

AMITY NAMES GYM AFTER LONG-TIME ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

By Bettina Thiel - Orange Town News Correspondent

The Amity community recently honored long-time Athletic Director Paul Mengold by naming the gym after him. Mengold retired in June 2014 after serving the district for more than 38 years, 30 of them as its athletic director. Numerous banners along the walls of the gym attest to the success of the athletic program, both in breadth as well as quality, during his tenure. He is, as his successor Ernie Goodwin said in welcoming him, the icon of Amity athletics.

During the dedication ceremony sandwiched between two volleyball games —physical education teacher Debbie Davis pointed to the banners, saying, "Most are connected in a very special way to Paul Mengold". But his influence did not only pave the way to scoring points, winning games and hanging banners; Mengold set a tone of patience and respect. "He made Amity athletics an Amity family," Davis said. "The Board of Education sometimes has difficulties with naming facilities," said Board of Education Chairman Bill Blake. "It was different with Paul Mengold. You never heard any bad words about Paul Mengold."

School Supt. Dr. Chip Dumais spoke about the role adults play who work in schools, demonstrating to students the value of making good decisions. With Mengold's retirement, the school community is missing "a really big piece" of that adult presence, he said.

MURRAY RESIGNS AS CURRICULUM DIRECTOR

By Melissa Nicefaro - Orange Town News Correspondent

Colleen Murray, former principal at Turkey Hill and most recently Director of Curriculum and Instruction for Orange Schools, submitted her resignation to the Board of Education at its September meeting. Murray has accepted a position as Superintendent of Bethany Schools.

Chairman of the Board of Education Bill Kraut spoke fondly of Murray at the meeting, noting that he met her nine and a half years ago when she started at Turkey Hill. "I've worked with her through the father's club at Turkey Hill and then at the board level, and there are two things about Colleen that I'd like to say: she will always give 100% to her job and to her kids, as she would call them, and I was always very impressed with that and how she was 'all in' all of the time."

He continued, "The one thing that impressed me most about Colleen, and this was when she was at Turkey Hill as I was there with my daughter, was her absolute love and passion for the children in the district. I think that Mrs. Murray got into the business for the right reasons and she will remain in the business for all of the right reasons. Bethany is a better district today than they were yesterday because they hired Colleen Murray." shared her experience with Murray, "I met Colleen when I was on a principal search committee for Mike Gray and I've gotten to know her very well over the years. I congratulate Bethany. They made a very smart hire and I think Orange is losing a very strong member of our administrative team and I don't really believe that this community understands her impact, and they won't know it until she's gone and we feel her loss. She will be greatly missed and I wish her the best."

Her last day in Orange will be October 23. In her notification to the Board of Education, Murray said, "It is with mixed emotions that I submit this letter of resignation from my position as the Director of Curriculum and Instruction for the Orange Elementary School System effective September 18, 2015. I am excited and honored to have been offered the position of Superintendent of Schools in the neighboring town of Bethany.

"During my tenure in Orange, as the Turkey Hill School Principal (6 years), Mary L. Tracy Principal (2 years), and the Director of Curriculum and Instruction (3+ years), I have had the distinct pleasure of working alongside a very talented and committed administrative

In accepting the standing ovation from the school officials, community members and players, Mengold called the gym dedication, "The most humbling of all honors". He thanked his wife, Francie, and daughters, Jessie and Kelly, for putting up with his many hours spent in the school and on the fields. He acknowledged the presence of former players and coaches in the audience, in particular former football coach and long-time Amity supporter Bill Johnson and Booster Club founder Stan Gedansky.

"If you don't have a team, you're not going to be successful," Mengold said.

OHS TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE AT THE BRYAN-ANDREW HOUSE

The Orange Historical Society will hold its annual Bryan-Andrew Open House Sunday, October 25 from 12 to 4 pm. Located at 131 Old Tavern Road, the Bryan-Andrew cape was built around 1740 by Nathan Bryan and is believed to be the oldest house in Orange. The Town of Orange purchased the house in 2000 for $149.000. Aided by more than $300,000 in state and other grants from the CT Department of Economic & Community Development (DECD), CT Historic Commission (now part of DECD) Dorothy Timmins Estate, Harvey Hubbell Foundation, Jones Family Trust, Lions Club, New Alliance Bank, Orange Community Women, Orange Foundation Trust, U/A, Bank of America, N.A. Trustee, Spectrum Foundation, United Illuminating, in addition to individual donations and fundraisers, the Orange Historical Society has spent the last 15 years on the daunting task of restoring the structure.

The goal of the restoration has been to return the house to its original layout. The latest project is the addition of plaster walls, thanks to a grant from the Connecticut Trust for Historic Preservation.

The first floor contains a porch (front entry), Buttery (pantry), the Keeping Room (kitchen), where hearth cooking will take place and two front parlors. The house has been furnished with period-appropriate pieces.

"We've continued to make progress during the past year," said Ginny Reinhard, president of the Orange Historical Society. "The keeping room has been plastered, replacing 20th century tile and more work has been done on the buttery. The beehive oven has been repaired which means that we can now use it for hearth cooking demonstrations. The second floor remains unfinished but eventually will be used for educational programs," said Reinhard.

A 20th century bathroom has been added for the convenience of visitors. Plans for the future include the installation of a modern kitchen at the back of the house that would comply with town sanitation standards for an estimated cost of $25,000. This will permit the Orange Historical Society to prepare meals on the hearth that can be served to the public.

The Bryan House is open by appointment for events, parties and educational tours.

Admission to the Open House is free for this event. Wine and light refreshments will be served. Parking will be at the Old Tavern Road Athletic Complex with a shuttle bus running to and from the Bryan-Andrew House.

October is Liver Awareness Month

During Liver Awareness Month this October, the American Red Cross encourages eligible donors to give blood and platelets to support liver transplant patients and others needing blood products. Liver transplants are the second most common type of transplant with more than 6,000 performed in the U.S. each year, according to the American Liver Foundation. Liver transplant patients may require in excess of 30 pints of blood during surgery. For blood donor Amy Slattery, the need for blood hits close to home. Her mother received a liver transplant and needed more than 70 blood products during the surgery. "I donate to help others that needed blood like her," said Slattery. "I donate in thanks to those who donate their blood products to help save lives."

