ORANGE TRAIN STATION PASSES LOCAL HURDLE

By Laura Fantarella - Orange Town News Correspondent

Plans to build a 799-car parking garage, 200 residential apartments and 22,000 square feet of commercial space at the site of the proposed Orange Train Station got the go ahead from the Town's Plan & Zoning Commission (TPZC) last week. The project, submitted by Ed Crowley on behalf of the Orange Land Development LLC, will be constructed on 8.091 acres located beyond the eastern end of Salem Lane in the town's Transit Oriented District (TOD). Crowley said he and his development team worked for nearly a year to submit a proposal that adhered to all the TOD regulations outlined by the town. "The TPZC had the foresight to begin zoning a TOD in 2009" he said. "The application was a complicated issue from a zoning perspective and we firmly believe they got it right. Now it becomes a reality."

Not quite, says TPZC commissioner Ozzie Parente who points out that while the applicant has all the approvals he needs from the town to move forward, the project is contingent on the state's Department of Transportation building a Metro North Train Station at the site. "If there's no train station, there's no project," Parente said. Yet TPZC members and Crowley are optimistic as the plan is indeed chugging along at the state level. According to DOT Commissioner James Redeker, the Orange Train Station project is on schedule. "We are currently involved with the environmental component of the plan and will be selecting a platform designer," Redeker said.

Once the platform is constructed, construction can begin on the 186,000 square foot parking garage. "The platform becomes the catalyst for the rest of the project," t Crowley said. He envisions commercial development on the site, located on either side of Salem Lane, which may include a coffee shop, deli, dry cleaners and/or other businesses that cater to commuters. One and two-bedroom apartments will be built above the commercial space. After construction, a portion of the parking garage will become a state-owned facility. In keeping with the TOD, walkways will connect adjoining properties to minimize traffic flow.

ORANGE POLICE OFFERS SAFETY ASSESSMENTS IN WAKE OF BREAK-INS

By Melissa Nicefaro – Orange Town News Correspondent

Following a summer plagued with unlocked cars being entered and loose change, small electronics and other valuables taken, and even in some instances cars stolen, the Orange Police Department is urging residents to lock up.

According to police, in each case over the past several months, the vehicles have been left unlocked. In several cases, the owners stated they did not want the car damaged, so they left it unlocked. Other communities have been struggling with this criminal behavior as well.

According to a press release from Orange Police, "We have also investigated several instances where residents have not only left cars unsecured, but left the keys inside their cars. This resulted in the cars being stolen. In many cases a stolen car from another community is recovered nearby, usually used to transport the perpetrators to Orange." There has been no specific pattern of this behavior and all areas of town have been targeted.

Though the thefts tend to be from unlocked cars, police did note that after several cars were entered in the Greenbrier neighborhood, the thieves were a little more brazen and removed a window screen on a home and entered the kitchen and stole some small electronics.

On September 22, police were notified of suspicious activity at a Currier Drive home. A neighbor reported that a shiny silver sedan with tinted windows had just left the neighbor's house and she thought the occupants had committed a burglary. The neighbor saw the car driving in the area and she left in her own vehicle. According to police, she then observed the suspect vehicle backed into the victims' driveway. As she passed, two hooded suspects exited the residence carrying unknown items and entered the suspect vehicle. It then drove off at high speed. The neighbor attempted to follow it and last observed it turn west toward Milford on the Boston Post Road. The neighbor returned to the neighborhood and called police. The homeowner returned home after being notified of the burglary and found two computers, a coin collection, and bottles of wine had been taken.

Police urge residents to call police as soon as they see suspicious activity and avoid getting directly involved. Residents are asked to make every effort to get

"PINK CAR" A REMINDER OF CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

By Laura Fantarella - Orange Town News Correspondent

No sirens needed for one of the Police Department's patrol vehicles this month –its bright pink exterior may be all that's needed to see it coming. One of the department's six SUVs was given a temporary "paint" job as it's been wrapped from roof to wheels as a not-too-subtle reminder that October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

It's a cause near and dear to the Assistant Police Chief Tony Cuozzo's heart, not only because the town has more than its fair share of women diagnosed with the disease, but because his own mom, Carole, is a survivor. The truck will be front and center at the Town Hall's Breast Cancer Awareness ceremony October 19 where survivors and their family members will be invited to cover the wrap with messages of hope.

Cuozzo proposed the wrap on a whim, contacting a representative from packaging manufacturer Avery Denison to ask if the company might donate the vinyl material. "They didn't hesitate," Cuozzo said. Next he called upon twin brother Arnie Jr. who was more than happy to donate his automotive detailing services to wrap the car. Cuozzo thought some of the male officers would balk at having to drive the girly looking wheels, but he was mistaken. "They think it's awesome, everyone is begging to drive it," he said. "They know it's an honorable cause that drives crazy attention." It was a hit on display at the recent Country Fair, where many a fair-goer stopped to snap photos and selfies.

