

Three Weeks In, Amity Reports Its First Infection

By Bettina Thiel Orange Town News Correspondent

Amity School Supt. Dr. Jennifer Byars informed the school community on Friday, September 18, that a member of the community had tested positive for coronavirus. In her letter to parents Dr. Byars did not specify whether the affected person was a student or a teacher. All she said was that the person had been attending school four days prior, on Monday of that week.

"The affected person has been instructed to remain home in self-isolation for 10 days and has been provided with additional instructions to follow prior to returning to school," she wrote. "Family members have also been instructed to self-quarantine and get tested." The students were expected to return to school as of this week. case through a state data site, the Orange Health Department has reached out to anyone considered a "close contact," which typically means people who have been in the vicinity of the infected person for more than 15 minutes. That can be those listed on the sports roster of an athlete, the classmates of a student or similar groups.

"With cohorting [as is being done in the elementary and middle schools] contact tracing is much easier," said Orange Health Director Dr. Amir Mohammad. The younger students are staying together in one classroom for much of the day, while at Amity the

Last Call To Join The Orange Army

Be Part of the "Fire Truck $50K Challenge"

"Neighbors helping neighbors" is more than a motto for the Orange Volunteer Fire Department (OVFD), it's the calling card of all Orange Citizens. To chip in. To help out. To be there when a neighbor – perhaps unknown at the outset – is in time of need.

Today Orange stands proud of this achievement in support of its neighbors, the OVFD. From a family supporting the "challenge" with a lemonade stand, which raised a substantial amount for the firefighters, to business and individual Platinum sponsors and with everyone in between, our community has stepped up. Right now, "THE ORANGE ARMY" stands at 546 donors strong and has contributed over $120,000. of the Orange Board of Finance. "We started with an idea. We organized. We set up a GoFundMe website. We put up colorful signs. We stood at the Dump. And we asked people to join us." And the key success factor? "Hard work. Organization. Getting the word out." said Leahy. "Doing one good thing EVERY Day."

Of course, Orange is more than these established events, as they are more the reflection of the Town's inner spirit. The Town was built -- historically and by necessity -- on taking care of its own. Be it family. Be it your Church or your Synagogue. Your school. Your neighbor. And that spirit is far more silent than showy, a quiet reserve which only adds to its authenticity.

Did You Know? There's More Than One Kind of Trust

You may find this surprising! There are different types of trusts for different types of goals.

- A Testamentary Trust is a Trust created in a Will. Although you create it when you sign your Will, it is not activated until after you have died. Management and administration of a Testamentary Trust is supervised by the Probate Court.
- A Revocable Trust, also called a Living Trust, is activated when you sign it. Management and supervision is handled privately. The Probate Court is not involved unless Court intervention is requested by a beneficiary or other party in interest. Because it is revocable, you can change it any time you choose.
- An Irrevocable Trust is also activated when you sign it and is a separate taxpayer. Since that is the case, putting an asset into an Irrevocable Trust gets it out of your name. This is done for tax planning or asset protection purposes. As the name suggests, an Irrevocable Trust cannot be changed any time you choose, which allows it to accomplish tax and asset protection goals.
- A trust for young children or grandchildren is created to allow a more experienced and more sophisticated person to make investment and spending decisions for young children or grandchildren until they are at least 18, but more typically until they are 25, 30, 35, or even older.
- A Special Needs Trust (SNT) is created for a person with a disability. Assets in the SNT can be used for the disabled beneficiary to supplement what he/she receives from a government benefit program such as SSI or Medicaid (Ti-tle XIX). The assets in the SNT are not deemed owned by or available to the beneficiary.

If you have questions about Trusts, we would be happy to speak with you during a no-charge initial consultation, no matter how long it lasts.

Don't Fall Behind in 2020

By Roberta L Nestor

"Disruption" seems to be another new phrase for 2020. Did any of us plan for our lives to be this disrupted for such a long period of time? We understand that each of us are all in the same boat these days and that as families, we are experiencing extreme circumstances. As the world keeps turning, many of us have stood still. We are waking up and realizing the many things we haven't tended to in 2020 and how easy it is to neglect important things.

Don't let yourself fall behind on these important matters:

- The date for being able to file for Free Application for Student Aid (FASFA) is October 1, 2020. This applies to anyone who is a high school senior or older and planning on or already attending college. Do not wait to file! FASFA has a limited budget and aid is first come, first served. The high unemployment rate in the U.S. may translate into more families needing federal aid.
- 2. Contributions to your ROTH or other non-employer sponsored retirement plans should continue. If you are under age 50, you can contribute a maximum ROTH contribution of $6,000 and if you are over age 50, you can contribute a maximum of $7,000. We all have to continue to save for our future and most ROTH plans are flexible with low minimums.
- 3. If you are experiencing job insecurity and concerned you might be forced to take an early retirement do not wait until it happens. Meet with your financial advisor so you will have an idea of what income would be available to you in the event of an unplanned retirement.
- 4. Don't forget about contributions to 529 College Savings Plans—all as there may be fewer tax deductions—lack of meetings, conferences, entertainment, advertising, and other work-related expenses that you probably did not incur this year. Talk to your tax advisor about offsetting expenses you normally would have had by contributing to a retirement plan. SEPS and Single-K plans are unique to self-employed individuals.

- 6. When is the last time you had your will reviewed? Is everything up to date? Check your 401k and other investment plans to make sure your beneficiaries are current and express what you want to happen in the event of death.
- 7. Do you have a current Power of Attorney? Does your family know about it? COVID-19 also brought to light the issues involving the appointment of a Health Care Agent. If you are unable to make medical decisions for yourself, who will?
- 8. Do you have a living will? This is a legal document that tells others what your personal choices are about end-of-life medical treatment. It spells out the procedures you want (or do not want) used to prolong life if you are unable to communicate this directly to your doctors.

