the center of this play, but one doesn't necessarily have to be a canine lover to appreciate and tremendously enjoy the drama and humor of this show. Mr. Gurney's writing is so exquisite and wonderfully timed, and the production so perfect, that I guarantee that pretty much anyone will have a deliriously good time at "Sylvia" and will be filled with the overwhelming joy that this show effortlessly radiates from beginning to end.

It is the playwright's conceit that Sylvia, the dog in question, is played by a woman (the deliciously witty Erica Sullivan) and that the dog's owners are able to understand everything Sylvia says and vice versa. At the time of Sylvia's arrival into the lives of married couple Greg and Kate (the exemplary John Procaccino and Karen Ziemba), their children are grown and out of the house and it is just the two of them in their New York apartment. Since it is Greg who brings the dog home (against the wishes of his wife, who would prefer to enjoy exclusive time with her husband) and since Sylvia is, as stated, portrayed by an actual girl, a natural tug-of-war is quickly established between wife and dog for Greg's attention and the marriage is soon thrown into a bit of discourse. To reveal anything more about this unusual triangle of wills would spoil a good deal of the fun and surprise that the playwright has up his sleeve, but, suffice it say, uproarious comedy and high drama ensue. It is to Mr. Gurney's credit that the central situation unfolds in unexpected directions and that the hilarity is matched by a deep affection for the characters, both canine and otherwise.

Of course, if the acting wasn't up to the playwright's singular ambitions, the play would never achieve the heights that it does. Fortunately, in this department, the show comes up aces. John Procaccino is simply terrific as the husband and his scenes with Sylvia, in particular, are outrageously good. Tony winner Karen Ziemba, as Kate, has made her mark in numerous Broadway musicals, but she is easily at her finest in this straight dramatic role and reveals a previously untapped flair for comedy. And what can be said about Erica Sullivan as Sylvia? Within moments, she establishes herself as a believable canine and her performance is a winner. I should hasten to mention, however, that the fourth cast member—the extremely versatile and comically brilliant Jacob Ming-Trent—nearly steals the show in a variety of roles, including a riotous part as a gender non-specific therapist, who needs to be seen to be believed (and cherished).

The superb director, Eric Ting (with strong assists from his marvelous set designer Frank J. Alberino and costumer designer Valerie M. Webster) keeps the action flowing at a whirlwind pace that befits a comedy like this and his work even enhances the already sterling writing of Mr. Gurney. By all means, run to get tickets to this terrific show-- when it comes to comedies with a heart, "Sylvia" is truly as good as it gets. Performances will continue through Sunday, March 14th and tickets can be ordered by calling the box office at 203-787-4282 or by going to www.longwharf.org.

ORANGE BUSINESS ROUNDUP

Curves Hosts Food Drive to Benefit Local Families

Curves of Orange is encouraging women in the area to show their philanthropic strength by participating in the annual Curves Food Drive. And, even though donating food to families in need is its own reward, the club is offering compelling incentives for both existing and potential members who participate.

From March 1 to 31, Curves of Orange will collect non-perishable items and monetary donations for food banks in the local area. The goal, according to Joel Calvi of Curves of Orange, is for the community to come together to help families in need. "At the core of our business is the message that women are stronger when they rally together, and that is the point we hope to bring home with our food drive," said Calvi. "We want to show our community just how powerful the generosity of our members can be."

According to Calvi, members who donate a bag of groceries or make a minimum donation of $30 during the month of March will receive a reusable Curves grocery freezer bag for free. Non-members who do likewise during the month of March can join Curves for free. Curves will waive the cost to join.

Calvi says that as part of this effort, Curves of Orange will be participating in a company-wide contest for the most food drive donations collected by Curves locations across the nation. Winners will receive one of several cash prizes to be donated to their local food bank. Each year, Curves locations collectively donate millions of pounds of food to feed the hungry. "We hope women in the Orange area will come together and participate in this initiative," added Calvi. "Even if you're not thinking about joining a gym, you can still drop off your donations. There are so many families – right here in our own community – who need our help." For more information about Curves of Orange, located at 391 Boston Post Road and the Curves Food Drive, contact Joel Calvi at 203-799-7003 or curvesoforange@yahoo.com.

FASTSIGNS Donates to Haitian Relief Effort

Since the devastating earthquake that ravaged Haiti earlier this year, small business owners everywhere are looking within their own corporations to help make a difference. One local Orange business owner is using his business resources to help give a boost to local fundraisers for the Haitian relief effort.

When Connecticut State Representative Tony Hwang called upon the local Boston Post Road FASTSIGNS sign and graphic center to help with an upcoming local Haitian fundraiser, president and owner, Brian Reeves, felt compelled to help and he knew just how he could. "When Mr. Hwang came to us and said that he needed signs to help promote a fundraiser for Haitian relief, we knew that it was our responsibility as a member of the community to help in any way that we could. Since we are a sign and graphic company, we knew that signs were the best way we could help and contribute. We donated flyers, posters, banners, anything they needed in this regard to get people in the door and to donate," said Reeves.

