Orange's Mangano Keeps NBA Dreams Alive

By Laura Fantarella – Orange Town News Correspondent

Greg Mangano is leaving Yale University with a degree in Political Science and a one-year contract to play professional basketball in Turkey.

This season he will be one of three Americans on team Antalya of the Beko Turkish League in Antalya, Turkey. "It's a great opportunity, and a well-respected league," Mangano said. He has yet to visit the region but is excited by what he's hearing. "It's located right on the Mediterranean, across founded by ukulele lover, Lisa Brelsford.

Brelsford is a retired Southern Connecticut State University psychology professor and talented musician who can play a host of instruments including the drums, piano and guitar. But it is the little ukulele that has stolen her heart. "I'm crazy about it," she admits. "I live and breathe ukulele. It's very enjoyable for me, it makes me happy." Her dad, George Lewis, 86, a fellow "Kookee" who lives with Brelsford, said, "I hear her playing from the time I'm having breakfast to the time I'm watching the late night news!" Brelsford admits she has a hard time passing by the instrument without picking it up. "I just have to play a little something or do a little doodle every time I see it," she said. The ukulele's compact size is particularly appealing because Brelsford can even travel with it. On car rides to Maryland and Virginia to visit her children and grandchildren, she always brings the instrument and entertains her husband Gary while he drives.

Always one to coordinate the musical entertainment at family gatherings, Brelsford's first jam sessions started with her dad and sister, Linda Meisenheimer, then grew to include the extended family, all of whom live steps away from each other on Robert Treat Extension. "She bought everyone a ukulele for Christmas - all the kids and husbands and we always need to bring them when we get together," Meisenheimer said. No formal training is necessary, in fact, the beauty of the instrument is its simplicity. "It's very easy, no musical background is necessary and Lisa got me playing right away," Meisenheimer said. "I enjoy it too, it's very relaxing." Brelsford agreed, adding, "Everything you need to know about music can be taught on a ukulele."

Seeing how much the family enjoyed playing together inspired Brelsford to find even more people to jam with. So about five years ago she recruited friends and business associates to join her sister and dad and put a notice on meetup.com to find more enthusiasts and the "KookeeUkies" was born. These days it is not uncommon for up to 20 people ranging from teens to seniors to show up to play together. According to Brelsford, the ukulele is making a comeback, as contemporary artists like Jason Mraz and American Idol contestant Jason Castro have played it in televised performances. "Tiny Tim

Family Success Story Keeps Growing and Growing

By Melissa Nicefaro - Orange Town News Correspondent

When Tom Smith decided to open Racebrook Wine and Liquor World with his four sons in late 2008, he knew there was just something he liked about Orange. "I believe that you should be part of where you're at," Smith says. He hopes to soon sell his Trumbull home and move to Orange to live in the community that he's come to know and love. "We've been very fortunate here. Folks accepted us and I think they even like us," he jokes. He has a natural friendliness and an easy-going sense of humor that he has passed on to his boys.

Though many customers think otherwise, Tom Smith's four sons co-own the business and run it under their father's guidance. The young men are Ryan, 22; Michael, 23; Steven, 26 and Tom, 29, and hold a visible deep respect for their father and mother Liz, who also works at the store. "There's a fine line between guidance and telling them what to do," Tom Smith says. He and his wife have learned when to step in and when to let their sons fly free. "I'd actually love to move back to Florida," Smith says. "But as long as they're here, I just can't. I need to be where they are."

His experience comes from 22 years of running a Black Rock, Conn., package store that he sold in 2006. Though the boys were young, it was their introduction to the business. "Working with family is the best," he says. "They're their own best friends."

Tom and Steven are married and not living with their parents any longer, but Smith recalls days when the family of six would work ten-hour days and come home still enjoying each others' company. "When we got home, they'd still sit around the kitchen table and chat," Smith says.

When the Smiths bought the store, they had 3,000 square feet of space, wedged between an empty real estate office and Timothy's sandwich shop. Since 2008, all other tenants in the building have moved and Racebrook Wine and Liquor World is in the process of taking over the entire plaza. Plans are being drafted for a expansion that would include a café that will serve sandwiches, paninis, coffee, cheese and pastries. The store, in its entirety, will span 13,000 square feet. An architect is drawing the plans that will be presented to the town planning and zoning commission. Smith expects the process to run smoothly and his new café will open this winter. "It's going to be nice, we'll have a big stone fireplace and place for people to sit and visit," he says. Once the time draws closer, he anticipates several high school students to work in the café. He envisions the café as a place where moms can

OTN to Launch Sister Paper in Woodbridge

The Orange Town Newspaper, LLC is proud to announce the launching of its second newspaper, the Woodbridge Town News. The Woodbridge Town News will be Woodbridge's exclusive newspaper and delivered free to every home in Woodbridge as well as every business in Woodbridge, Bethany and Westville. The Woodbridge Town News will be similar in format and style as its sister counterpart, the Orange Town News as the "Hometown Community Newspaper" of Woodbridge.

The Inaugural Issue of the Woodbridge Town News will be delivered on Friday, August 31st. We stress to our loyal readers of the OTN, that the establishment of the Woodbridge Town News will have no effect on the quality or content of the Orange Town News. We look forward to helping to serve both communities by providing a forum for community events and activities.

As I have stated many times, I feel that a community newspaper is just a small part of the quality of life in a small town and we are proud to be able to serve in that capacity in both Orange and Woodbridge. I would like to personally thank all those in Woodbridge for their encouragement and support of our new venture. The success of a community newspaper is based on the strength, dedication, and drive of the community itself. With that being said, we look forward to giving the residents of Woodbridge an opportunity to express their passion for their town as we have for the past 7 years in Orange.

As always, feel free to contact me with any comments or suggestions. Be well,

It's Time for a Change

Congress gets ready for its summer break. Only 21 congressional working days till the government is in threatened shut down again! It's time for a change in Washington. Taxes are going up on December 31st. The economy is stagnating, 8% unemployment. We're not creating jobs and businesses are migrating to greener pastures while Washington politics belittles those creating the jobs and worse yet wants to increase their taxes. So soon we forget the lessons of the Little Red Hen and the Golden Goose. Let's face it, Connecticut is losing, the nation is losing. Among the candidates for Senator only one, Linda McMahon, has a real plan and the right solutions to make Connecticut and the nation business friendly again. I love Connecticut. I love my country and I don't want us to lose our future. Count my vote for Linda McMahon.