There are endless "things" that have slipped through the cracks this year; however, there is still time before the end of the year to make sure you don't fall behind.

Student Supports Maloney Re-Election

As a student and resident of Milford, I fully support James Maroney's reelection bid for State Senate. Aside from being one of the most friendly and accessible public figures in Hartford, Senator Maroney is passionate about serving his constituents. If you have a question about any aspect of the state politics, Senator Maroney will be sure to send you a genuine response as quickly as possible.

In addition, as chair of the Veteran's Affairs and General Law committees, Senator Maroney has introduced and passed numerous pieces of legislation with overwhelming bipartisan support. In times of severe political polarization, Senator Maroney is exactly what Connecticut needs at the Capitol. It is impossible to find someone in Hartford on either side of the aisle that does not speak highly about James' work ethic.

Senator Maroney is a valued representative of the 14th State Senate district and it is vital that he gets reelected on November 3, 2020. Matt Zancewicz

One Party Rule In Connecticut Has Failed

In the aftermath of the Great Recession of 2008, both Barack Obama (2009 to 2017) and Donald Trump (2017 to present) led one of the longest economic recoveries in history. Unfortunately, this recovery was thwarted by the COVID-19 pandemic in early 2020. There has been much debate about who deserves credit, but both Presidents deserve some credit for this consistent growth prior to the pandemic and both bear some responsibility for the unprecedented growth in federal deficits generated in fueling this growth. During the period of sustained economic growth from 2009 to 2019, the nation's personal income levels grew annually by an average rate of nearly 2.2%. During this same period of time, Connecticut's personal income levels grew by slightly more than .7% annually or approximately a third of the national growth rate. The Connecticut personal income growth rate was the lowest in the country (50th). If the personal income levels of our residents had grown at the national average over the aforementioned period of time, incomes would be approximately 16% higher at the end of the period. If Connecticut feels less affordable than it did a decade ago, this is one of the reasons why.

Other indicators such as employment growth and real gross state product during this same period were close to the worst in the country as well. Connecticut simply did not share in the robust economic growth of the rest of the nation. Of course, this is the result of our state's overspending, crushing debt, high taxes, unfriendly business policies and misguided public policy. We simply cannot afford another decade of these harmful policies that have been implemented through "one party" domination of Connecticut.

In a post-COVID-19 environment, we all should hope for another period of economic growth regardless of who is elected President in the November election. If we have learned anything in the past decade though, Connecticut's one party-controlled state legislature has proven to be inept regardless of which party occupies the White House. As residents of Connecticut, we shouldn't expect different results if we continue to elect the same party to majority rule of our state.

Before it is too late, Connecticut needs to reduce wasteful spending, eliminate fraud and abuse, solve our crushing health care costs, do away with crippling regulations and stop the seemingly never-ending pandering to special interests. We must also strategically reduce taxes wherever and whenever possible in harmony with getting our long-term debt burden un-

Volunteer As English Language Tutor To Local Immigrants

Make a difference in someone else's life! Did you know there are more than 15,000 people in Milford and Stratford without a high school diploma? Did you know there are more than 1,600 adults who are not fluent in English? Did you know there are 46 non-English languages spoken in these cities? (Data taken from the Milford and Stratford School District Strategic School Profile, 2012-2013.)

TUTOR TRAINING classes will be held in person and on ZOOM. Classes will be held in the FALL, 2020. Call for dates!

Volunteer tutors will learn techniques to assist ESL students with dialogue, listening comprehension, oral fluency, phonics, reading comprehension and writing skills. No previous teaching experience required! All prospective tutors will be interviewed in advance. For further information, call The Literacy office between the hours of 9 a.m. – 2 p.m. at 203-878-4800.

Literacy Volunteers is part of the ProLiteracy network of adult basic education and literacy programs. ProLiteracy is working with its member programs to raise awareness of available ESL services. "Non-English speakers in the U.S. can fall behind in education or employment in an already challenging job market," said David C. Harvey, president and CEO of ProLiteracy. "Language barriers can also prevent them from understanding important financial, educational, health care, employment or legal rights issues. By raising awareness of our members' ESL programs, adults in need will know where to find resources that can help them gain skills to address everyday matters." ## Orange Schools Off to a Strong Start

By Melissa Nicefaro Orange Town News Correspondent

Orange school administrators voiced high accolades for teachers, staff, students, and the greater community at its monthly Board of Education meeting on September 21, as the fourth full week of school was about to begin. "I am happy to report that we have begun our fourth week of school. We have been reflecting on where we have done well and where we need to do better," Superintendent of Schools Vince Scarpetti says.

"What started in the summer extended to the whole community. I can't thank our parents enough for their patience, especially during dropoff and pickup during these first few weeks. That needed everyone's patience," he jokes.

He thanked the Orange Congregational Church for working with the kindergarten for parking, the department of public works for helping with limbs and trees down after the tropical storm, as well as for getting fields prepared for outdoor play. He thanked the boards of education, selectmen, and finance and our first selectman, all for being prepared without knowing a pandemic was coming.

"We had the Chrome Books to be prepared. And I can't imagine what Race Brook School would have looked like if we had to do this drop-off and pickup in the old parking lot!" he says. Scarpetti says it has been a true community effort. "We want to remind our parents and our staff about our honesty – we ask students and faculty to please stay home if you are not feeling well. It's an honor system that we have to go by, to build on our success thus far," he says.

Between 10-10.5% of students are learning remotely, with the other 90% in classrooms. "We started at around 12-13%, so we have seen more students return back," Scarpetti says.