Volunteer donors like Slattery are the only source of blood for those in need of transfusions during transplants and other surgeries. Donors with all blood types are needed, and especially those with types O negative, A nega-

HAWLEY LANE SHOES CELEBRATES ITS 40TH ANNIVERSARY!

Connecticut's premier family-owned footwear retailer of comfort and fashion footwear for the entire family is pleased to announce their celebration of 40 year in business. In celebrating this milestone year thanking our customers is paramount. So, to all of our customers that have supported us over the years we extend a sincere...

"Thank you for your patronage over the years."

Our Early Years

Hawley Lane Shoes is family-owned and operated for over three generations. The late Jack Smolensky, the family patriarch, was one of the first Pedorthists to graduate from New York University. A Pedorthist, or foot pharmacist, specializes in understanding the biomechanics of the foot and works toward long-term maintenance of individual foot health. Jack's sincerity with people complemented his enthusiasm to provide exceptional customer service and education about the far-reaching impact of foot care on overall health and well-being.

We have stayed true to Jack's mission for four decades:

To enhance people's lives from the foot up by providing education to increase awareness of proper footwear and foot care.

This would not be possible without our brick and mortar business. It is only through personal interaction and a hands-on approach with every customer that we can accurately determine needs.

In 1975 Hawley Lane Shoes opened its first store in Trumbull in the Hawley Lane Mall. The years have seen us through relocation and expansion to four locations: Stamford, Norwalk, Shelton and Orange.

More Than a Shoe Store

At Hawley Lane Shoes our principal focus is not "selling" shoes. More importantly, the emphasis is on "fitting" shoes based on individual customer needs. Our on-staff Board Certified Pedorthists (C.Peds.) and Certified Shoe Fitters evaluate the biomechanics of the foot to determine exactly the type of shoe that will provide the proper support for long term health of the foot. Once this is established our staff then takes into consideration a customer's style and color preferences. This process is fundamental in serving our customers. We offer free foot assessments that evaluate arch and pressure points in each foot. The results are used to guide our fit experts in making the best choices for our customers.

ENJOY A FRUGAL FALL ROAD TRIP

Road trips are a staple of autumn for many motorists. Fall foliage and moderate temperatures make the months of September and October ideal months to hit the open road for weekend getaways. Fall road trips rarely take drivers too far away from home, but traveling can still be costly. Fortunately, there are many ways to make road trips more affordable without sacrificing fun. Explore alternatives to more traditional lodging. If your road trip includes an overnight stay, consider alternatives to traditional lodging. Hotels might stretch your budget, but depending on where you plan to go, you might have some less traditional alternatives. Airbnb.com allows homeowners and even some apartment dwellers to rent their homes and apartments to travelers, and these listings may pale in comparison to rates offered by nearby hotels. If weather permits, look for local campsites and spend your nights sleeping outdoors under the autumn stars. If you prefer hotels, look for deals on sites like Priceline.com or Hotwire.com, which may offer heavy discounts on rooms.

Take steps to conserve fuel. Lodging might prove your biggest expense on a fall road trip, but fuel likely won't be too far behind. Drivers can cut fuel costs in several ways. Before beginning your trip, take your car in for a tuneup so any issues that might from the trunk. If you don't plan to hit the links on your trip, leave your golf clubs at home.

Plot your route. Spontaneity may make fall road trips more fun, but a weekend getaway can make the trip more fun and more affordable. If you have room in the car, inviting friends along allows you to split fuel costs, and you may even save on lodging if you find a hotel that won't charge for extra guests in the room. Friends and family also can help split the cost of supplies. Bring your own food. Food is another big expense road trippers must account for. But you can save money on food by bringing your own meals along on the trip. Prepare some sandwiches the morning that you leave and keep them fresh in a cooler so you don't have to pay for lunch. In addition, pack some snacks so you and your passengers can quickly and affordably quell any hunger pangs that arise while you're on the road. If you plan to stay in a place with its own kitchen, cook your own dinners so you don't have to spend money dining out. Road trips are a staple of autumn, when drivers can still enjoy the open road without breaking the bank.

affect fuel efficiency are addressed before you hit the open road. Poorly inflated tires force the engine to work harder and burn more fuel, so make sure tire pressure matches the levels recommended in your owner's manual before embarking on your trip and even along the way if you feel your car is not running as smoothly as it could be. Another way to conserve fuel is to remove excess items drivers looking to save money should plot their routes in advance so they can avoid potentially costly problems like detours or road work that can waste fuel and lead to hours sitting in traffic. Use a GPS device during your trip so you can be alerted to any unexpected developments that might cost you time and money. Plotting your route in advance also allows you to find affordable dining and lodging options and choose roads that don't require drivers to pay tolls. Invite some friends and family along. Inviting friends and family on

"TRAIL EXPLORATION BACKPACKS" AVAILABLE FOR CHILDREN

The Orange Conservation Commission has initiated a program to help young children get in touch with nature by making available "Trail Exploration Backpacks" for children to check out from their school or town libraries. The backpacks are free and can be checked out for up to two weeks from the libraries. The backpacks can be used by children to explore the many trails in Orange's Open Spaces.

Each backpack contains both fun and informative items: Orange trail maps, CT information guides for wildlife, plants, trees and birds, several environmental-based reading books for children, hands-on bug catchers, butterfly nets, magnifying lens and more. Fall is a great time to check out a backpack and explore the beautiful Turkey Hill Preserve, Housatonic Overlook, Wepawaug Trails, Racebrook Tract, Wolfe Park, Paul Ode Trail and Ewen Preserve.

Funding for the backpacks was provided by The Orange Community Women's Club, Orange Rotary Club and the Orange Lion's Club. The Orange Conservation Commission currently maintains over 950 acres of open space in the Town of Orange and any help provided by the public is greatly appreciated.

If you're interested in volunteering, please see the OCC website www.orange-ct.gov/govser/conservation.htm.

DINING WITH SUSAN By:

By Susan Noonan

ELI'S RESTAURANT OF ORANGE

One of my favorite all time songs is the Three Dog Night hit from 1969 "Eli's Coming". Residents of Orange and surrounding communities were all buzzing with rumors earlier this year hearing that Eli's Restaurant Group "was coming" and opening a location in Orange. I am pleased to report that Eli's Orange opened July 16, 2015 on the busy Boston Post Road.