Musicians can bring music they'd like to share or play from Brelsford's large "jam book" that includes classical, contemporary and pop pieces ranging in difficulty from beginner to advanced. "Sometimes we draw a crowd and everyone sings along!" Brelsford said. They even go on the road occasionally, taking an annual ferry trip to Port Jeff and a train to New York City where they entertain travelers with everything from Frank Sinatra classics to Train's Soul Sister. the ocean from Istanbul and supposedly it's one of the top tourist destinations in Turkey," he said. "Our apartment is right on the beach."

Mangano prepared for the National Basketball Association draft for weeks, during which he was invited to work out and train with some of the biggest names in the league, including the Knicks, Clippers, Lakers and Grizzlies. Though he was passed over in this year's draft, Mangano was not disappointed. "It was a great experience. I travelled the country and had positive workouts with all the teams," he said. "It's all good."

At 6' 10" and 240 lbs., Mangano was Yale's all-time leading shot-blocker, finishing his collegiate career with 213 blocked shots, 735 career rebounds and 1,213 career points. Playing overseas, he believes, is the best career move if he is to achieve his ultimate goal, playing in the NBA. "The Ivy League does not have the top competitors in the country and I need to continue to develop as a player to compete in the NBA," he said.

As he prepares to leave for Turkey in August, Mangano is spending about four hours each day training and working out to stay in shape. "I'm playing a little bit of golf but when I'm not working out I try to take it easy because it's wearing on the body," he said. He hopes to play professional ball as long as he can before he puts his Yale degree to good use. "This is what I love to do: I'd rather being doing this than anything else right now."

North American Energy Independence: Reenergized

For a Full Report, Contact Richard J. Zorena, CFP®

orth America will likely achieve energy independence by the end of the decade. The American energy extraction techniques of horizontal drilling and hydraulic fracturing – combined with a structurally high relative price of crude oil – has encouraged widespread development of America's energy resources. Natural gas is so oversupplied in the US that developers are curtailing production, while domestic oil producers are working to circumvent infrastructure bottlenecks to transport their supplies to refi neries. As a result, natural gas in North America costs less than a fifth of the cost of oil on an energy-equivalent basis.

Over the next several years, we expect:

- America's newfound energy resources to provide a much-needed boost to US economic activity, as the country contends with the eff ects of widespread debt deleveraging. UBS economists project a roughly 0.5 percentage point intermediate-term boost to US real GDP. The drivers behind this growth spurt include exploration, development and infrastructure investment, direct and indirect job growth from energy extraction, and the windfall that will likely accrue to households and businesses from relatively lower-cost
- Relatively inexpensive natural gas to create a competitive advantage for the US. This is another key factor supporting our view that the US economy will experience a manufacturing renaissance through the repatriation, relocation and expansion of energyintensive industrial operations. This trend is especially powerful for the petrochemical and materials sectors.
- US oil consumption to continue to decline, as the comparatively high price of oil will likely prompt drivers to switch to more fuel-efficient vehicles and alternative powertrains, such as hybrids and electric vehicles.
- Increased use of natural gas at power plants that have long relied on coal. Natural gas will also find its way into the transportation fuel mix through use of compressed natural gas and other natural gas technologies in fleet vehicles, as well as through the wall outlet for plug-in electric cars.
- Demand for renewables to hinge on government subsidies, which may come under pressure in an age of heightened austerity.
- Intense pressure on the global energy industry to keep pace with demand. The Energy Information Administration projects a 58% increase in energy demand by 2035 on account of rising consumption in emerging market countries. Despite an increase in the use of renewables, fossil fuels still account for over 80% of the global energy mix; and energy producers must race to even more remote locations to secure supplies. In the case of oil, many of these supplies are in the hands of national oil companies, which even further hinders supply security for countries dependent on oil imports.
- The US to eventually wean itself off OPEC imports, through a combination of lower oil demand, greater domestic production and additional Canadian imports. Not only will North America achieve greater self-sufficiency and energy independence, but we expect the US will also become a net exporter of natural gas later this decade.
- A lower structural trade deficit to result from a moderation in oil imports and an acceleration in natural gas exports. Some of the US dollars previously shipped overseas for imported oil will now be spent on domestically produced energy or be freed up for other spending because of inexpensive natural gas and expected efficiency gains.

The trends we discuss in this report are primarily a function of market-based incentives to change behavior. Energy policy, especially efforts to reduce harmful pollutants, lower greenhouse gas emissions and raise fuel efficiency, will also spur changes in the fuel mix away from oil and coal and toward natural gas. Geopolitical events, especially the potential for conflict in the Middle East, will also encourage a shift away from imported oil from the region.

Fossil fuels will not go the way of the dinosaur anytime soon, however. The US must continue to pursue eff orts to develop technology and increase the availability of renewables in the nation's fuel mix to ensure maximum energy security. True energy independence means consumers can no longer be held hostage to either the fuel suppliers or the supplies. To truly break free of its tried-and-no-longertrue energy-inefficient ways and means, the nation must embrace renewable fuels – the next step on the path to complete independence.

Davis Welcomes Approval of Funds for Local Roads

State Representative Paul Davis (D-117th District) welcomed approval today by the State Bond Commission of $15 million in state aid that will fund paving projects and road repairs for Milford, Orange and West Haven. "It's critical that we continue to maintain our infrastructure and these funds are important for our local towns to help pay for road repair and paving projects," Rep. Davis said. "I am pleased the funding has been approved by the State Bond Commission. This funding provides relief for local property taxpayers and for those local officials responsible for local paving and road repair projects."

The Town Aid Road (TAR) funds for area towns are as follows:

- Milford-$292,725.52
- Orange-$137,915.14
- West Haven-$312,765.61

The towns receive half payments in July and January.

Rep. Davis is House Chair of the Regulations Review Committee and serves on the Education and Environment Committee.

meet for coffee and a sandwich, school volunteer groups will hold meetings and people will generally gather to visit and hang out.

The key to running a successful business, he says, is to treat his customers like human beings. "This is not just about booze, it's about dealing with people," he says. "I treat people as I like to be treated and I've taught my boys to do the same. When someone walks in here, I don't see a dollar sign, I see a human being. I don't care if they're buying a $1 can of beer or a $400 bottle of scotch, I treat everyone the same."

Though many liquor stores do suffer in a down economy, the Smiths have not seen the effects. "Orange has been very good to us," he says. Someday soon, he hopes to call the town home.

Town Pool to Close for Repairs

The town pool will close down on Monday, August 20th and reopen on Monday, September 10th to undergo repairs.

Q: Can you tell me when "Boss" will be back on the air? I can't wait to see what's going to happen next! --Erin D., via e-mail

A: Kelsey Grammer's political drama returns for its second season on Starz starting Friday, Aug. 17, for 13 all-new episodes. (In the week leading up to its premiere, Starz will be re-airing season one, so you can either get caught up on what you missed or refresh your memory.) I spoke with series co-star Nicole Forester, who plays Maggie, ambitious wife of Illinois State Senator Ben Zajac, and she gave me some teasers about what to expect this season.