Director of Facilities Mike Gray echoed Scarpetti's sentiments. "Heading into the fourth week, it makes me really proud to have the privilege of being able to serve the community of Orange and to see the dedication day in and day out of all of the staff – the kitchen staff, custodial staff, teachers, paraprofessionals."

He says that walking through the buildings on a daily basis, the children are doing an amazing job. "They really want to be in school and they're doing everything they can to stay in school. They are washing their hands all of the time; they are wearing their masks and they're following directions. It's evident that parents practiced this summer," he says.

During her presentation to the board, Curriculum Director Evelyn Russo also shared thanks. "I would also like to thank our teachers for their passion, flexibility, and hard work in supporting our students, remote and in person. I'd also like to thank our students, who continue to be enthusiastic with all of the mitigating strategies in place. It's been a pleasure to interact with so many of them and hear them share that they are happy to be back in school."

body in school at a time. With fewer students in the building, the school can reduce the risk of the virus ripping through the community. He said the high school will probably have to keep teaching in the hybrid model until a vaccination is widely available.

The health department did not require the school to close as a result of that one case, and Dr. Muhammad was not aware that any other cases had occurred since then. "I hope we can prolong in-person learning as long as possible," he said.

A few parents, after receiving the information, decided to pull their students from in-person learning and join the remote learning group instead. "We had a handful of additional requests at the high school," Dr. Byars said.

Dr. Muhammad emphasized the responsibility of every individual to help keep the community at large moving forward. "We must all participate in this," he said. The adults should model responsible behavior, and the students should understand that they cannot party or congregate without putting the whole community in jeopardy.

"Don't send them to school when they are not feeling well," he advised parents. "And when they test positive, please inform the school immediately." The faster they can start contact tracing, the better the chance of reducing the spread.

In her letter Dr. Byars reiterated common symptoms that occur with COVID 19:

- ✓ Fever of 100.4 F;
- Chills or shaking chills;
- Uncontrolled new cough (not due to chronic condition);
- Difficulty breathing or shortness of breath;
- ✓ New loss of taste or smell.

People need to remember that we are dealing with a highly contagious virus, Dr. Muhammad said.

der control. This is not an impossible task if we elect the right individuals. There are numerous historical examples of states that have reversed course and gotten their state economies back on track. It won't happen overnight but the alternative is another decade of failure like the last one and no one can afford this regardless of what political party one traditionally supports. Dan DeBarba

Editors Note: Dan DeBarba is the Republican Party and Independent Party endorsed candidate for the Connecticut House of Representatives from the 114th district.

Senator Maroney is a True Leader

I have known James Maroney a long time and can attest first-hand to his character, his competence, and his compassion for others. His tireless effort to try and do what is right to create opportunity for everyone is an inspiration.

A small business owner by day, he helps students and families prepare and plan for college and the future. In his spare time, he brews beer for his friends to share. No matter what he is doing, he applies passion and intellect.

As a State Senator, he has accepted an enormous amount of responsibility. He sits on 8 committees, is Chairman of General Law, Chairman of Veterans Affairs, and Deputy Majority Leader.

In true leadership fashion, he capitalized on his committee assignments to create impact and opportunity for everyone. He sponsored, or co-sponsored, into law several important bills. For me, the one that stands out is the Military-to-Machinist Program, signed into law last year.

My father was a Marine, who had his military career cut short by a knee injury after Vietnam. For many Veterans, the transition back into regular life is a constant struggle that can take decades. For too many, it never happens at all. Before he passed last year, I asked my father what he thought of the idea. He said, "Something like that could change someone's life." I think that says it all.

By using his influence to create opportunities that will improve lives, Senator Maroney is performing the role of an elected official exactly as it should be. I proudly support James Maroney for reelection as State Senator in the 14th District. Jay Zammiello

Welander's Experience Covers a Wide Range

I have been following the local races, and I noted Dan DeBarba's Facebook post which was dated September 7th. He includes this statement, "In November, we need to elect men and women to the State Legislature with experience in finance, business, healthcare and getting things done. Let those candidates trying to build political resumes put in the effort to build real world resumes before we hand our future over to them."

It struck me as odd, knowing that his opponent is Mary Welander. If he is, indeed, referencing Mary Welander in this statement, then I'm concerned that he is maligning women who have chosen to put their careers on pause to raise their children, and subsequently maligning the many mothers in Orange, Derby, and Woodbridge who have chosen that path for themselves and their families. It also shows that he has trivialized Ms. Welander's capabilities as a public servant.

Ms. Welander's experience covers a wide range: she serves on the Board of Education, is the Co-President of the Executive Board at Race Brook School's PTA, works with Sandy Hook Promise, raises three children, and volunteers regularly. "Getting things done" — Mr. DeBarba, I encourage you to see how much women get done while juggling tasks and roles. And if he's referencing Ms. Welander, then he is discounting her professional work experience prior to pausing her career in order to raise her children and volunteer in multiple capacities. Her roles have indeed touched finance, business, and healthcare.

Misjudging Ms. Welander's work and her experience is a mistake. Her work ethic, dedication, and empathy are exactly what the 114th district needs. I would also implore anyone to think twice about underestimating mothers, especially in this season where we are facing a pandemic, entirely new school environments, and various crises. They are more than capable, and they certainly get things done. Roo Powell

ELECTION 2020 DeBarba Receives James M

Independent Party Nomination

The Independent Party of Connecticut, the third largest political party in the state, has nominated Dan DeBarba for State Representative of the 114th district. DeBarba was also unanimously nominated as the Republican candidate in May. Therefore, he will appear on both the Republican Party and Independent Party lines on the ballot in the November election.