Mr. Reeves and his team at FASTSIGNS had worked with Mr. Hwang on previous events and fundraisers for Operation Hope, an organization that acts as a facilitator, lender, advocate and educator for and on behalf of underserved communities.

When asked whether or not he had any tips for other small business owners who want to get involved with events benefiting Haiti or other charitable organizations, Reeves commented, "The most important thing is to choose an organization that you believe in. The situation in Haiti hit close to home for me personally so I was glad to be able to help in the relief effort but there are a great number of organizations that are doing equally good work. The rewards come from finding one that speaks to you personally and working with them to determine how you can support them in such a way that both the company and the charity reap the benefits."

According to Reeves, "It feels great to know that your efforts are going to benefit a worthwhile cause. It was rewarding as a local business owner and member of the community to be involved in such a powerful fundraising effort."

HEALTH AND FINESS

Back Pain

by Mary Schwartz, CPT

We have all experienced back pain at one time or another. It can happen in an instant. One minute you are moving about freely and the next minute you are writhing in pain. You twisted the wrong way, got out of bed the wrong way or lifted something wrong and that was it, you injured your back. Now you can barely move, making standing, sitting or even lying down painful. What happened? Why did it happen? But, most importantly, how do you make the pain go away and prevent it from happening again?

If your back pain is the result of a muscle strain or pull and not a more serious injury, the pain can usually be resolved within a couple of weeks. The initial pain can greatly be reduced by resting and avoiding any lifting or twisting for a couple of days, applying heat to the injured area using a heating pad or a hot water bottle and taking an anti-inflammatory medicine such as Ibuprofen, Motrin or Aleve.

Once the initial pain has subsided, begin performing some gentle stretching exercises to loosen up the injured area. A foam roll is a useful tool to help the healing process. A foam roll is a cylindrical roll of tightly packed foam. It is used to literally "roll out" any kinks or knots in your muscles. Using a foam roll is like getting a deep massage. Position the foam roll on the floor under the muscle that is sore. Roll back and forth on the foam roll pausing on any tender spots. The foam roll works by causing blood to flow to the injured area, allowing the muscles and nerves to relax and heal.

Back pain can occur for a variety of reasons, but typically occurs as the result of a weak core or tight hips, gluts and hamstrings. Your core includes the muscles of the back, the deep abdominal muscles, the hips and pelvic area and the small, stabilizing muscles that run along the spine. These smaller muscles are responsible for stabilizing the body during movement, working together to stiffen the spine, rib cage and pelvic area so that the head and limbs have a stable foundation from which to move. When the large muscles are strong, but the small muscles are weak, the body has to compensate for the weakness which often leads to muscle imbalances and injury. In addition, if the hip flexors are tight, the gluts won't fire properly which makes the hamstrings less efficient, contributing to low back pain.

The good news is that these muscle imbalances can be corrected by stretching the tight muscles and strengthening the weak muscles. Some key movements that will help to achieve these goals include stretching the hip flexors and hamstrings, strengthening the deep abdominal muscles by performing planks and strengthening the gluts and hips by performing bridges. Since all movement originates from your core, strengthening these muscles is vital to preventing injury and eliminating back pain.

Assisted Living

By Roberta L. Nestor

Assisted living facilities are growing, not only geographically but also in popularity. Most often the conversation starts with adult children who are maybe pushing for Mom or Dad to consider an assisted living facility. Many families are embracing this new type of housing. But, it's Mom or Dad that needs the convincing. Maybe it's the word "facility" that conjures up an image of being held against your will in a small environment that is sterile and institutional by defini-

All you have to do is take a tour through one of the many assisted living environments (I will try to avoid the word facility) to see that there are more positives than negatives. When you are living along in your 80's life gets difficult. At age 80 the life expectancy is now 18.7 years and while independence is of outmost importance, it is harder and harder to achieve as we age.

Recently, a family was contemplating assisted living for their 86 year old widowed mom. Mom is currently living independently in a small condo. I asked her to tell me what she thought the advantages would be. After listening to Mom, her family went through the advantages they saw for themselves and for Mom. By the end of the conversation, neither party could find a negative.

Advantages expressed by Mom:

Not having to worry about cooking. "It will be nice to have someone prepare three meals a day for me. I usually don't eat dinner because it doesn't make sense to cook for just one person".

Not having to drive, carry and transport groceries. This appeared to be a very important factor. Mom expressed the time and energy it took just to get the groceries from her car inside her condo. She thought it was great that someone would take her grocery shopping and she wouldn't have to carry the bags. She also mentioned the other shopping trips offered by assisted living.