"What you saw at the end of season one with Ben and Maggie is a good indicator of where they're going, as far as Maggie taking the reins and doing whatever she has to do to keep her husband in a direction that will result in them going all the way to the Governor's Mansion," Nichole said. "This season is totally intense. Even though I've read the scripts and I know what's coming, when I'm at home watching the episodes, I'm going: 'Holy crap! I can't believe it!' And there's only going to be more of that in season two. Every episode is just loaded with surprises, and it's just intense all the way around."

For my entire interview with Nicole and to learn more about "Boss," as well as what it was like shooting "Jack Reacher" with Tom Cruise, go to celebrityextraonline.com.

Q: Can you tell me if "Justified" will be back for another season, and if so, when? Also, when will season three be out on video? This is my fa-

Nicole Forester

A: The Timothy Olyphant-starring Western crime drama will return to FX for a 13-episode fourth season in the beginning of 2013, although an exact date has not been given yet. If the release of the season three DVD follows in the pattern of the previous two, then it should be released in the weeks leading up to the season four premiere.

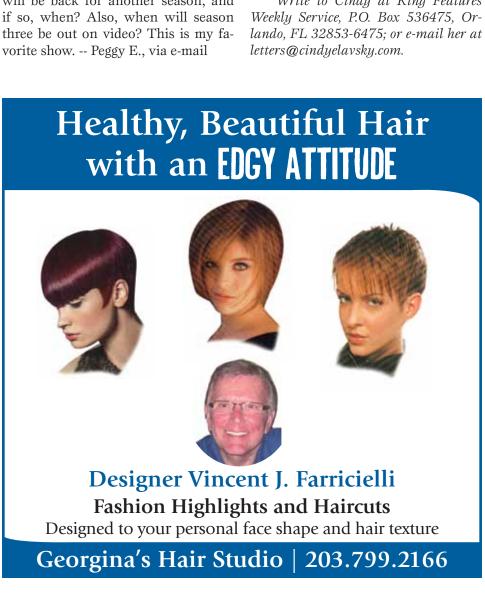

Q: I have not seen any information on Alex Trebek since the news of his heart attack in June. Is he out of the hospital? Is he back to taping "Jeopardy"? -- Lori Engel, via e-mail

A: Alex's heart attack, which he suffered June 23 after doing some work around the house, was a mild one. He was released from the hospital after a few days and is doing very well. He even returned to work last month to tape new episodes of "Jeopardy."

Q: My wife and I have enjoyed watching "Memphis Beat" on TNT for the past couple of years, but we haven't heard anything about its return. Any news would be appreciated. -- David D., via e-mail

A: The crime dramedy starring Jason Lee was canceled by TNT in October 2011 after the show's second season. The series is not yet available on DVD.

ARTS & LEISURE

Build A Better Birdhouse for the Orange Country Fair

The Orange Arts and Culture Council is encouraging young and old alike to create a birdhouse to be entered in the Orange Country Fair. Birdhouses can be built from scratch or, if that's more creative than you can handle, purchase an unpainted birdhouse and paint away. All entries are welcome. Take a chance and enter an "object d'art."

Let your imagination run wild. Birdhouses might be humorous, whimsical, colorful or just plain "over the top" in design. Materials can be anything from a log to a cardboard box to an elegant wooden mini-mansion birdhouse. If painting isn't your thing, look around your house for materials that might enhance your design...artificial flowers, greeting cards cut up and glued onto the birdhouse, or get glitzy and use your old costume jewelry. Be imaginative and give the house a title or name that will bring a smile to those who see it. Entries are welcome from any individual - child or adult, group or family.

The Orange Country Fair will be held September 15 and 16. The bird-house division is Birdhouse Fun Department 17. Entry blanks can be found in the fair book which is available at the Town Hall and Case Memorial Library. Adult and Youth Entry blanks can also be downloaded from the web by going to OrangeCountryFair.com. Entry blanks can be found under the listing Departments.

For questions concerning the birdhouses, contact Liz Gesler at 203-795-

The Jamie A. Hulley Arts Foundation's Gala Benefit Presents The Broadway Boys

FAIRFIELD, Conn. - The unparalleled vocal styling and explosive onstage energy of The Broadway Boys comes to Fairfield University's Quick Center for the Arts on Saturday evening, September 8, 2012, when the Jamie A. Hulley Arts Foundation celebrates its 10th annual "Evening for the Arts" Gala Benefit. The performance begins at 7:30 p.m. and is preceded by a 6 p.m. reception with refreshments and Silent Auction. Tickets are $40 in advance and $45 at the door and available through the Quick Center Box Office.

The Broadway Boys is comprised of some of the most talented young male voices working on the New York stage today. The Boys are able to explore harmonies rarely presented by Broadway singers. The Broadway Boys originated in June of 2005, planning only to play a single night at a club in New York City. Encouraged by the overwhelming response, the Boys decided to focus and develop into the "symphony of sound" for which they have become known. Through their dynamic vocal prowess and redefining arrangements, the Boys add elements of pop, funk, Gospel, jazz, and folk to show tunes and classic pop songs. The musicians accompanying The Broadway Boys features Music Director Justin Paul on piano, Drew McKeon on drums, and Dan Asher on bass, who are all from Westport, CT, and Jeremy Goldsmith on guitar. The evening also features a special performance by artistic young people who have participated in the Jamie A. Hulley Arts Foundation's scholarship and grant programs. Master of Ceremonies is David Raffauf, the Foundation's co-founder & Vice President, who has served as emcee since the first benefit in 2003.

"During this 10th anniversary season, the Jamie A. Hulley Foundation has surpassed the $250,000 mark in money given out through its grant and scholarship programs," said Judy Primavera, Foundation co-founder and president. "In honor of this occasion, we will showcase many of the talented young people who have benefitted from our scholarships, arts grants to schools programs, and community grant programs." The first act includes performances by students from Racebrook School in Orange, CT, Amity High School's Creative Theatre Department, and performers from Square Foot Theatre in North Haven, CT. This year also features a commemorative ART IS LIFE tee shirt designed by 2012 Wesleyan University art thesis stipend winner Kamar Thomas.

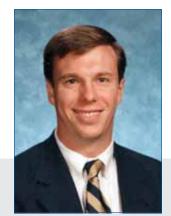

The "Evening for the Arts" reception includes complimentary wine, light hors d'oeuvres, and a Silent Auction with over 150 items, including a limited edition "Imagine Peace" jacket donated by Yoko Ono, a vacation getaway, theatre and sports tickets, including box seats to a Yankee-Red Sox game, Hollywood and sport memorabilia, vintage, handcrafted & designer items, and baskets of treats. Dessert will be provided by Carlos Bakery, as seen on TLC's "Cake Boss," and Jamie ARTinis are on the bar menu. The performance begins at 7:30 p.m.