DeBarba thanked the Independent Party for its nomination. He said, "I plan to make Connecticut a better place for all residents. I will do all I can to be a strong, level-headed, and fiscally responsible public servant. I am grateful that the Independent Party of Connecticut has nominated me for State Representative of the 114th district."

DeBarba is a longtime Orange resident and his three children are graduates of Amity High School. DeBarba is the former president of Norwalk and

Welander Endorsed By Working Families Party, Others

Mary Welander has received several new endorsements in her campaign to become the next State Representative in the 114th Assembly District (which includes the towns of Derby, Orange, and Woodbridge). The following groups and organizations have announced their support for Welander:

- ✓ AFL-CIO;
- American Federation of Teachers (AFT) Connecticut;
- ✓ CSEA SEIU Local 2001;
- CT Against Gun Violence;
- Uniformed Professional Fire Fighters Association of Connecticut;

James Maroney Earns Independent Party Endorsement

James Maroney, candidate for the 14th state Senate District has earned the endorsement of Connecticut's Independent Party for the 2020 election. "I am humbled to receive the endorsement of the Independent Party for a second time for the 14th state Senate district," said Maroney. "I was honored two years ago to receive the endorsement and I have worked hard to justify that trust and to be an Independent voice for our community. I pledge to continue to work hard to represent the needs of our community, above partisan politics, in Hartford as your state Senator."

James Maroney was first elected to represent the 14th District in 2018. Before being elected to the Senate, he was a State Representative for the 119th District from 2012-2014, where he served on the Higher Education Committee. Prior to politics, Maroney was a past president and founding member of the Milford Education Foundation and also served on the Milford Board of Education. Maroney founded First Choice College Placement in January of 1999, which aims to make young people's higher education dreams come to fruition. First Choice College Placement also makes community service a priority and offers a number of educational seminars, donates to scholarships, and makes practice SAT and ACT tests available to the community.

Maroney is running for a second term to represent the 14th District in the State Senate including the towns of Milford, Orange, West Haven and Woodbridge.

Anderson Wins Independent Party Endorsement

Bryan Neil Anderson, Democratic challenger for State Representative in the Milford-Orange 119th District, was chosen by Independent Party members as their nominee in a decision over incumbent Republican State Rep. Kathy Kennedy.

"I am honored to have been voted by Independents as their choice for State

"The decision to endorse [Mary's] candidacy was made because of [her] commitment to working families and advocating for issues that are important to AFT Connecticut's members," said Teri Merisitis, a legislative advocate for AFT Connecticut. "Clearly, this election is very important to the people of Connecticut. We need strong leadership that will help turn this State around."

In addition to her involvement with the non-profit Sandy Hook Promise and the Orange Board of Education, Mary Welander is also a co-president of the Race Brook School PTA.

Mary Welander

"I am honored to be the recipient of endorsements from such a diverse group of organizations, particularly from the American Federation of Teachers," said Welander. "Speaking as a member of both the Board of Education for Orange and Sandy Hook Promise, our children's schools have been a major focus of my public life and of this campaign. I know we can create safe, stimulating learning environments for students, and I'm so thankful that I have the support of groups that share that same focus."

Representative. Both my opponent and I collected petition signatures from registered voters in the 119th District to create a new line on the ballot for the Independent Party, and then competed for their endorsement. Clearly, my record as Alderman of voting to cut taxes year after year and passing fiscally responsible budgets, while working to protect the environment, enhance education and public safety prevailed. As State Representative, I will listen to constituents, putting people above partisan politics as I've always done, and then use my voice and experience to make our towns the envy of Connecticut."

The Independent Party of Connecticut is the third largest party in the state. It aligns with candidates and office holders who are fiscally responsible, and who demonstrate an independence of thought in working to implement the best policies over partisan politics. This election cycle they endorsed a mix of Republican and Democratic legislators and challengers throughout Connecticut.

Anderson will appear on the Democratic and Independent ballot lines in the November 3rd election. Orange Town News

Scouts Hold Successful Drive for School Supplies

Junior Girl Scout Troop held a drive by school supply collection for the local Orange elementary school this Sunday at High Plains Community Center. The Troop made signs and waved American flags. The event was also advertised online by troop leader Sarah Gallipoli. The girls successfully filled 7 bags for the schools with items such as: crayons, markers, hand sanitizer, wipes, and disposable masks. Great job, Girls.

Woodbridge Historical Society to Host Outdoor Open House

The members of the Amity and Woodbridge Historical Society headquartered at the historic Thomas Darling Museum will host its first Open House this year. While the interior of the Thomas Darling House remains off-limits to visitors, masked AWHS Board members and volunteers have been at work cataloging, filing, and other projects similar to the ones many of our members are probably pursuing in their own attics now.

However, we're anxious to do something for the community during this time, so we've planned an Outdoor Open House! You'll be able to examine some of our interesting collections (with even the mannequins socially distanced), walk through the well-ventilated (aka drafty) Horse Barn with its antique farm implements, see a cider-making demonstration, participate in a site tour, go on a scenic walk. There will even be a Story Time for children and a tag sale table to find a treasure. The event is on Sunday, October 18th from 2 to 4 PM, at 1907 Litchfield Turnpike, Woodbridge CT. For more information and a schedule of events of the day, please visit www.woodbridgehsitory.org. Put it on vour Calendar!

Orange Cub Scout Pack 922 Continues To Grow

Throughout the past six months Pack 922 has stayed focused on maintaining a sense of community and in late May began to reconnect the scouts through different events. Using multiple virtual platforms, scouts were able to complete their achievements and even participate in a synchronized at home camping night where they shared their experiences through images and videos.