Eli's Restaurant Group, a true "family" of restaurants, was founded over two decades ago by true brothers in spirit. They knew that a restaurant chain based on a philosophy that upscale American cuisine combined with a warm, friendly, inviting atmosphere and extraordinary service would result in the perfect meeting place for families, friends and sports fans alike to EAT, DRINK AND ENJOY all that Eli's Restaurants have to offer.

This legacy began in 1994 with the opening of their flagship restaurant, Eli's on Whitney, located in the heart of Hamden, Connecticut just down the road from Quinnipiac University. Eli's, as the original restaurant is known, has been the genesis of three more restaurants: Eli's Brick Oven Pizza and Market located next door to Eli's on Whitney Avenue in Hamden; Eli's Branford which sits atop "the Hill" in Branford, CT; Eli's Tavern on Daniel Street in the chic downtown district of Milford and now, of course, the newest location in Orange. Each of their locations is a perfect daytime or late night setting for hanging out and having a great time with friends.

Eli's Orange brings to its new location the loved Eli's style restaurant serving upscale American fare with an Italian twist, a great bar and plenty of TVs for your viewing pleasure.

The 189 person restaurant features Eli's signature centerpiece horseshoe bar featuring leather tufted luxurious elevated booths, matching leather bar stools, dark hardwood floors and walnut tables, walls and a fabulous walnut ceiling that must be seen to be believed. The perfect place to sit and watch your favorite team on one of their many big screen TVs while getting a drink from the large selection of craft beers. The one-of-a kind center island bar boasts 24 draft lines, 18 different wines by the glass, specialty martinis and handcrafted cocktails. Open for lunch and dinner daily along with a late-night menu available right up until closing. Enjoy Eli's Happy Hour, offered every Monday - Friday 4-6 pm in the bar with discounted appetizers and drink specials. "Eli's is a place where everyone knows your name," said Shawn Reilly, Director of Operations for Eli's Restaurant Group and Happy Hour is a great place to start both your evening and those relationships. Reilly said Eli's rapid growth which has led to a doubling of the size of its flagship restaurant in Hamden, the opening of Eli's Daniel Street Tavern in downtown Milford and the new Eli's Orange, all within 12 months. "Our loyal customers come from all over Connecticut and they are always suggesting that we open a restaurant in their neighborhood. With the success of our restaurant group over the past twenty years we are always looking for new expansion opportunities and we always wanted to be in Orange as it is a great Town and opportunity for us," he said. "The Post Road in Orange was obviously the logical place to go in Orange. We love our spot and the Town and people we have met there in the short time we have been there. Q: I am so happy that my favorite new show of last season, "NCIS: New Orleans," is back! Can you give me the inside scoop for this season? -- Dominick F., via email

A: "NCIS: New Orleans" returned in late September with a bang -- literally. As I'm sure you know, they blew up a bridge. While, of course, those in charge are pretty hush-hush about storylines, I can tell you a few things. First is that last season's recurring character, Sonja Percy -- played by Tony-nominated actress Shalita Grant -- will now be a series regular. While Shalita is thrilled to be on set full time, her alter ego is having a slightly tougher time.

"Scott (Bakula's character, Dwayne Pride) is all about giving the newbie, or 'probe,' the business," Shalita said. "It's not going to be easy for Sonja Percy. At one point, I call them my 'agent abusers,' because that's kind of how they are. But Sonja can take it. And throughout the series, she will be dishing it out. Sonja and LaSalle, Sonja and Brody, and even Sonja and Pride are getting closer, and those relationships are all unique. You get to see where Sonja is coming from in some of these cases."

Shalita also let me know that while there might be fireworks story-wise, life on the set is pretty relaxed: "It's so boring on set in that we all get along. Lucas (Black) is like 2 years old, and he's always doing something. Zoe (McLellan) is so goofy. And Scott, he's just fun and easygoing."

Q: I saw a preview for a movie with Leonardo DiCaprio where he has a beard, is all dirty, and is seeking revenge on Tom Hardy. Can you tell me about it? The movie looks really good! --Douglas C., Annapolis, Maryland.

A: You are referring to "The Revenant," which will open Christmas Day in select cities (to qualify for Oscar consideration), with a wider opening Jan. 8, 2016. Leo plays explorer Hugh Glass, who is left for dead by Tom's John Fitzgerald after Hugh is mauled by a bear. Set in 1823, the film is based on Michael Punke's novel "The Revenant: A Novel of Revenge," and, of course, there is already Oscar buzz surrounding the film.

Q: You mentioned that the Ben Affleck/Matt Damon-produced show "Project Greenlight" would be back, but I haven't heard anything about it. I watched it on Bravo a few years back, but it's not there anymore. -- Felicia F., via email

A: "Project Greenlight" moved back to its original home, HBO, for its fourth season, which premiered Sept. 13 and has its season finale Nov. 1, airing a total of eight episodes. The show made news recently not for the competition itself, but for Matt Damon trying to explain diversity in the film industry to black producer Effie Brown, who serves as a judge on the show.

AMITY MIDDLE SCHOOL ORANGE: A BLAST FROM THE PAST!

While cleaning out some drawers in the media center at Amity Middle School Ortange (AMSO), media specialist, Kristin Leibrock, found a number of photos of AMSO from the 1950s-60s and 1980s. She decided to display them; and in showing them to a fellow teacher, Jenn Marganski, Jenn suggested they also stage some "Then and Now" photos recreating the 1950s-60s photos with current students in the current media center. They did, and those are on display now as well.

THROW A HAUNTINGLY GOOD HALLOWEEN PARTY

Halloween is a special day that delights children of all ages and helps adults feel like kids at heart. Few people want the fun to end once trickor- treating is over. By throwing a Halloween party, revelers can continue celebrating well into the evening.

When hosting a Halloween party, it helps to determine who will be in attendance before making any plans. Parties that include children should be PG in nature, and hosts should find the right balance between scary and fun. While you want to have a certain measure of the macabre, make sure you don't send young guests home with nightmares. Reserve gruesome decorations and details for adult-only parties.

Halloween parties do not necessarily need to be ghoulish to be fun. Try a glittery gala masquerade party or decorate exclusively in orange and black. Classically eerie parties may feature ravens and crows, or they can be subtlely spooky with red candles and heavy curtains.