The Jamie A. Hulley Arts Foundation is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization created in the memory of Orange, CT resident Jamie Alaine Hulley and dedicated to the educational enrichment and professional development of young artists and early career professionals. All proceeds from the gala go to support annual scholarships, grants, and educational programs in the arts which impact the lives of hundreds of children, teens and early career adults throughout the greater New Haven and Fairfield counties. The foundation awards grants to teachers in local public and parochial schools to bring professional artists, musicians, dancers, actors, and authors into the classroom to enhance the traditional curriculum through the arts. Thus far, Connecticut schools in Ansonia, Bethany, Bridgeport, Derby, East Haven, Fairfield, Orange, Manchester, New Haven, North Haven, Stratford, West Haven, Willimantic, and Woodbridge have received grants. At Amity High School, the foundation sponsors Amity's Creative Theatre, the visiting artist program, and the annual film festival. Four-year partial scholarships are awarded to Amity students in theater and studio art each year. The foundation also awards Community Grants to local non-profits such as the Milford Boys & Girls Club for an after-school art program, the Amity Teen Center for a mural project, the New England Ballet Company for a 20-week school-readiness-through-dance program for Bridgeport preschoolers, and the Square Foot Theatre in North Haven to develop successful youth and adult theater companies. The foundation provides scholarships to children for music lessons and summer theater camp.

Tickets can be purchased by calling the Box Office at 203-254-4010, or toll-free at 1-877-ARTS-396. The Regina A. Quick Center for the Arts is located on the campus of Fairfield University at 1073 North Benson Road in Fairfield, Connecticut. For information on the Jamie A. Hulley Arts Foundation, call 203-891-8869, or email: jamieart@snet.net.

Orange Teens Battle in "Iron Chef Competition"

By Laura Fantarella – Orange Town News Correspondent

Several Orange teens took on a sweet and decadent challenge earlier this month when they took part in the Case Memorial Library's first Iron Chef Competition.

The event, based on the Food TV's popular show of the same name, required the four young chefs to create their own unique dishes using a specific theme ingredient - in this case, cake, selected by librarian and host, Rebecca Harlow. The kids had a half hour to invent their own sugary confection, which was then put to a taste test by judges and proclaimed "foodies," Carolyn Kelly and Cathy Chacone.

Harlow initiated the cook off as part of the Summer Teen Reading program which encourages teens to read at least five books throughout July and August. "We try to host several fun events throughout the summer for local teens," Harlow said. "Many students go above and beyond the required reading."

The kids' eyes lit up like they were in, well a cake store, as they eyed the selections, chocolate, "fun" fetti, and Twinkles as the cake choices, and the array of decorative toppings like fudge frosting, m & m's, colored sprinkles, whipped cream, chocolate chips and more. As the clock began ticking, the room was quieter than the library itself as they set to work creating their tasty masterpieces.

Thirteen-year-old Evelyn Luciani, took a moment from perfecting her Twinkie decorated like an ice cream cone to say she likes to "design stuff and cooking kind of lets you do that." Olivia Kyasky, 12, and Matt Donofrio, 12, said they are fans of the Iron Chef television show and thought the challenge sounded like fun. "Whenever I watch the show I always think it would be fun to do that," Donofrio said. "I like to cook a lot at home." His brother, Evan, 9, also participated, creating a colorful layered cake of graham crackers, frosting, candy and funfetti.

The judges' had the difficult task of choosing just one winner based on the dessert's creativity, presentation and taste, but in the end they selected Matt Donofrio's "S'mores cake," which was layered with chocolate cake, chocolate frosting and marshmallow on a plate decorated with, what else? Chocolate! "It was a hard decision because all of the desserts were really creative. Each one had a unique vision," Chacone said.

Donofrio was all smiles as he posed with his cake. "I wouldn't mind being a chef when I grow up," he said.

"Dining with Susan"

Lushe's Diner & Restaurant

Americans have a long-abiding love of diners. These special restaurants are characterized by offering a wide range of comfort foods, mostly American, a casual atmosphere, a counter, and late operating hours. The first recorded diner was a horse-drawn wagon equipped to serve hot food to employees of the Providence Journal, in Providence, Rhode Island in 1872. Fast forward to 2012 and I am very pleased to report that Orange has a diner back in town, Lushe's Diner & Restaurant. Many nights after working late or attending evening meetings we just want a place that serves late where we can order a full course meal or something simple like an omelette, grilled cheese, bowl of soup, glass of wine or a homemade dessert. It is also nice to have (especially weekends) a restaurant to enjoy a leisurely breakfast in a pleasant, relaxed environment.

I had an opportunity to meet with the new owner of the diner, Lushe Gjuraj and she has an incredible success story. Lushe was born in Kosovo and came to Stamford, CT on July 6, 1986 when she was only 17 years old and barely spoke any English. This is definitely a classic American "rags to riches" story. She started as a minimum wage kitchen worker at a local diner in Stamford, peeling potatoes, cooking, waiting tables to opening & closing the diner. Eventually Lushe had her heart set on owning a diner herself but had to help move 22 of her relatives to Stamford from war-torn Kosovo and that set her back financially. With some help from family and friends she still managed to save enough money to buy Parkway Diner on High Ridge Road in Stamford. Lushe is very grateful to the country that gave her the opportunity to become a successful business owner. What an incredible journey and in addition to Lushe's in Orange & popular Parkway Diner she also owns Spazzio on Shippan Avenue in Stamford. Lushe's venture to our town was quite by accident. She was driving her younger children to Chucky Cheese in Orange one day and happened to notice the vacant diner on the Post Road. Her curiosity & tenacity peeked an interest in this location. She loved the décor but faced the obstacle of putting in a complete new kitchen. Lushe was definitely up for the challenge. After a lot of hard work and negotiations, Lushe's Diner & Restaurant opened on July 11, 2012. Lushe is extremely energetic, friendly, and very welcoming to all her customers. She is so excited to be in Orange and is looking forward to giving back to the community. Lushe is very involved with many non-profits in the Stamford area and hopes to do the same here in Orange.