On June 28th the Scouts of Pack 922, along with their den leaders and cub master, held the annual Blue and Gold Banquet via a zoom meeting. Normally this event would have been held in April, but with the quarantine in full effect the pack held off. During the banquet, den leaders shared the accomplishments of their scouts as they rose to new ranks within the pack. Most scouts were in attendance and even some special guests were able to make an appearance and share in the achievements of our pack. Congratulations to all the scouts for a terrific year despite being unable to be with one another for the last few months.

The annual rocket launch normally takes place at the yearly Famorree camp out, but this year it was cancelled due to COVID-19. That did not stop the pack from coming together when things were safer and enjoying a tradition. Here are some of the scouts at a summer rocket launch on August 5th at the High Plain Community Center fields. Some of those rockets soared through the air at incredible speeds and heights. The scouts present enjoyed the time to come together and practiced safe practices by wearing masks and social distancing when possible.

On August 17th the Webelo den had its first meeting where they worked on the Stronger, Faster, Higher Achievement as a group. Scouts were socially distanced outside at the upper pavilion at High Plains Community Center and worked individually on accomplishing the tasks as a den.

Establish Winter Habitats For Backyard Animals

Preparing a property for winter involves putting away lawn furniture, raking leaves and removing any annual plants that have shriveled up and spent the last of their energy. It can be tempting to want to clean up completely and leave a blank slate in the yard. But by doing so, you may be robbing wildlife of the resources they need to overwinter.

The nature and conservation resource In Habitat says plants and animals depend on one another to survive. During the winter, animals may struggle to find adequate shelter and food, especially when there is a lack of sufficient plant matter available. In turn, these animals may actually take up home in people's residences, turning into pests in the process. Bats, field mice and even opossums and raccoons may move indoors into attics or basements, leaving behind waste and damage if they can't find adequate shelter outdoors.

Homeowners concerned about potential pest infestations can take steps to ensure animals have places to bed down and escape the cold in their yards this winter. These tips can help local wildlife when the temperatures dip.

Leave parts of the yard wild. Animals can make a nest in leaves or piles of brushwood. Just make sure piles left out are away from the home so curious critters don't try to get inside. Leave the task of tidying up shrubs and garden borders until spring, as shrubs can be dense areas to hide for both insects and animals.

Consider planting animal food sources prior to winter. Plants like elderberry, holly, mulberry, sumac, and crabapple will grow in colder months and animals can enjoy them as a vital food staple.

Don't forget water sources. Provide access to fresh water and replace as needed if the water freezes. For homeowners with fish ponds in their backyards, use a hot pot to melt a hole in the top of the pond and allow gases that have accumulated underneath to escape. This allows oxygen to reach fish and frogs in the pond.

Leave bird, squirrel or bat houses in the yard. This is a fun and crafty project that can ward off winter boredom while also providing a safe place for local wildlife to shelter in winter.

Animals and insects need some extra help staying comfortable when cool temperatures arrive. Leaving some clean-up tasks for the spring ensures that there are plenty of backyard habitats available to local wildlife.

Tips For Planting Fall Vegetables

Tending to backyard vegetable gardens can fill many hours of enjoyable downtime in the great outdoors. What's more, the bounty produced by such gardens provides healthy, fresh foods to gardeners and their loved ones.

Although spring and summer are widely seen as the peak of gardening season, the mild temperatures of autumn can be a prime time for planting vegetables as well. Certain late-season treats like carrots, kale, spinach, and turnips can thrive in fall gardens. Many different foods are quick crops that can go from seed to table in about six weeks. When sown in early fall, these vegetables will be ready to put on the table for mid-October feasts. Beets, green onions, broccoli, and cabbages can be planted in late summer for fall harvest. Gardeners who live in hardiness zones eight through 10 (the southern portion of the United States) can plant fall vegetables as late as December. Many of these plants can tolerate light frost, which may even help sweeten the vegetables. A handful of unique factors need to be taken into consideration when planning fall vegetable gardens.

sure to choose a location that gets eight full hours of sunlight per day.

If using an existing garden site, clear out any detritus from summer plants and any weeds that have sprouted. If you are planting a new garden, remove any turf before tilling the soil.

Amend the soil with sand, compost, manure fertilizer, and any other nutrients needed depending on the types of vegetables you intend to grow. While fall vegetables can be grown successfully from seeds, it may be more time-friendly to work from larger transplants, advises the Texas A&M Agrilife Extension. Some plants may need a little protection as they grow if temperatures begin to dip. Cover with a blanket, cardboard box or plastic tunnel to insulate.

The summertime location of the garden may still be adequate, but be Remember to water according to the vegetables planted and to keep an eye on readiness for vegetables. Turnips, beets, rutabagas, and carrots can be dug out when the roots are plump and crisp.

Vegetable gardens need not cease when the last days of summer vanish. Fall produce is delicious and can be easily planted and harvested even after the first frost.

THE ORANGE ARMY to the Rescue

"FIRE TRUCK $50K CHALLENGE" MARCHES TO $121K!

One day in August, project chairman Jim Leahy bumped into a lemonade stand on Lambert Road. "What is this?" he thought. Much to his surprise a family had opened a lemonade stand in support of the "Fire Truck $50K Challenge." What better illustrates the community and Team Spirit we have here in Orange! "When I saw the signs & the family, my heart soared. I can STILL feel it in my spirit." Leahy recalled.

Colorful & detailed homemade SIGNS galore! And they initiated this effort on their own.