Many people can't wait to dress up for a Halloween party, even picking out their costumes months in advance. Still, not everyone feels comfortable donning a costume. To welcome all guests, don't make costumes mandatory. One way around this is to set up a Halloween Disguise Table full of accessories that anyone can borrow and use to alter their appearance. Goofy glasses, strange hats, adhesive mustaches, or masks can be fun. If someone didn't feel comfortable dressing in full costume, he or she may be more apt to pop in a set of plastic fangs or put on a spinning bow tie.

Food is an integral part of any party and can enhance Halloween soirées. Candy is a pivotal component of Halloween and you can play off that theme at your party. Set up a candy bar full of appropriately hued candies of all shapes and sizes. Put them on display in clear glass or plastic canisters so they add to your Halloween décor.

Some people like to get creative with Halloween cuisine, crafting foods into items that may look like parts of the body or other symbols of the holiday. Cookie cutters can turn sandwiches, desserts, biscuits, and many other foods into different shapes. However, foods also can be made a tad more spooky simply by renaming them or presenting them in interesting containers. Why not serve punch out of a fish aquarium? Other beverages can be housed in jugs or old bottles and labeled "potions." Use laboratory instruments, such as petri dishes, vials and beakers, to serve snacks.

A Halloween party makes for a fun night, and there is no limit to what hosts can do when planning their scary soirées.

Cooking Colonial Style

HISTORY CORNER

Harvest time during the 18th century was one of the busiest and most plentiful times of the year. What they put away for the winter would have to last them until well into spring when early vegetables would become available. Of course, the meat could be sought at any time of the year when needed. If the family could afford a goat or a cow, milk would be available as well as chickens for eggs. However, each of these has their own season and the colonial wife needed to have many skills and knowledge in the timing of food availability and storage.

What did the colonists eat? The answer depended upon where they came from and where they landed. The Spaniards settling in St. Augustine ate differently from the English people in Jamestown and so forth. Settlers brought their recipes, cooking methods and some supplies with them. Of course, eventually they used local foods introduced to them by the Native Americans. Colonial mealtimes were also different from what we know today. Breakfast was taken early if you were poor, later if you were wealthy. There was no meal called lunch. Dinner was the mid-day meal and for most people in the 18th century, it was considered the main meal of the day. Supper was the evening meal with a light selection of food.

There was no such thing as a "typical colonial meal". Breakfast was far from juice, eggs, bacon and toast. The settlers had no time to lollygag over breakfast but went straight to their chores, gulping down a bowl of porridge that had been cooking slowly all night and some cider or beer. Other fare would be cornmeal mush and molasses with more cider or beer. By the 19th century the food took on a more orderly selection of coffee, tea or chocolate, wafers, muffins, and toast with butter.

The size of breakfast grew in direct proportion to the growth of wealth. In the northeast, pies and pastries joined the menu. In the south, breakfast became a leisurely and delightful meal although it was not served until early chores were attended to. Dinner was early afternoon and served in the hall, a room that was reserved for family get-togethers where the fireplace had a crane for heating simple foods. The Bryan-Andrew house has a room designated as the hall with a crane typical of the time and the fireplace much smaller than the large cooking fireplace in the keeping room. The meal would consist of a stew, eaten on a wooden dish called a trencher and the inventory of Nathan Bryan lists 10 trenchers which matches he, his wife and their 8 children. When wooden trenchers were not yet available, a slab of stale bread served as a plate either eaten with the meal or later given to the domestic animals. The stews often consisted of pork, sweet corn and cabbage with other vegetables and roots when available. A typical middle class family's dinner had two courses, the stew or other meats, and/or a meat pie which contained fruits and spices, pancakes and fritters with a variety of sauces. Soups were most likely part of the first course. Desserts were the 2nd course with an assortment of fresh, cooked or dried fruits, custards, tarts with a variety of pound cakes, gingerbread, spice and cheesecakes.

Now inasmuch as this sounds like a typical 20th century buffet, all the foods were not available at the same time and the specialties were just that, special. Supper appears to have been non-existent during the early colonial days but appeared as a late, bedtime snack fresh ingredients, modernized recipes adapted for today's kitchens (grocery store ingredients) and contemporary interpretations served in fine 18th century style eating establishments such as Colonial Williamsburg.

The first kind is the most fun and if done with guests, a "crowd" pleaser.

Ironware is available in any complete kitchen shop and if you browse the antique shops, you can find "clean" ironware most likely from the 19th century. By clean I mean, no holes in the iron, no crevices you can't clean thoroughly and not large, as they get heavy with food. Now keep in mind, the women of yesteryear carried their kettles from place to place so if you want to really follow their lead...buy a large one. But, don't blame me if you need help taking it off the grate.

So you make a fire in your fireplace, enjoy your guests while the logs make mounds of hot coals. Once you have the coals, move them into several piles. While at the kitchen store, find some iron trivets (not painted or decorated) to set your kettles on. Place the trivets and kettles on these wonderful, glowing embers. I would start with something simple that will heat rather quickly so your guests don't starve waiting for their colonial meal. Soup works well so here goes! In a heavy pot, melt butter, add celery and chives and cook for 5 minutes stirring frequently until they are soft, not brown. Stir in chervil and tarragon and cook 1 minute. Add chicken stock and a few grindings of pepper and bring soup to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 20 minutes. Ladle into bowls and sprinkle with nutmeg. Serve with a bowl of cheese.

Thomas Jefferson's Marinated Asparagus

A note here. After his visits to France as an ambassador, Thomas Jefferson was enthralled by asparagus and brought plants to his home at Monticello. He grew many, many gardens full of this vegetable.

- Here is his recipe:
- 1 ½ lbs. asparagus, stems peeled and trimmed
- 2 T red wine vinegar
- ½ cup olive oil
- pinch of fresh thyme
- pinch of chopped, fresh parsley
- 1 egg hard cooked and chopped
- ½ small red onion finely chopped
- 1 T fine capers, drained
- salt and freshly ground white pepper

Wash the asparagus and trim the tough ends. Boil them in 2 qts. lightly salted water for 2-3 minutes until tender. Drain and let cool. Whisk the remaining ingredients until well blended. Place the asparagus on a platter and pour the mixture evenly over them. Let them marinate for a few minutes. Garnish with additional chopped egg and parsley.