Lushe has four children and her two older sons Mark & Mikel are assisting her with the new Orange location. The apple doesn't fall far from the tree as both of her sons have great customer service skills like their mother. She also brought her longtime chef from the Parkway Diner, Edgar Lopez to run the kitchen and Danielle White as Manager along with other friends and family. My first visit to the diner was a very pleasant experience. The staff was extremely accommodating and eager to please. I had a great sandwich called "Jennifer's Creation" featuring smoked turkey, apples, brie cheese (my favorite), on a multigrain bread. This is served with a salad or fries. I also sampled one of the diner's "house made cinnamon donuts". Definitely a guilty pleasure that I highly recommend. My guest opted for breakfast and had two eggs over easy with ham & rye toast. Both of us thoroughly enjoyed our meals as everything was very fresh, served hot, and nicely presented. We love our comfort food!! The competitively priced menu has many choices including house specials. Beer and wine are also available.

Open7 days - Hours Monday-Sunday 7:00am - 10:00pm - All major credit cards - Handicapped accessible - Kid's menu - Catering for all occasions on or off premises - Separate area for meetings & special events.

Lushe's Diner & Restaurant – 285 Boston Post Road, Orange, CT 06477 – Phone 203-553-9050 – Website: Lusheonline.com.

Final notes: Lushe, her family and staff are eager to please the residents of Orange and surrounding communities. As I said above, Lushe wants to get involved in our community, so feel free to reach out to her. PLEASE remember to support our local FAMILY OWNED businesses. Make a visit soon to our latest addition to the dining scene in Orange. If you have a favorite restaurant, please e-mail: susan@ orangetownnews.com.

Treat Farm - A Family Tradition

by Courtney Zorena

On Old Tavern Road, amongst the picturesque houses and rolling hills, lies Treat Farm, a beautiful and well-maintained farm that has been in Orange and owned by the same family for generations.

Although the exact date when the Treat Family started their farm is unknown, they do know that their records date back to the 1600's. The passion of the family, traditions, and upkeep has been passed down through generations. "Our grandparents, Charles and Addie, owned it as a dairy farm. We chose to now just grow vegetables and Christmas trees for the winter," said Jeff Wilson.

The farm is not a one person job. The entire family participates. "My wife, Carrie, really takes care of the Christmas trees. But she helps me with the vegetables as well, so it's a team effort. Our whole family helps out." said Wilson. Also, the fall is really a time when Treat Farm comes to life. This is the third year the corn maze has been done and is extremely successful.

In addition, through September and October, up until Halloween, hay rides are a huge attraction. "The hay rides really bring in a lot of families because their children love it. They are really popular along with the corn mazes," said Wilson.

Not only are the corn mazes and hay rides available in the fall, the farm stand always sells the freshest vegetables to its customers. "Our farm stand serves a freshly picked large variety of vegetables that are perfect for a great meal," said Wilson. The summer hours started Saturday, July 21st. It is open Saturday and Sunday ten am to six pm and Monday through Friday one to six pm.

New England School of Montessori's Graduation Day was held on June 8th at 40 Quirk Road in Milford. Festivities included an International Pot-luck Luncheon, the Circle of Life was performed by the elementary students and the school Band provided background music for the event. The students were honored by all of their parents and teachers for their academic and developmental growth, which was acheived using the world renowned Montessori Method of education.

HISTORY CORNER

With Ginny Reinhard

It Helps to Have a Good "Eye"

What exactly does it mean to "have a good eye?" What is interesting about various sayings is that each generation puts its own spin on an already accepted word and it automatically identifies the user as a member of a certain social or historical group. If we define eye as a human organ then it's the two spheres that we use to see with. If we "doll" up our eyes with fancy colored lashes, sparkles and shadow then "good eye" would be better described as groovy eye and would most likely come from the appropriate member of society, the teenager and would sound silly from a grandparent.

So exactly what does it mean to "have a good eye?" Simply, it means to be perceptive with an ability to pick out good things about something, its arrangement or appearance appropriate to the setting or place it belongs. The late John Burk and his wife Arlene were once the proprietors of the Towne Shop, an antique shop housed in the 1685 Col. Stephen Ford homestead in Milford. Spotting the unusual and the authentic takes "a good eye" and recent donations from Mrs. Burk and her daughter Susan Chernock have given the Orange Historical Society a new exhibit.

Sitting among their donations for the society's antique shop was a gilded frame, somewhat the worse for wear as its age was no doubt more than 40 years but the lovely blue flowers on yellowed paper shown like a star. The Burks, with their "good eye", had found what has become a series of watercolors, which with the "good eye" of the society, was found to be original artwork from the 19th century Orange citizen, Emily Prudden (1832-1917).

Emily Catherine Prudden, who was the direct descendent of Rev. Peter Prudden, head of the 1638 Milford Colony left Orange after bringing up the children of a sister who died in early life, Emily sought to find another purpose and commitment for the greater good. With her own funds, she moved away in 1878 and by 1882, she realized her personal goal in the establishments of schools for needy communities, 16 in all, most of which were located in western North Carolina. Her accomplishments were all the more remarkable in the light of the fact that at the age of 17, she became deaf.

She would operate these schools, again using her own funds and within a few years turn them over to a church or Mission then go on to another community in need. At the time of the writing of the History of Orange by Mary Woodruff in 1949, Emily had been responsible for three of the schools having achieved a higher level of education with Skyland Institute, Lincoln Academy and Saluda Seminary in North Carolina. Lincoln Academy is of particular interest as it was opened

The Administration Building

nteresting solely for African American girls at Kings Mountain in 1886. Increasing enrollment required a new school building and dormitories to be built and by 1939 her dream came to fruition when the school she founded became accredited by the State Department of Education. Lincoln was closed in 1955 when public schools were available to black students.

She recruited teachers from the north with the students attending from fall through spring with religious training as part of the curriculum. None of the schools bore her name as she asked for neither repayment nor recognition for her efforts. Children flocked to the schools in great numbers and she was quoted to have said, "I would take them all, buy more beds, tables, dishes and school books." Her feeling was that one could build a home (boarding school) in some lovely place and take 15 girls and train them as your own and send them out to useful lives.

Her greatest success was the establishment of Oberlin Home and School in 1898. Here the seeds of her dreams to educate those who were denied an education became Pfeiffer College ultimately Pfeiffer University in Misenheimer, NC. A statue of Emily stands proudly on the campus and her portrait hangs in the student center. It is estimated that more than 10,000 students passed through her schools and the number is increasing as Pfeiffer University forges ahead with full undergraduate and graduate degrees.

If there ever was leisure time in Emily's life, it was devoted to painting, flowers mostly. Using watercolors she captured the beauty and serenity of nature and the one element that caught our "eye" was the dark, forest green she used in her leaves and stems. At this time, the Orange Historical Society has three of Emily's watercolors verified by the art department at Pfeiffer University with at least 5 or 6 others waiting for authentication. The three are framed and on display at The Academy* in what is known as the "Orange" room. The University owns the majority of her work but is easier its knowledge and is very glad that more of her work has ger to share its knowledge and is very glad that more of her work has become available. Several years ago, the art department of Pfeiffer made copies of some of her sketches for the society to sell and these have been matted and are available to the public.