Today, "THE ORANGE ARMY" of supporters stands tall at 546 strong. 53 Businesses & Organizations have stepped up to the call & joined in. 493 Individuals & families have reported for duty and heeded the call to support the members of the Orange Volunteer Fire Department (OVFD). It's been an amazing run. Starting with a modest idea at a May Orange Board of Finance meeting that 'We can do something,' the "Fire Truck $50K Challenge" now has $121,216 in volunteer contributions, a figure that covers almost the entire "gap" in their operating revenue from the cancellation of the August Orange Fireman's Carnival. THE ORANGE ARMY is led by the Leadership sponsors of 5 Platinum ($5K each), 2 GOLD ($2.5K each), and 26 members of all-volunteer marching group of the "2% Club" ($1K each).

the October payment on a recent Fire Truck purchase. Back then, we wondered aloud about the economy & whether this goal was beyond our reach. Today, the ARMY has grown with members enlisting new members, and developed into a modern-day GI-ANT of financial support for the OVFD who - let's face it - willingly & unpaid come to your homes when you have an emergency, such as a fire.

"Neighbors helping neighbors" is more than a motto for the OVFD, it's the calling card of all Orange Citizens. To chip in. To help out. To be there when a neighbor - perhaps unknown at the outset - is in time of need.

As we wind down this ragingly successful project in the days ahead it's

State Farm Teams Up With OVFD To Serve Up Kitchen Safety

The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) and State Farm Agent Kevin Piscitelli are teaming up with the Orange Volunteer Fire Department to support Fire Prevention Week, an annual public awareness campaign promoting home fire safety.

State Farm Agents are delivering Fire Prevention Week toolkits to more than 2500 fire departments across the country, including Orange VFD. Each toolkit includes resources for Fire Prevention Week (October 4-10, 2020), including brochures, magnets, posters and more. The Fire Department will be sharing these resources with schools and communities this fall in support of the campaign.

This year's Fire Prevention Week campaign, "Serve Up Fire Safety in the Kitchen" focuses on cooking fire safety. Home cooking fires represent the leading cause of all fires with nearly half – 49 percent – happening in the kitchen. Unattended cooking is the leading cause of these fires.

"The good news is that the majority of kitchen fires are highly preventable," said State Farm Agent Kevin Piscitelli. "These great kits will help our fire departments spread the news to always stay focused when you're in the kitchen and never leave the kitchen unattended."

Key messages around this year's Fire Prevention Week campaign will include the following:

Keep a close eye on what you're cooking; never leave cooking unattended;

Keep anything that can catch fire — oven mitts, wooden utensils, food packaging, towels or curtains — at least three feet away from your stovetop;

Be on alert. If you are sleepy or have consumed alcohol, don't use the stove or stovetop.

What To Do To Prepare Your Garden For Winter

Gardens provide an idyllic escape from the hustle and bustle of everyday life. In fact, many gardening enthusiasts typically cannot wait for the spring thaw so they can spend the next several months tending to their plants under the warm sun. But a gardener's work is never truly done, and the work to make gardens stun in the spring actually begins during the preceding fall.

Preparing gardens for winter is an important step that can help homeowners ensure their gardens return to full strength in the spring. The tasks necessary to prepare gardens for winter may depend on what homeowners are planting, but the following are some general maintenance suggestions that can keep gardens safe this winter.

Remove weeds and debris. Weeds and debris are unsightly and detrimental to plant life in spring, but they also can be harmful in the winter. Weeds and debris left to linger in gardens through the winter provide overwintering spots for insects and can contribute to disease. So it's imperative that weeds and debris are removed before the ground hardens in winter. Don't wait until the ground hardens, in for the winter. Once garden soil is exposed, add a layer of compost, leaves, aged manure, and, if necessary, lime, gently tilling it into the soil. According to the North Carolina Cooperative Extension, the only accurate way to determine if lawn or garden soil needs lime is to test it. Lime makes soil less acidic and reduces soil pH. Low soil pH makes it hard for certain plants to grow, but acidic soil is ideal when growing blueberries. Test the soil for lime and amend it depending on what you hope to grow in the spring so it's ready to thrive when winter ends.

Remove dead or diseased plants. Dead or diseased plants should not be left in the garden through the winter. These plants can attract insects and are vulnerable to disease, which can make it hard for the garden to thrive in the spring.

Protect fruit trees. If you have fruit trees, install mouse guards around the base to prevent mice and voles from killing the trees over the winter. If left to their own devices over the winter, mice and voles may eat the bark of fruit trees, killing the trees as a result. The Farmer's Almanac notes

How To Recognize When You Can Stop Mowing

Each weekend in spring, summer and fall, millions of homeowners fire up their mowers and cut the grass in their yards. A few hours spent mowing the lawn can be a great time to get some sun and some exercise in the great outdoors.

As fall gradually transitions to winter, homeowners may wonder when to stop mowing their lawns. Each lawn is different, and when to stop mowing may depend on a host of factors, including local climate and the type of turf. In addition to climate and turf, homeowners can keep an eye on these conditions to determine when the time is right to put their mowers away for the winter.

Frost: Warm-season grasses typically go dormant after a couple of significant frosts. Homeowners can jot down each frost during fall. Frosts are most noticeable in the early morning hours, so be sure to check lawn conditions each morning as the weather begins to grow cold. Frost may be noticeable without even going outside, but homeowners may need to go outside to check on chilly mornings or on days when the previous night was especially cold. If you must go outside, stay off the grass to protect it. Two or three frosts might be enough to make warm-season grasses go dormant for the winter. Cool-season grasses may keep growing and require moving even after a few frosts, so it's imperative that homeowners determine which type of grass is in their yards.