Connecticut Chowder

- 4 lbs. cod or haddock
- 2 ½ cups stewed tomatoes
- 3 T butter
- 1/1/2 in cube of pork fat
 - 1/1/2 in cube of point fat made with leftovers! After all, look at what they ate for dinner!

One Massachusetts's diary of 1797 describes roast potatoes prepared with salt but no butter with ale, cider of some variety of beer was always served. Mr. Bryan's inventory once again gives us a clue as to what they ate with a box of 12 black bottles.

Food historians agree that Amelia Simmons' American Cookery, published in Hartford in 1796 is the first "American" cookbook. It was the first cookbook to include indigenous ingredients, most importantly corn meal. The first cookbook printed in the American colonies was E. Smith's The Compleat Housewife published in 1742 BUT it was a reprint of European cooking. There are three kinds of colonial/early American fare: the real thing (hearth cooking with original/

Shaker Soup

- 4 T butter
- 1 cup finely chopped celery
- 3 T finely cut chives
- 1 T chervil
- 1 tsp. dried tarragon
- 1 qt. chicken stock
- Freshly ground pepper
- Freshly ground nutmeg
- 1 cup grated cheddar cheese

- 2/3 cup cracker crumbs
- 1 sliced onion
- salt & pepper

Fry fat until crispy and remove, sauté potatoes in fat and butter with sliced onion until potatoes are cooked through but not mushy. Lightly simmer fish in water to cover, until tender. Put all ingredients in a large kettle adding tomatoes, cracker crumbs, salt and pepper. Simmer until heated through serve with crackers.

Indian Slapjack

One quart of milk, 1 pint of Indian meal (corn meal) 4 eggs, 4 spoons of flour, little salt, beat together, baked on gridles or fry in a dry pan or baked in a pan which has been rub'd with suet, lard or butter. This recipe is directly from Amelia Simmons' book, spelling and grammar as was.

OR SHALOM HOLDS ANNUAL KRISTALLNACHT TRIBUTE

The birth of Hollywood is a remarkable story of innovation and ingenuity. It is also an American-Jewish story - one in which Carl Laemmle, an immigrant from Germany, played an enormous role. Laemmle's greatest legacy, however, stems from what he did during the last two years of his life. On Sunday morning November 8, 2015, 9 AM, Congregation Or Shalom, 205 Old Grassy Hill Road, Orange will celebrate the life-saving, selfless deeds of Carl Laemmle at the annual Kristallnacht Commemoration. By 1936, the circumstances of the Jewish community in Nazi Germany had become clearly life threatening. That year, Carl Laemmle, founder of Universal Pictures, began to reach out to his German-Jewish relatives and former townspeople in hopes of bringing as many as possible to safety on American shores. In November 1938, in the aftermath of the horrors of Kristallnacht, Laemmle threw himself into the work of saving anyone he could from the clutches of the Nazi regime. Pressed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull to explain his relentless activity on behalf of "complete strangers", Laemmle wrote: "...It is simply a matter that touches me deeply and I, for one, am willing to go to the limit in helping these poor unfortunates..." In the end, Carl Laemmle saved hundreds of people from the Holocaust. The precise number of refugees he shepherded to safety in the United States

TEMPLE EMANUEL DEDICATES NEW EDUCATION WING

Celebrating construction rather than destruction, Temple Emanuel dedicated the Jonas and Barbara Miller Family education wing on Friday, September 11, 2015. Highlights of the event included the ribbon cutting and installation of a mezuzah on the entrance to the new wing. The mezuzah, generously donated by Congregation Mishkan Israel, was affixed by Rabbis Michael Farbman and Herb Brockman. The remainder of the evening included the congregation's annual Shabbat Under the Stars cookout and Kabbalat Shabbat service.

The unification of synagogue life in one building is the culmination of the congregation's 40-plus years in Orange. The new wing houses the religious school and the temple offices. The library is named for the Berkowitz family and the Rabbi's study is named for the congregation's Rabbi Emeritus, Gerald Brieger. The majority of the funds for the One Campus project came from members of the congregation, and was supplemented by a $75,000 matching grant from the Jewish Foundation of Greater New Haven.

The congregation is planning a dinner in celebration of the major donors to the One Campus project on Saturday, December 5.

The program will begin at 9 AM with a power-point presentation made by Thomas Doherty, author and professor of American Studies and chair of the American Studies Program at Brandeis University. Then, Senator Richard Blumenthal will present a commendation to the Laemmle family, who will receive it on behalf of their "Uncle Carl", may his memory bring blessing. Surrounding the Senator and the Laemmle family will be several of the hundreds who are alive today because of the life-saving deeds of Carl Laemmle. All are welcome. Free and open to the public. This program is made possible by a generous donation from the Men's Club Yellow Candle Fund. Please join us for this exciting community event!

WHO WILL DELETE YOU?

By Roberta L Nestor

Have you considered what will happen to your Facebook, Twitter, and LinkedIn accounts when you pass away? Digital assets, digital footprint, digital asset management and digital estate planning are new terms that most of us are not familiar with. However, literally hundreds of new businesses have come to market to help individuals protect their digital assets when they die. Yes, you can name an individual or company to be appointed as a digital executor in your will.

It is safe to assume that most of us have digital assets. According to Wikipedia, a digital asset is anything that exists in a binary format and comes with the right to use. The things you store on your personal computers, laptops, portable media players, tablets, smart TVs, Kindles and smartphones are all devices we use to store our digital assets.

You might start by reviewing your digital footprint:

- Email Accounts,
- Loyalty and Point Programs,
- Auto Bill Pay,
- On-Line Banking,
- One Click Shopping.

Consider the social websites or apps that you might use such as LinkedIn, Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, Match. com, Meet Up, Vine, Skype, Snap Chat, Facetime, YouTube, Trip Advisor, Hulu and Pandora are just a few that come to mind. Don't forget websites you may own for business or personal use. And for writers out there, how will you protect your blogs, journals or books you may be writing? Then we have sign on and passwords for very private information such as medical portals, socialsecurity.gov, FASFA for those with kids in college, our 401k sites, electronic filing of our tax returns, and on and on and on!

Times are changing and quickly. It may no longer be enough to only appoint a traditional executor for your estate, many of us will find that we will also need to appoint a digital executor. This person or company would be responsible for managing your digital assets when you die. They would insure that your digital assets would be distributed to the people you want in the way you want. In 2005 CT signed into law a provision that allows appointed executors to access email accounts. The state requires a death certificate and documentation of the executor's appointment before that representative can see the deceased person's emails or social networking accounts. If you don't want your executor to be able to access this information, you have to be specific in your will. Also consider the digital capability of your executor, would they even know where your passwords are stored or the process involved to shutting accounts down?