Ginny Reinhard is president of the Orange Historical Society.

Wine Talk

With Ray Spaziani

Great White Wines

Germany has a reputation as the producer of the world's greatest white wines. Historically this is based on the supremacy of a small region called The Rheingau. The Rheingau has the longest history of quality winemaking of any region in Germany. This region is a continuous slope located in front of the Tanus Mountains that are heavily forested. This blocks the cold northern winds and makes an ideal location for growing vines.

The leading grape of the Rheingau is riesling. Most of Germany's riesling are grown in the famous Mosel region. The Rheingau riesling is richer and rounder, earthier and more voluptuous than those from the Mosel region. Violets and honey, cassis and apricots jump to mind when you think in terms of the wines from this wonderful region. Sun, soil, and latitude make the difference. The Rheingau is farther south than the Mosel. Its long, south-facing bank rises up from the river which acts like a giant sunlight reflector.

The most famous village in Rheingau is Johannisberg. This berg was named for Saint John the Baptist. During the 19th century German immigrants to the US brought cuttings from Johannisberg. Today many rieslings in the United States are labeled Johannisberg riesling.

Several dozen producers in the region are members of Charta, an association in the Rheingau devoted to making dry rieslings. Charta riesling must pass a series of stringent quality tests. These wines all share a common bottle and capsule and display the Charta logo. This is a double Romanesque arch. The other important grape of the Rheingau is Spatburgunder. This grape makes a pale, spicy red with a kind of bitter-almond flavor (Pinot noir). The most famous Spatburgunder comes from the village of Assmannshausen and are expensive.

The Rheingau is the only German wine region that has vineyard classification system. It awards a "first growth" to the top vineyards. To be classified as a first growth wine the vineyard must grow only riesling or spatburgunder and must meet exacting standards, including passing a sensory test before it can be labeled first growth or "Erstes Gewachs" and bear the logo of three double Romanesque arches.

The Rheingau is a visitor's dream in that fine wine estates are numerous and welcoming. One of the most famous is the Kloster Eberbach, a monastery founded in 1135 by Cistercian monks. It was one of the most successful, creative wine estates of the Middle Ages, a reputation it held for the subsequent seven centuries. Located in Eltville, today it is the cultural wine center of the Rheingau and the home of the German Wine Academy which offer tastings and classes.

Before the summer passes, try some wonderful dry German Johannisberg riesling from the Rheingau wine estates. Fine liquor stores will have it or order it for you. You will be glad you did!

Will Tax Cuts Sunset in 2013?

By Roberta L. Nestor

Last fall Congress wasted a fair amount of time deciding whether or not to extend the infamous "Bush Tax Cuts" that were enacted in the year 2001. Unable to come to an agreement (no surprise there), these tax cuts were extended through the end of this year. And, here we are again, waiting for

Dollars and sense

Congress to make a decision or amendment to these tax cuts. If nothing is done, they will "sunset" and expire on December 31st of 2012.

The two major tax cuts of the Bush era were the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, aka EGTRRA and the Jobs and

Growth Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2003. These two laws cut taxes across the board for earned income and long-term capital gains and dividends. The legislation also expanded the child tax credit and made dozens of other changes and adjustments to the tax code involving exemptions, deductions and the marriage penalty.

What does that mean to you? Will you be affected if the Bush tax cuts sunset and we revert back pre Bush tax laws? If Congress does nothing, everyone will be affected in some form. Here are some of the ways you could be affected.

Tax Brackets

Currently we have, 10%, 15%, 25%, 28%, 33% and 35%, based on income levels. If no extension is passed and signed into law, then the pre-2001 tax rates will go back into effect starting in tax year 2013. The 10% bracket would disappear, and those taxpayers would move up to the 15% bracket which would apply to all incomes below $34,550. The other tax rates would increase to 28%, 31%, 36% and 39.6% for the highest earners making more than $379,650.

Capital Gains and Dividends

Prior to EGTRRA, long term capital gains were taxed at $20\,\%$. Dividends were taxed as ordinary income which before the Bush tax cuts could have been as high as $39.6\,\%$, depending on your tax bracket. Today, qualifying dividends (those earned from stocks or equities) are taxed at $10\,\%$ or a maximum of $15\,\%$ depending on your bracket.

Estate Taxes

Tax years 2010 through 2012 are based on the Tax Relief, Unemployment Insurance Reauthorization, and Job Creation Act ("TRA 2010") that was signed into law by President Obama on December 17, 2010. This law is only good for two years and so will sunset on December 31, 2012, meaning that on January 1, 2013, the federal estate tax exemption and rate will default to the numbers that were in effect in 2001/2002. The uncertainty of how estates will be taxed has made planning difficult. Currently, estates less than $5,120,000 are exempt from estate taxes. If nothing changes, starting in 2013 estates in excess of $1 million will be taxed at 55%.

Personal Exemption

Another important tax break was the elimination of the phase out of the personal exemption which was gradually eliminated over time. If no extension is passed before the end of this year, then the phase out will resume at incomes above $122,500. There was also a phase out for itemized deductions that was eliminated by the Bush tax cuts and these will also kick back in. Some taxpayers may lose as much as 80% of their itemized deductions if their income is too high.

So, we will all have to stay tuned to see if Congress will take any action. They could do nothing and all will revert to the pre-Bush levels, or they could decide to extend them (again), or they just might amend some of the provisions...time will tell.

Jennifer Lawrence in "Hunger Games"

EDITOR'S NOTE: New DVDs reviewed in this column will be available in stores the week of August 13t, 2012.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Hunger Games" (PG-13) -- For those new to this, Hunger Gaming involves putting children into an arena full of weapons and traps, then making them fight to the death. It's the dystopian future, you see, and the ruling district demands that each of the outlying districts give up one boy and one girl to the Hunger Games. Katniss (Jennifer Lawrence) is a 16-year-old girl who happens to be an expert archer thanks to her hunting experience.

For an action-centric adaptation, it fumbles with the action but does a good job with the chemistry between Katniss and Peeta, her tribute. It's an odd kind of tension between two teenagers who realize that only one of them can survive, and it works.

"The Raid" (R) -- Their cover blown, a handful of police are trapped in a slum high rise teeming with thugs, goons and lowlifes readying themselves for war. It's up to a rookie on the SWAT team to use every ounce of strength to rescue his comrades and complete the mission. This Indonesian import is a towering inferno of action. If Karate and Kung Fu no longer do it for you, Indonesia has its own traditional martial art. It's called Pencak Silat, and it looks awesome on a movie screen.