Soil temperature: If it's hard to determine if frosts have occurred, homeowners can try checking the temperature of their soil to decide if they need to keep mowing. The lawn care experts at Pennington recommend homeowners continue mowing warm-season grasses so long as they keep growing. Lawns may not grow as quickly in fall as they do in spring or summer, and growth may not be as visible to the naked eye during this time of year as it is in other times. Homeowners can routinely check soil temperature to determine if their grasses have stopped growing. Warm-season grasses tend to stop growing once the soil temperature is consistently at 55 F or below, while cool-season grasses tend to stop when temperatures are 45 F or lower.

Falling leaves have long been a barometer used by homeowners to determine if they need to keep mowing their lawns. That's not necessarily a reliable metric, as grass can still keep growing even if leaves have been falling for weeks. In addition, using a mulching mower when leaves begin falling is a great way to provide the lawn with nutrients it can use throughout the winter. Some trees shed their leaves more as that can make it hard to remove the roots of weeds, adversely affecting the garden as a result.

Prepare the soil. The Farmer's Almanac advises homeowners to gently till the soil in their gardens so they can expose any insects before they settle that mouse guards made of fine mesh hardware cloth can effectively protect fruit trees from hungry mice and voles over the winter.

A gardener's work is never done, and the work to create beautiful spring gardens begins in the fall. quickly than others, but it's a good rule of thumb that lawns will need to keep being mowed if trees are still retaining more than half their leaves.

A host of factors can help homeowners determine when it's safe to put their mowers away for the winter.

Get Ahead Of Chimney Repair This Seasotn

Woodburning fireplaces or fuel stoves can add warmth and ambiance to a home. These appliances are particularly coveted in the cooler months when people spend more time indoors. Maintenance is necessary in order for fireplaces and stoves to function safely, and that upkeep must include paying close attention to the functionality of the chimney.

Chimneys are designed to last for decades. Cracks and spalling in brick chimneys are common concerns that can cause significant damage if left unchecked.

Chimney maintenance involves more than cleaning the flue. Rather than running the risk of costly repairs, which can cost several thousand dollars, homeowners can take some simple steps to keep their chimneys in tip-top shape. Certain components of chimney maintenance are do-it-yourself tasks, while others may be better left to the professionals. Start from the inside and ensure that dampers are working properly. When using fireplaces and other appliances, dampers need to be open to allow smoke to vent outside; otherwise, smoke will be trapped in the home and could lead to carbon monoxide buildup. Dampers need to be fixed or replaced if they are not operational. Replacement fireplace dampers should be snug and not have any gaps, states Vertical Chimney Care.

spalling. Spalling is the wearing away of masonry due to water, weather and time. If enough of the material erodes, that erosion can adversely affect the structural integrity of the chimney. Some repairs can be made by patching up cracks or replacing missing bricks. Chimney tuckpointing is the process of repairing mortar.

Think about waterproofing the chimney to prevent damage. A water sealant applied to the outside of the chimney can prevent moisture from breaking down the masonry.

Inspect and replace the chimney cap if it is worn out. A chimney cap is a contraption that sits atop the chimney to allow the smoke to vent while also

Signs Your Gutters Are In Need Of Repair

Fall is a great time to tackle projects around the house. The weather each fall allows homeowners to make improvements to their homes' exteriors without worrying about extreme heat or cold, while interior projects like painting are made easier because homeowners can open the windows to allow for proper ventilation.

Fall also marks a great time to prepare for upcoming projects that can make winter work that much easier. For example, fall is a great time to take stock of your gutters so you can address any issues before leaves begin to fall or the first snowstorm touches down. Compromised gutters can contribute to water issues in basements and adversely affect a home's foundaquickly, and it's an inexpensive yet highly effective solution.

Gutter separation: Gutters that are no longer fastened together can leak and contribute to issues that affect the home's foundation, siding and appearance. Clogs and the accumulation of debris can cause gutters to separate because they are not designed to hold too much weight. Replacement of separated gutters may or may not be necessary depending on how big the problem is and the condition of the existing gutters. If replacement is not necessary, separated gutters may be remedied by securing the joints, another relatively simple and inexpensive fix.

Peeling exterior paint: Paint that appears to be peeling off of your home may indicate that water is seeping over the edge of the gutter closest to your home. When that happens, water is coming down the side of the house, causing the paint to peel. In such instances, replacing the gutters is often necessary. Basement flooding: Not all signs of deteriorating gutters are outside a home. Many a homeowner has been flummoxed by flooding in their basements, and such flooding can be caused by aging, ineffective gutters. That's because deteriorating gutters sometimes allow water to leak near the foundation of a home, contributing to basement flooding. Fall is an ideal time to inspect gutters and have any issues fixed before leaves begin to fall or harsh winter weather arrives.

Conduct a visual inspection of the chimney to check for any cracks or preventing critters and water from going inside the flue, helping to extend the flue life. The chimney cap attaches to the flue liner, so outside dimensions should be taken to ensure the cap is the right size for the chimney.

Have the chimney swept. Sweeping helps remove the soot and debris that clings to the inside of the flue, known as creosote. The amount of time the fireplace is used will determine how often the chimney must be cleaned. Generally speaking, the chimney liner needs to be cleaned if it has 1/8-inch or more of soot.

Regular inspection and maintenance can help keep a chimney working safely for decades. For those who do not like working at such an elevation, leave exterior chimney repair to a certified professional. tion if not addressed immediately, so it behooves homeowners to learn the signs that gutters are in need of repair or replacement.

Gutters hanging off the home: Gutters were once installed predominantly with spikes. However, many industry professionals now install gutters with hanger brackets. Why the change? Spikes loosen over time, leading to the gutters hanging off the home. That can contribute to serious issues if left untreated. Gutters hanging off the home need not necessarily be replaced, but rather secured to the home, ideally with hanger brackets instead of spikes. Brackets hook into the front of the gutter and are then screwed into the fascia of a home. A professional who specializes in gutter repair can perform this task relatively

HISTORY CORNER BY GINNY REINHARD

Where Should We Go Today?