Not surprising, the most popular social websites such as LinkedIn, Facebook and Twitter all have written processes and requirements to remove a deceased person's account. For example, to report the passing of a LinkedIn member, the site's Verification of Death Form must be completed and submitted. The form requires the account holder's email address, URL of LinkedIn profile, date of death and a death notice or certificate.

If you have extensive digital assets you may want to consider working with companies who provide "vaults" that will store your websites, passwords and specific instructions for your digital executor. Everplans.com has extensive information on digital estate planning, but a google search will bring you too many resources. You might want to check with your attorney and see what services they may provide or recommend when it comes to digital estate planning.

The visual effects and overall scope of the action sequences go beyond what was done in the original, but even with upgraded tech and bigger teeth, this Jurassic thriller isn't as thrilling. Characters are so one-sided that even Pratt's immutable charm gets a little muted.

"Testament of Youth" (PG-13) --Adapted from the bestselling memoir, this drama tells the story of a young woman finding herself and her whole world changed through World War I. Vera Brittain (Alicia Vikander) was an intellectual and rebellious student at Oxford, part of a growing feminist movement, and she'd fallen for her brother's friend Roland (Kit Harrington from "Game of Thrones"). When the fighting breaks out, Vera becomes a nurse, while many of her friends and loved ones become memories.

The film is visually stunning, especially in the jarring contrast between the English countryside and the bleary chaos of trench warfare. Vera is a fine and fascinating character, and her transformation is handled expertly by Vikander's performance.

"Jurassic World"

EDITOR'S NOTE: DVDs reviewed in this column are available in stores the week of October 19, 2015.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Jurassic World" (PG-13) -- Boldly defying the lessons of the past, somebody decides to build a theme park with dinosaurs surrounding poorly protected humans. Chris Pratt stars as Owen Grady, a velociraptor trainer who has a shaky alliance with a few dino-buddies. He's opposite Bryce Dallas Howard, who plays an uptight park director who doesn't take off her heels even when being chased by dinosaurs. The greedy genetic-tinkerers who run the park have crafted the biggest dino-attraction yet: the Indominus, a mutant hybrid monster made point-

"Z for Zachariah" (R) -- Nestled in a Southern valley, Ann (Margot Robbie) and her farm animals are safe from the killer radioactivity that took out (almost) every other living thing on Earth. One day, a scientist named Loomis (Chiwetel Ejiofor) stumbles into her idyllic sanctuary. As the Last Man and Woman on Earth, Loomis and Ann make good-faith efforts to get along, understand each other and try to grow some romance in the postapocalypse. Just when things seem to click, in comes Caleb (Chris Pine), a strapping miner who has more in common with Ann than Loomis ever could. The tension in the triangle, and the ideas that the characters represent, make it a slow-burning but effective post-apocalyptic drama.

HOLLYWOOI By Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Sophia Loren turned 81 on Sept. 20 and spent her birthday launching Dolce & Gabbana's new lipstick, "Sophia Loren No. 1." Many film historians believe Sophia and Jane Fonda are the last two movie stars left from Hollywood's Golden Age, when the big film studios ruled Hollywood.

Sophia appeared opposite many of the greatest male movie stars. In 1957, she starred with Alan Ladd in "Boy on a Dolphin," Cary Grant and Frank Sinatra in "Pride & Passion," and John Wayne in "Legend of the Lost." In 1960, she starred opposite Clark Gable in "It Started in Naples," Peter Sellers in "The Millionairess" and Vittorio De Sica in "Two Women," for which she became the first winner of a best-actress Oscar for a non-English speaking film.

In 1961, she co-starred with Charlton Heston in "El Cid," followed by two films with Marcello Mastroianni: "Yesterday, Today & Tomorrow" (1963) and "Marriage Italian Style" (1964). She next starred with Paul Newman in "Lady L" (1965); Gregory Peck in "Arabesque" (1966); Marlon Brando in "A Countess From Hong Kong," directed by Charlie Chaplain (1967); Peter O'Toole in "Man of La Mancha" (1972); and Richard Burton in "The Voyage" (1974), to name just a few of her 95 films.

Yet, with all those sexy male stars, she was rumored to have had only one affair, with Cary Grant, remaining true to the love of life, producer Carlo Ponti, whom she began dating when she was 15 and he was 37. They were married from 1957-1962 but had to annul the marriage when Ponti was arrested for bigamy, and Sophia also was sent to jail. They eventually became French citizens, obtained his divorce and married there in 1966. They stayed married until his death in 2007.

When asked if she would ever marry again, Sophia confessed, "No, never again. It would be impossible to love anyone else." She and Ponti had two sons. One of them, Edoardo Ponti, married Sasha Alexander, who was agent Caitlin Todd on "NCIS" for 50 episodes and currently plays Maura Isles on "Rizzoli & Isles." They have a 9-year-old daughter and a 5-year-old son.

Sophia's contemporary, Gina Lollobrigida, celebrated her 88th birthday July 27. Among her best films were "Trapeze," with Burt Lancaster and Tony Curtis, and "Hunchback of Notre Dame," with Anthony Quinn, both in 1956. Then came "Never So Few," with Frank Sinatra and Steve McQueen (1959), "Solomon & Sheba," with Yul Brynner (1959) and "Come September," with Rock Hudson (1961).

The closest we can come to a movie sex symbol these days are Sophia Vergara (a TV star) and Jennifer Lopez (a music personality)! Anyone got a time machine?

SEEN THROUGH THE LENZ: TOWN NEEDS A PRO-ACTIVE LEADER

By Bettina Thiel - Orange Town News Correspondent

If elected to the town's top spot, Democrat Kenneth Lenz would strive to be more pro-active rather than re-active in moving the town forward, he said in a recent interview in his office. And to provide that kind of leadership, he is challenging First Selectman Jim Zeoli in the upcoming municipal election on Tuesday, November 3.

He points out the need for better planning regarding crumbling school buildings, the roads, the High Plains

Community Center, all of which require refurbishing. Instead of waiting for the infrastructure to break down — as happened at Peck Place School — the town needs to plan ahead.