Another plus – she knows someone will always be available to take her to doctors appointments and can schedule freely. "One of the biggest problems is trying to schedule doctor visits and having to make sure one of my kids could take me".

Socializing ranked high on the list. She happens to have several friends at this particular assisted living. "Most of my friends don't drive anymore so we never see one another and we used to play cards all the time".

She mentioned how nice it would be not to have to pay a "bunch of bills". "Sometimes I forget to pay the water bill and then the oil bill is so big I have to get money out of savings". With the assisted living she would write very few checks and most allow for automatic withdrawal from your checking account. You eliminate house insurance, house taxes, heating and electrical expenses – thousands of dollars.

Disadvantages expressed by Mom:

Only one was mentioned, "I won't own my own home anymore". I believe this the most difficult decision when considering assisted living. For most people, affordability of assisted living will include the sale of their home. This happened to be the only negative statement from Mom.

The positives for her family narrowed down to one. They know that Mom is safe and they won't have to worry about her being alone. Her son expressed that it would allow the family to have more quality time with Mom. It also means that Mom will have more quality time for herself.

In this situation, Mom is still completely independent. She does not need any assistance with daily activities of living such as eating, bathing, dressing or taking medications. There are some "retirement" communities that provide for those who are living independently as well as those who need assistance. I suggest starting with the Connecticut Assisted Living Association. They provide a comprehensive Consumer Guide. You can call for this guide at 203-772-7781 or on their website, www.ctassistedliving.com.

You have to be sure that it is affordable not just now, but for the next 10, 15 or 20 years! Keep in mind that assisted living environments have a fixed monthly rate. However, that rate tends to increase each year and there are additional charges depending on services you might need (e.g., assistance with medications). Your financial advisor will work with youv through the financial part of this process and should assist with an Expense Comparison Worksheet; when you take into account the combined costs of home ownership, especially with property taxes, you may be surprised at just how affordable assisted living might be for you.

Treating a Cut Paw

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: My dog "Bart" came inside from being in the backyard today and was limping a bit. I checked his paw, and it looks like he has a small cut on one of the pads. I'm not sure from where, but there is still a bit of ice and snow around the edges of the yard. I disinfected the cut, but I'm not sure what to do next -- a Band-Aid, perhaps? -- Worried in Burlington, Vt.

DEAR WORRIED: A light gauze bandage, wrapped around the paw and taped in place, will protect Bart's paw while the cut heals. Don't wrap or tape so tightly that the circulation to the paw is affected -- you just want to cover the cut.

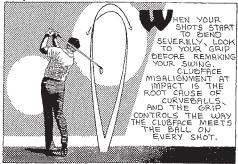

Check the bandage daily and replace when it becomes damp or dirty (which, if Bart likes going outside, may be daily). If your dog licks or tries to chew away the bandage, pick up a cone-style or Elizabethan-style protective collar at the pet store, or from Bart's veterinarian.

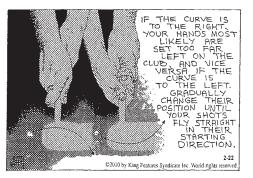

If Bart's limp does not improve within about three days or the cut does not appear to be healing, take him to the vet to have the injury evaluated. Likewise if his paw becomes swollen.

Meantime, head outside and try to get rid of sharp-looking ice patches, if possible. Remove any debris from Bart's run area and pick up any dog feces to reduce the chance of infection in his injured paw (or if he injures his footpads again for whatever reason).

Send your pet questions to Sam Mazzotta at ask@pawscorner.com, or write to Paw's Corner, c/o King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. And find more pet resources at PawsCorner.com.

The Princess and the Froq

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"The Princess and the Frog" (Rated G) -- From the directors of "The Little Mermaid" and "Aladdin," with music by Randy Newman, Disney returns to the classic 2-D animation that made the studio famous. "The Princess and the Frog" is noteworthy because it is the first Disney cartoon to feature an African-American girl as its hero.

The story takes place in New Orleans, and the film's heroine, Tiana, has dreams of opening a restaurant. Her dream is put on hold when a Prince, turned into a frog by a voodoo spell, mistakes the girl for a princess. He gets her to kiss him, hoping the curse will be lifted. Instead, Tiana is also turned into a frog and the two must go on a journey to find a way to restore themselves to their human forms.

While not up to the standards of, say, "The Lion King" or "Beauty and the Beast," "The Princess and the Frog" is still better than the CGI animated fare we've been getting from Disney these past few years, and a notch or two above the studio's wretched straight-to-DVD offerings.