I hope you were able to visit some of the towns I highlighted in my last article. I understand from a friend that upon visiting a site, the shopkeepers, that were approached, were so excited to be asked to sign the Connecticut 169 Book which I told you gives a short story about each of the towns in our State. So here goes with some more stories and don't forget, a copy of the Connecticut 169 Book is available from the Orange Historical Society at the Academy, 605 Orange Center Road, on Saturdays from 10-3 and remember to take it with you when you "cruise" around Connecticut.

Now I am going to take you to closed now but there is a little corner store, built in 1815, that offers antiques, candies, jewelry, toys and books with the name Tolland Red & White, 46 Tolland Green. Its history features the original corner store supplying everything but dental work, a harness shop, a workshop for a local inventor and a company that made hoops for hoop skirts.

Hopefully, the historical society will once again be able to open its buildings which included a 1720 homestead, a mirror image of our own Bryan-Andrew House.

Andover may be a small town but a mighty force during the Revolu-

Tolland County where the leaves are turning their beautiful fall colors and the air is brisk and clear. One of tionary War. Volunteers for Washington's army are part of its history with General Rochambeau riding through town to meet with him in Wethersfield. The Kingsbury family offered him a cool drink on his way and Washington followed the same route on his way to Newport. Rochambeau later brought his troops through Andover old tracks with biking, hiking, horseback riding from East Hampton to Willimantic to Andover and onto Bolton and Vernon. The scenic covered bridge spans Route 316 with trails offering views of rivers, swamps and bridges which were once tall, railroad trestles.

Bolton also figured into the Revolutionary War with a road. Yes, a road. The trails once belonging to the Native Mohegans meeting at what is called Bolton Notch. The most famous of these trails in known as "Ye Olde Connecticut Path." It was this route that traders and settlers took from the Bay Colony to settle in Connecticut. This inland route was safe from any British Naval surprise attack which then made it the first choice for marching the Colonial and French armies from Boston to their destinations south camping in Bolton. Both Washington and Rochambeau stayed at the Bolon Heritage Farm House several times... yes, Washington did sleep here folks. That route was designated the Washington-Rochambeau Revolutionary Route in 2012.

Bolton, according to their section of the Connecticut 169 Book boasts many interesting places to visit; Bolton Lake for Kayaking, Bolton Notch State Park for hiking, Fish Family Ice Cream Shop, Hop River Trail, a Veteran's Memorial and not to be left out, Munson's Chocolates!

Now this one you probably know. Coventry. The Mohegans called the area Wongumbaug or crooked pond for the curved shape of the 380-acre #### homestead.

In the summer and into the fall, The Coventry Farmer's Market is set up on Sundays adjacent to the Hale homestead. Filled with produce, handmade items, mom & pop shops and food trucks, this market is a must see, no don't just see it, walk around the various tents and avail yourself of good eats.

Coventry was the home to Lorenzo Dow, a revivalist preacher who was called crazy for his methods of luring crowds to his camp meetings. But to another side of Coventry is the over 100 men who responded to the Lexington Alarm in 1775 with the town providing substantial amounts of clothing, cider, and pork for the Continental Army. In fact, Jeremiah Ripley kept a military provisioning depot on Ripley Hill Road to serve the armed forces.

From the early 1800s Coventry Village was a hub of manufacturing with 15 water-powered mills on the Mill Brook. By 1870, more than 50 mill buildings were located there making wool carding machinery, handmade paper, cotton shirting, wool flannel, iron forgings, percussion caps, woolen hats, wagons, paper boxes, cider vinegar and the list goes on. By 1813, the Coventry Glass Works was producing pocket bottles, medicine containers, and collectible whisky flasks decorated with railroad scenes and busts of George Washington, Andrew Jackson, and Lafayette. Adelma Simmons developed herbal gardening into a popular hobby showcasing her Caprilands Farm. Hundreds of us attended her luncheons and lectures and what we at the historical society know about herbs and herbal foods, we learned from her. The potato lovage soup that we serve at the Bryan-Andrew House was one of her delicacies as lovage was not well-known down here but grown at her farm. We now grow and dry our own for sale at the Academy. Well, this should take you about 2 weeks to "cruise" so by the time you finish your visits, I will have more places for you to conquer... remember to bring your book with you!

the towns is Tolland, settled in 1715, 20 miles northeast of Hartford. This lovely rural and hilly town was part of Windsor and incorporated as Connecticut's 49th town in 1722. Designated as the county seat in 1785 led residents to build a courthouse and a jail which is located on the Tolland Green. The district features historic homes and buildings exhibiting typical features of Colonial Connecticut with additional homes with the Italianate, Federal and Greek influence.

The idea behind the Connecticut 169 Book is to encourage folks to travel to all of the towns and while doing so, seek out a business or town hall employee to make a note on the town page to show that it was visited. Unfortunately, the historical society buildings, including the jail, are on the old Route 6 describing it as "a pretty little valley where several brooks flow into the river (Hop River). After his victory in New York, part of his army spent the winter in tents near the First Congregational Church off Route 6. In 1873, the Air Line rail from Boston to New Haven ran

During the early  $18^{\mbox{\tiny th}}$  century, the town was mostly agrarian centered around the 2nd Church on the Boston Turnpike and the 1st Church on the Windham Turnpike. Its most famous townsman was none other than Nathan Hale who was hung by the British in1776 as a spy. There are several tales about this young teacher and how he met his demise but to get the whole story, one must visit his