Looking out for the community: Lenz said the bridge over the Wepawaug River on Derby Milford Road is in poor condition, and the town was notified of it two years ago. But as far as he knows, no planning has taken place. Federal and state money would probably cover a good amount of the $65 million project, but the town would still be responsible for anywhere between $2 and 4 million, a large project for a town of Orange's size. "It should have been looked at how to find the funds," Lenz said.

Recent paving efforts notwithstanding, the Community Center is in bad shape, he said; public playgrounds are getting rusty and most school lots need paving. Lenz said if elected, he would investigate installing solar panels on school buildings, and initiate a costbenefit analysis for that purpose.

Another issue that he championed during his campaign two years ago, and that hasn't lost its immediacy, is the need for affordable senior housing. Silverbrook Estates with its 40 or so units has been dealing with a leaking roof, and a handful of apartments had to be evacuated. "I am told there is a seven-year waiting list for Silverbrook," he said. The Fieldstone Village housing development is earmarked for active adults, and units start in the high $400,000s. "I'm not saying it's bad for Orange to have that," he said, but it doesn't meet the need of many local seniors. Lenz worries that like Peck Place, which had to be abruptly shut down after a January pipe failure, another school building may have to be shut down if the town is not taking care of them. "There is no formal Long Range he also gained new respect for the complexity of some of the issues that have arisen, such as the running bamboo, the Peck Place School flooding and remediation, discussion regarding the Plan of Development and, most recently, a planned gun show at the community center.

Overall, the board does a fine job listening to one another, cooperating and finding consensus whenever possible, he said of his fellow selectmen. "If we listen to one another we can often find the best solutions."

'Culture of volunteerism': "There is no question that Orange is a great place to live," he said. "and I want to make it better". One thing that the town has going for it is the "culture of volunteerism," he said. People, in spite of their busy lives, are willing to devote some time to the good of the town. Lenz himself is one of those volunteers. In addition to the Board of Selectmen, he is active with the Lions Club, the Orange Players, at Holy Infant Church and the Boy Scouts.

He also advocated for area homeowners when the Golden Hill Paugussett tribe tried to gain tribal recognition, laying claim to a scattering of properties from Trumbull to Seymour. The case was eventually laid to rest in court. It seems fitting that a campaign banner sports a magnifying lens as a pun on his name. After all, he taught English grammar and composition at the college level for years before he became a lawyer. When he is not engaging people on the campaign trail, he is helping people in financial and personal hardship. "I wanted to make a meaningful impact in people's lives," he said about his reasons to switch profession. 'IT'S A BALANCING ACT' — ZEOLI SEEKS SIXTH TERM

By Bettina Thiel - Orange Town News Correspondent

First Selectman Jim Zeoli, born-andbred in Orange, has guided this town for close to ten years now, and this fall he is seeking his sixth term. Several important development projects have come to fruition over the course of the last two years, opening the prospect for economic expansion and, eventually, an increased tax base.

His biggest priority, he said in a phone interview, is to balance quality of life with fiscal responsibility. He is seeking to provide services to a wide range of residents, "in a manner that doesn't overly impact the well-being of any group of residents". "It's a balancing act," he added.

Continue Infrastructure Improvements: Developing Fred Wolfe Park is one of the first things he mentioned. The Park and Recreation Commission has adopted a master plan for the 64-acre parcel. In addition to the already existing soccer fields the Commission is planning to add lacrosse fields. Zeoli said if possible, the town would add a second entrance and additional parking, so as to alleviate the traffic congestion on Hollow Road. Future projects for the park include a running/walking track and a dog park, also bathroom facilities and storage.

Community Center: The remodeling project of the south wing at High Plains Community Center is getting back on track after it had "hit some bump in the road," he said. In the meantime, the reconstruction and paving of the parking lot has been worked on this summer. Infrastructure, road and bridge repairs are also on his to-do list. Education: Schools are the best that they can be Zeoli said. But the town "needs to keep an eye" on the management, he said. After all, between the local and the regional boards of education, education draws 63% of the town's budget. ShopRite: Residents welcomed the recent news that Harry Garafalo will open a ShopRite at the former Stop and Shop location on Bull Hill Lane. "The residents of Orange have been waiting for a new supermarket to come to the community," Zeoli wrote in a press release at the time. "We've been working hard to bring an excellent operator like ShopRite and the Garafalo family to that location. This full-service supermarket will be a great addition to the town."

Transit Oriented District: A private entity called Orange Land Development, LLC, under the leadership of former Dichello

Distributors CEO

Ed Crowley, has purchased a 13-acre

parcel from the beer

distributor for development of a "Transit oriented district".

The anchor of this district will be an

Orange train station,

with a mix of residential, retail and commercial properties around it. It would also provide

a parking garage, as parking is often short at the Milford and West Haven train stations.

Zeoli said since this is a private enterprise, the town is not involved in the financing of it. However, the project cannot proceed until the State electrifies the railway and builds the platform, Zeoli wrote on the GOP website, orangectrepublicans.com. He promised that the town will "work with the developer to advance this project". A groundbreaking may be as early as the spring of 2016.

Office Building: Another chip in Zeoli's cap was the announcement this summer that Shelton developer Robert Scinto is planning to build a four-story, 80,000 square foot glass office building on the former Stew Leonard's site. The town has welcomed the project as appropriate for this space, and helped usher it through the permitting process. The building will serve as corporate headquarters, Zeoli said, although the company is not officially named yet.

Republican Town Committee Chairman Nancy Nastri said the feedback they are getting from the GOP underticket candidates when they go doorto-door is overwhelmingly positive. "People are satisfied with the way things are running," she said. She said their campaign was not going to engage in negative attack ads, just "straightforward leadership". Residents who want to talk to the Republican candidates, including Jim Zeoli, can meet them at Republican headquarters in the former Racebrook Market at the intersection of Racebrook Road and Boston Post Road. There will also be two public debates between the two candidates for first selectman, one on Sunday, October 11 at 10 a.m. at Congregation Or Shalom; the debate sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce will take place Monday, October 26, at 7 p.m. at the High Plains Community Center.