"Tonight You're Mine" (R) -- This romantic comedy is horribly contrived at the start, but becomes charming over time. A scuffle backstage at Scotland's biggest music festival ends with two preening rockers handcuffed together. Wouldn't ya know it, they start out hating the situation, and end up falling in love. If you can handle the silly plot mechanism -- and all of the dirty music festival people -- you have a chance at enjoying this movie.

DOG OF THE WEEK

"Hick" (R) -- By all accounts, this should have been a really good movie. The director, Derick Martini, showed hints of skill in his last movie ("Lvmelife"), the cast is good, and the script was written by the author of the book that was being adapted. Alas, "Hick" is tough to watch and doesn't have much payoff.

Luli (Chloe Moretz) is all of 13 years old when she leaves her drunkard parents with nothing but some cash and a handgun in her purse. She meets a creepy cowboy named Eddie (Eddie Redmayne) and a vapid cocaine-addicted young lady (Blake Lively.) From there, Luli just keeps running into the same people and in worsening circumstances. We don't get any true glimpse into her character or anything meaningful. Just oodles of creepiness.

HOLLYWOOD -- While everyone on magazine shows is talking about the Tom Cruise/Katie Holmes split. the pre-nup, how skillfully Katie pulled off the break, how Cruise is weathering it all ... the rumor mill already has moved on. Insiders are speculating that he's being consoled by his "Mission: Impossible -- Ghost Protocol" co-star and "special" friend Jeremy Renner. Renner, twice Oscar nominated for "The Hurt Locker" (2009) and "The Town" (2010), featured in "Thor" and "The Avengers," and making it big with "The Bourne Legacy," has developed a "special" bond with Cruise.

For some time, the Internet has buzzed about Renner's "special" friendship with actor Kristoffer Winters, his partner in a house-flipping business. Winters is best known for Renner's film "The Hurt Locker," "Dude, Where's My Car" and "Contact." You have to draw your own conclusions about rumors, but there's usually some truth underlying them. Funny how time has a way of making the truth come out into the open!

What if you were having dinner with a friend at a celebrity hangout like the Chateau Marmont Hotel in Hollywood, and Lindsey Lohan, who knows your friend, asks to sit at your table until hers is ready? Then she's joined by a friend -- Lady Gaga. That actually happened to a friend of mine, who became completely dumbfounded, later explaining, "I didn't know what to say to either of them! Everyone in the room was staring at us. I couldn't wait for their table to be ready!"

Apparently, Lady Gaga has taken Lindsey under her wing to help her get back on track, now that "Liz & Dick," about Elizabeth Taylor and

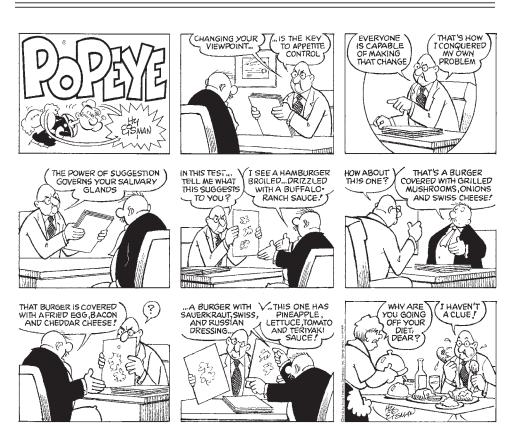

Jeremy Renner

Richard Burton," is in the can. My advice to my friend was, "Don't worry; with two ladies like Lindsey Lohan and Lady Gaga, you'd never get a word in edgewise anyway!"

While most of us are trying to stretch our paycheck to cover our bills, some of our favorite television stars are living high on the hog. Simon Cowell pulls in $40 million, David Letterman makes $31 million, Matt Lauer is getting $25 million and Bill O'Reilly gets $16 million. Ryan Seacrest sees $15 million from "American Idol" alone, without what he gets from The E Network and his radio shows. Jon Stewart gets $14 million from "The Daily Show," while Stephen Colbert makes only $4.5 million, Jimmy Kimmel earns $6 million and Ellen DeGeneres makes a mere $5 million. But the biggest paycheck of all goes to "Judge Judy" Sheindlin, who is making a whopping $45 million a year. Apparently talk is cheap, but sitting in judgment is where it's at if you want to make the big bucks!

The players on the team are D.J. Kish, Gerald Farace, Danny Kruger, Matt Daddio, Max Hurwitz, Zach Chamberlain, Tim Brown, James Smith, Colby Santos, Tim Fox Jr., Mike Clark and Adam Spragg. Orange swept a team from Somers in a best-of-three series to advance to regional's with a 9-1 victory on July 25 and a 5-3 win on July 27. The tournament started on August 3, Orange opened up play in the double-elimination tournament on August 4.

Orange Post 127 Eliminated From American Legion State Tournament

After finishing second in Zone 2, the 19-5 Orange Post 127 team had to win a play-in game to advance to the 16-team, double-elimination American Legion state tournament. It did just that, knocking off Willimantic 5-1 on July 22. A 5-0 win over Hartford propelled them into the next round, but back-to-back losses to Avon and RCP quickly ended Post 127's tournament Playing on July 30 at Muzzy Field in Bristol, Orange took a 1-0 lead over Avon in the bottom of the fifth after a Niall Dammando sacrifice fly. But Avon evened the score in the sixth. After getting the first two outs of the frame, Mike Concato allowed the game-tying run. Brian Speer came on in the seventh and the Avon bats rallied again — this time for three runs. Speer hit the first batter he faced in Ben Lombard, then committed an error on a Daniel Sheiker bunt. With runners on second and third, Liam O'Connor drove in the first run on an RBI groundout. After Speer hit his second batter of the inning in Connor Doyle, Matt Koenig doubled in Sheiker. A wild pitch from Speer led to the final Avon run.

Orange got a base runner in both the seventh and eighth innings, but was unable to capitalize. That loss sent Orange into the loser's bracket. Playing against RCP in the nightcap, Post 127 fell 4-1 again, ending its season.

Amity's Laemel Taking It One Step at A Time

By Stephen Bailey

One step at a time. For Ryan Laemel, that's the goal this year. A decorated distance runner at Amity, the 2010 graduate is a national champion after running on the Spartans' 4 x mile team in the indoor 2009 season. He broke school records in the two mile, 3000 meters, 5000m and 1600m (indoor), and won state championships in cross country, indoor and outdoor track.