"Mr. Bean's Most Memorable Moments" (Unrated) -- In the tradition of Charlie Chaplin and Jacques "Mr. Hulot" Tati, Rowan Atkinson's Mr. Bean is pure comedic genius. With virtually zero dialogue, Atkinson has created an internationally beloved character whose battles with life's little challenges escalate to epic slapstick situations. Only in the world of Mr. Bean could the simple act of preparing a Christmas dinner degenerate into a chaotic mess wherein our hero finds himself with his head embedded in an enormous turkey. If you've never seen the award-winning TV series, this inexpensive compilation of a few of the show's funniest moments is the perfect introduction.

"South Park: The Complete Thirteenth Season" (TV-MA) -- Colorado's vulgar moppets return for another solid season of satirically skewering current events and pop culture. From the Jonas Brothers and their purity rings, to Somali pirates, Kanye West, "Whale Wars" and professional wrestling, no one is safe from ridicule -- not even the ghost of Michael Jackson. My favorite episode of the season, though, is "The Coon," which spoofs the "dark" comic-book films like "The Watchmen," "Dark Knight" and just about everything Frank Miller has ever written.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Disappointed about something that didn't go your way? Cheer up. Look at the reasons it happened, and you could find a valuable lesson about what to do (or not do!) the next time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time to do some reassessing of plans and goals -- even how you considered redoing your bathroom. The point is to be open to change if change can improve things.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Take some time to learn who is the right person (or persons) to approach and discuss your ideas with for your new project. Also, reserve time to prepare for an upcoming family event.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Dealing with a demanding situation, as you recently did, could drain much of vour own emotional reserves. Take time to relax and indulge yourself in some well-earned pampering.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The regal Lion might feel that she or he is above emotional displays. But showing your feelings can be liberating for you, and reassuring for someone who has been waiting for you to do so.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An emotionally needy person might make more demands than you can cope with. Best to ask for some breathing space NOW, before resentment sets in and makes communication difficult.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An unexpected spate of mixed signals could cause serious schedule setbacks. Best to focus on straightening everything out as soon as possible and get everyone back on track.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be aware that someone in the workplace could try to use a disagreement with a colleague against you. If so, be prepared to offer your side of the story with the facts to back you

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unexpected challenge to a previous decision can be unsettling. But your reservoir of selfconfidence -- plus your loyal supporters -- should help carry the day for you. Good luck.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While the idea of making some sort of major move in the near future continues to interest you, don't overlook a new possibility that could be emerging closer to home.

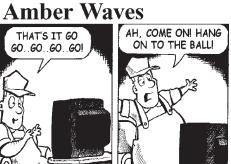

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Be careful not to base an upcoming decision on gossip or anything you might hear if it can't meet provable standards. That's true regardless of whom the source might be.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might still need to do some solid reassessing early in the week before you can close that sensitive situation. A new job-related opportunity could present itself later in the week.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are extraordinarily sensitive to people's feelings, and you're always ready to offer comfort if necessary.

"Healthy Orange" Initiative Kick-Off

The Orange Chamber of Commerce Health & Wellness Council will kickoff its "Healthy Orange" initiative at a breakfast event on Friday, March 19th at Laurel Estates Assisted Living Community. Chamber members interested in being a part of this exciting new endeavor are invited to attend. The event will begin at 8:30 a.m.

Phil Noto, Administrator at the Urgent Care Center in Orange and chair of the Chamber's Health & Wellness Council encourages participation from all sectors of the Chamber. "The goal of the program is to provide information to business and residents regarding the value of living a healthy lifestyle. This will include making information available and creating activities that will foster healthy living through proper nutrition, exercise, and preventative healthcare. Businesses that add value to this effort are encouraged to participate fully, since the networking opportunities available to chamber members are plentiful."

The Orange Chamber of Commerce's health & Wellness Council believes that by having a diverse group of participating businesses we can help increase community awareness and decrease health costs. "The goal is to transform Orange into one of the healthiest communities in Connecticut. To do this we need your participation," said Chairman Noto.

The "Healthy Orange" initiative, according to Janice Lettick, Executive Director of the Orange Chamber of Commerce, "is about utilizing the resources of the Chamber's health and wellness business members to provide information and create activities that will reach our other members and the Orange community at large. The members of the Health & Wellness Council are committed to fostering a "Healthy Orange" community."

Orange First Selectman James Zeoli offered his enthusiastic support for the initiative, "With the healthcare debate raging not only in Washington D.C., but all across this country, the Healthy Orange initiative may prove to be an effective method to improve the overall physical health of our community. By developing this partnership, the Chamber's Health & Wellness Committee seeks to make valuable information available to individuals and businesses within Orange".

Founded in 1962, the Orange Chamber's primary functions are to support member's business objectives; keep members abreast of the ever changing Orange business environment; aid member firms in establishing meaningful and productive relationships with other businesses and with town government, elevate awareness of the business community, foster membership participation in community events; and enhance the town's economic growth.