ABSENTEE BALLOTS AVAILABLE FOR MUNICIPAL ELECTION

Orange Town Clerk Patrick O'Sullivan announced that Absentee Ballots for the November 3, 2015 municipal election will be available to electors starting on October 2, 2015. Pursuant to the Connecticut Constitution, if an elector is unable to appear in person at the polling place during the hours of voting, there are six reasons allowed for voting by a regular absentee ballot:

- Active service in the Armed Forces of the United States;
- Absence from town during all of the hours of voting;
- 3. Illness;
- 4. Religious tenets forbid secular activity on the day of the election;
- 5. Duties as an election official at a polling place; and
- 6. Physical disability.

O'Sullivan explained that it is a multiple step process and the elector needs to complete an Application for an Absentee Ballot. An elector can get an application from the (a) Town Clerk, or (b) download from the Secretary of the State website: www.sots.ct.gov/ absenteeballot, or from campaign worker who has registered with the town clerk's office.

Town Clerk O'Sullivan stressed how important it is for the electors to follow the instructions for voting Absentee. THE BALLOT IS DOUBLE SIDED! THERE ARE 24 COLUMNS OF CANDIDATES!

- The first row contains the offices; Please note the number an elector is entitled to vote;
- Fill in the oval above the name of the candidate(s) completely;
- Put the completed ballot into envelope "B" sign, seal and date it;
- Put envelope "B" into envelope "C" and return to the Orange Town Clerk's Office; the ballot must be received on or before Election Day. The reason for the ballot going into envelope "B" and then going into envelope "C" is to protect the electors' right of privacy.

BARK BYTES...

THE HALLOWEEN NIGHTMARE FOR OUR DOGS

It's not too soon to begin thinking about Halloween and our dogs. Halloween can be fun for trick-or-treaters but a nightmare for your dog. Think about it ...the doorbell constantly ringing, scary people showing up, excessive yelling and screaming, and odd clothing that covers a stranger's eyes or head all can be very disconcerting to dogs, and even more so when experienced together on the same night. Here are some tips to keep your dog safe.

Bring your dog indoors where he can't be overwhelmed by ghouls and goblins. Pranksters love to tease dogs, or even be cruel to your dog. Make certain that sweets, including candy wrappers, are all kept well away from your dog.

- Keep candles and lighted pumpkins out of your dog's reach. When excited or agitated, it's easy for a dog to accidently knock over a lit candle.
- Don't make your dog wear a costume if he doesn't like it. Some dogs might enjoy being dressed up, but many don't. Experiment first to see if your dog likes being in a costume. If so, fine - he'll most likely enjoy himself. However, if he shows any resistance, don't do them, so protect your dog by putting him in a safe place.

- Keep him away from the front door to limit his excitement and prevent him from running outside and getting lost and injured. It might be best to put him in a separate room. If you allow your dog at the front door, keep him restrained on a leash. A dog's behavior when he sees children in masks is very unpredictable. A very gentle dog can become aggressive when fearful, resulting in possible bites. Also, a restrained dog cannot run out the front door and become lost in the neighborhood
- Check his ID tag to make sure it is secure on his collar - just in case.
- Keep candy away as chocolate and • artificial sweeteners can be toxic to

it. There is enough stress for dogs around Halloween without adding the discomfort and peculiarity of wearing a strange costume.

Finally, if you want your dog to be involved in Halloween festivities, think about his safety much as you would a small child. Your dog does not understand Halloween, so he needs you to provide for protection. Keep a firm grip on his leash if he is accompanying you trick or treating. Dogs don't understand that the person jumping out at you will not hurt you.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Some flashes of Aries ire might erupt as you confront an unusually bewildering situation. But you should be able to keep your temper under control as you work through it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) That marriage 'twixt the arts and practicality that Taureans excel at once again highlights your enjoyment of much of the week. However, you need to watch any sudden urge to splurge.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Even with all the plusses apparently outweighing the minuses, you still might want to defer an important decision to make sure you have all the facts you need.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) One or two problems might threaten to derail otherwise smoothly running situations at work or at home. But a few wellplaced words should help get things back on track quickly.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) This could be a good time for all you Leos and Leonas in the spotlight to open your generous Lion's hearts and share the glory with those who helped you accomplish so much along the way.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might want to get advice from someone who's been there and knows these situations better than you do, before investing time or money (or both) in a questionable matter.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Be careful how you handle a workplace matter that seems out of place in the schedule you've prepared. Before you act, one way or another, find out who set it up and why.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your entertainment aspect is strong this week. Besides providing a wonderful break from everyday obligations, sharing fun times brings you closer to those you care for.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Having a weekend fun fest? Your friend or relative who's down in the emotional dumps could perk up if you find a way to include him or her in your plans.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) If you're in one of those "the Goat knows best" periods, you might want to ease up and try listening to what others have to say. You could learn something.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) That new challenge is getting closer, and you should be out there now showing facts and figures to potential allies to help persuade them to rally to your support. Good luck.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Getting a head start on holiday plans could help free up some time later to spend on other projects. Meanwhile, a colleague has some ideas that you might find worth discussing.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are always there for others, and sometimes you need to be reminded that you need to be there for yourself as well.

CAT'S SHEDDING A HAIRY ISSUE

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: My

cat "Chester" has always been a big shedder with his long hair. I've pretty much kept up with it by brushing his coat every evening. But lately I've noticed a lot more hair deposited on the furniture and carpet, and when which can irritate his skin and make him scratch more.

Skin diseases such as ringworm can be another cause -- it's something the vet will certainly check for, along with flea infestation or other irritants.

Excess shedding also can signal much more serious conditions, such as diabetes or hyperthyroidism, something that a vet can diagnose. Ahead of the appointment, watch Chester's behavior: Is he drinking excessively? Does he seem agitated? Is he eating as much as he used to? Write down anything that seems unusual and shared it with the vet. If Chester has developed a health condition, the vet can prescribe the right medications and advise you on the best diet to feed him. If allergies or some unknown irritant is at work, the exam will rule out other possible causes so you can focus on finding a shedding solution.

Just Like Cats & Dogs by Dave T. Phippe

"I think it's time we decrease his medication."

Out on a Limb

DEAR CHERIE: To start, make an appointment with Chester's vet for a complete physical exam. Excess shedding doesn't always have a concrete explanation, but it can signal a change in his health, especially if it wasn't a problem before.

Excess shedding can have a cause as benign as changes in the season -- shedding in spring and fall, for example. Or it could be triggered by allergies to dust, pollen and molds,