But now entering his junior year at Yale, Laemel is adjusting his stride. He's focused on the short-term challenges. By completing each of those, he'll in turn tackle the more difficult and daunting ones. "It's funny that you ask about my future goals, because one of my goals for this year is to not think too far ahead," Laemel said. "It's a mistake to look too far ahead. Sure, I have goals for track, like breaking 8:10 in the 3,000m run and 14:00 in the 5,000m run, and scoring points for our team at the Ivy League Championship, but there's a time and a place to worry about track, that's December through June on the oval."

Since leaving Amity, Laemel has continued his standout career as a Bulldog. Maintaining the same meticulous work ethic he's always displayed, he was Yale's fastest runner at the New England Championships last fall and enters this season with a new mindset that he believes will yield even greater results — like sticking on the right shoulder of senior cross country captain Kevin Lunn.

This summer he's already instilled this new methodology in his training. "Right now my mind is set on having a great cross country season," Laemel said. "I'm putting in a lot of miles on my feet and on my bike as well as a lot of yards in the pool, with the hope of being one of our top runners this cross country season."

From a team perspective, Laemel said the Bulldogs are emphasizing racing to their potential every race. Last year, inconsistency plagued the Bulldogs. Glimpses of that capability, like his eighth-place finish at the Ivy League Indoor Championships, were there, but this year, Laemel expects a strong team performance at each meet. "I believe we'll run to our potential every time we race this year," he said. "When we do that, we'll be one of the top three teams in the Ivy League. That's this year's primary goal: to finish in the top three at the Ivy League Championship. We have the talent and heart to do it, plus a great coaching and training staff to see us through. After the Ivy League Championship, we would like to qualify for national as a team—something Yale hasn't done in well over a decade."

The future is bright for Laemel. He's overcome a bruised heel bone, suffered while training for the steeplechase, and works closely with the coaches and trainers to develop a safe, but rigorous workout regimen. He said this year he would like to become a consistent scorer for Yale, place in the top 20 of the Northeast Regional meet and earn first-team All-Ivy honors. All those goals are achievable for him with the one-step-at-a-time mentality. But even he can't help but dream big. Laemel aspires that one day his career allows him to actively reflect upon Yale rather than Amity; to race at the highest stage like those in London are now. Said Laemel: "Of course I dream of running in the Olympics. Who doesn't? But right now it's cross country season and I couldn't be more excited."

State Champions

In only its second year competing in the 16-year-old level of Senior League baseball, the All-Star team from Orange has won a state championship. Orange defeated a team from Somers, Conn., in a best of three championship series and now advances to play in the Eastern Regional tournament in West Deptford, N.J. beginning Saturday, August 2nd, against the host team from New Jersey. Senior League is governed by Little League in Williamsport, Pa. Orange defeated Somers 9-1 on Wednesday, July 25 and then 5-3 on Friday, July 27 to win the state title, quite an accomplishment for a town that's only competed at this level of Senior League for two years.

Orange Girls Swim in CT Championship Meet

It started when two young girls, Mia Zajac and Vera Belfonti, both from Orange happened to be in the same swim lesson class at the Orange High Plains Community Pool as preschoolers. Their passion for swimming began there and then, while in second grade together at Racebrook School, they decided to try out for the Amity Regional Aquatic Club (ARAC) swim team in Orange. They loved it and since then they have been swimming together for both the short-course and long-course swim seasons 10 months out of the year with ARAC. Thanks to the wonderful coaching and guidance from their ARAC coaches and lots of practice, Mia and Vera, now age 10, each qualified for four long-course swimming events this summer and went to the CT Age Group Championship meet in Cheshire this July (pictured here). The girls look forward to continuing to swim and compete with ARAC this fall!

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Relationships continue to thrive, but watch for any telltale signs of potential problems. Take needed action now to set things straight before they become troublesome later.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your powers of persuasion, backed up, of course, by your considerable expertise, help you establish your case even to the most dubious decisionmakers in your workplace.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might still be a bit reluctant to face up to some less-than-pleasant realities. But the sooner you accept the facts, the sooner you can set about making some needed changes.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Expect to make adjustments, even when things seem locked up and ready to go. But cheer up: At least one change could lead to something you've been hoping for.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The success of a recent project should do a lot to boost your self-confidence. You might want to start now to check out ways to make that long-deferred bigger and bolder move.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Ease up on the pressure you might be putting on the new person in your life. It takes time for a budding relationship to blossom. Show more patience and understanding.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You have lots of inner strength in reserve. Use some of it to resist intimidation from those who might try to impose on your good nature for their own reasons.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The good news is that your onthe-job status is improving. The one cautionary note, however, involves a personal situation you might have been ignoring for too long.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Congratulations. Once again, your sharp Sagittarian "horse sense" helps you work through a complicated situation that would leave most people confused.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Plan on indulging yourself in some well-earned good times through much of the week. Then be prepared to face some thought-provoking issues by the 18th.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February

18) Positive factors continue to dominate following a recent change in both your professional and personal lives. Expect to make contact with someone from your past.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Workplace stability allows you to continue making progress on your projects. But don't ignore your personal life. Spend more quality time with those special folks.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have the gift for making people feel special. Maybe because you know how special you are.

Ban Pit Bulls?

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I've been reading recent reports that some communities in the United States are trying to ban certain breeds of dogs, like pit bulls. I think this is a great idea, because pit bulls are so unpredictable and violent. Do you agree? -- Carol in Tacoma, Wash.

DEAR CAROL: Nope, I don't agree. That's because completely banning specific dog breeds won't solve the problem of dog bites and attacks.

Even dogs of breeds considered benign can attack humans or other dogs -- poodles being the first that come to mind. But, you argue, poodles aren't violent! Well -- unfortunately, I've met a few. The fact is, all breeds of dog have the potential to bite humans. Owners must be aware of and accept this possibility.

I try to educate pet owners about better ways to care for their pets. In the case of dog attacks, I feel that education of the owner is the strongest deterrent. That education should start before a person even becomes a dog owner, so that he or she can make the best choice of dog for the household. A pit bull or other type of guard or attack dog may not be ideal for a number of reasons beyond possible temperament: They're big dogs; they're powerful; they need lots of attention and training, no matter how nice they appear to be.

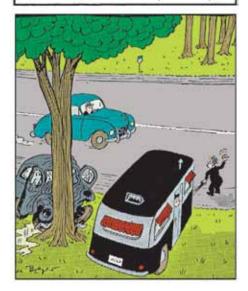

Dog owners of all breeds -- not just those considered "dangerous" -need to know the specific behavioral issues of their breed. They need to train their dog, and socialize the dog with both other humans and other dogs. The best way to learn how to do this is to enroll in group training classes with a certified trainer, an investment that pays off all the way down the road.