The department car will stay wrapped throughout October.

vehicle license plates and descriptions of both the vehicle and its occupants. Most residential burglaries occur during the day. Residents should consider strong locks with deadbolts. Neighbors should keep an eye on each other and report suspicious activity to police immediately.

According to Police Officer Robert Amarone, as cliché as it sounds, 'if you see something, say something'. The thieves are typically entering unlocked cars at night. He suggests residents lock their cars, remove valuables left in plain sight and never leave the car running unattended or the keys in the car overnight. Additionally, homes should be locked, windows locked and outdoor lights left on for security. Residents can contact Ofc. Bobby Amarone at 203-891-2138 for tips and to schedule a security assessment of their home.

SCHOOLS REQUIRED TO EDUCATE ABOUT SEXUAL ABUSE

By Melissa Nicefaro – Orange Town News Correspondent

Under new state mandates, the Orange Board of Education is now required to implement a prevention-oriented child sexual abuse program. Under Erin's Law, elementary school students will have presentations that teach age-appropriate preventative measures to avoid sexual abuse.

The Board of Education heard a presentation from staff at the Rape Crisis Center of Milford in order to prepare for the implementation. "Part of the Rape Crisis Center is a component called Project Teach, where they go into schools to inform about sexual abuse," explained Superintendent of Schools Vince Scarpetti. "Last year we received a state mandate and we began training with Mr. Vitti, DCF and the Orange Police Department."

Orange, according to Tony Vitti, Executive Director of the Center, is the first of the seven towns that the center covers to begin to adapt an informative program in the schools. "This is more about prevention. As all of the studies show, prevention works and it reduces—especially in our world—these types of crimes," Vitti said. "People initially think, 'Why do I want my child to talk about this?' Everything covered is age appropriate and is delivered by experts. The important thing about experts delivering the material is its unbiased and the message that needs to be delivered is delivered the exact same way every single time."

Vitti, a long-time Orange resident and former board of education member, said he wants kids to know prevention and to make sure that they're safe. "These programs are designed to help kids with honesty and respect. It's not just about something that we're so hesitant to talk about—sexual assault—this program helps to make them more well-rounded people," Vitti said. "We want everything to be a collaborative team effort. We never want parents to feel they're in the dark about something or that anything will be done that they're not comfortable with," said Victoria Carnera, Community Educator for the center.

Prior to each visit, a letter goes home to parents outlining the presentation that students will be attending and an option for parents to call Carnera if they have any questions or concerns. "Most of the time, by the time we're finished talking, they're completely comfortable.

I've never had a parent speak to me and then decide 'absolutely not; this isn't for my kid'. We do, however, offer for parents to opt-out if they are truly not comfortable," she said.

Carnera was asked to provide a brief overview of the program for first and fifth grade students to the Board of Education. The first grade program is discussion based and lasts 30-45 minutes. Students in all age levels are permitted to leave the discussion if something is upsetting to them. Carnera also offers to have private conversations with students after the presentation and after school.

The first grade program covers what are referred to as 'OK touches' and 'Not OK touches.' OK touches make a person feel happy, safe and good inside—such as a high-five or a light tap on the shoulder. Not OK touches make a person feel sad, unsafe and uncomfortable on the inside. "Next we go over the body. We tell them that they are the boss of their own body, and if something is not okay with them, they will decide that," Carnera said. "We talk generally about body parts, not using the terms that adults would use, but more like top front, bottom front, bottom back, and we discuss the 'clean and healthy' rule, which means that someone can only touch certain parts of your body if they're keeping you clean or healthy."

The children are taught that if someone breaks the 'clean and healthy rule,' they are to say no, get away safely and call a trusted adult. "We spend a lot of time talking about trusted adults. We want children to know that trusted adults include more than mom and dad and teachers," Carnera said.

The program builds with a new age-appropriate focus for each grade. The fifth grade presentation focuses on healthy relationships. "This program emphasizes healthy communication skills, interpersonal skills and empathy-building. We talk about characteristics of healthy relationships and friendships, boundaries and equality on a verbal and non-verbal level," Carnera said.

The curriculum was written by community educators from nine sexual assault centers in response to state mandates for all schools to incorporate a sexual assault lesson. Representatives have been offering programs to the communities it serves for 25 years.

Highway Department Does A Superb Job

I would be remiss if I did not acknowledge the superb job the Town of Orange Highway Department working in conjunction with the Tilcon Company did in the total reconstruction of Russell Avenue.

The scope of the project included the replacement of all existing storm basins, the installation of several hundred feet of additional new drainage pipe and storm basins, total replacement of the existing roadway, new curbing, and the replacement of top soil and grass seed where required.

Thank you for maintaining our roads so that safe travel is ensured year round.

Sincerely,

Gerald Butcher

AARF Says Thank You

The Orange Hot Moms recently held a softball fundraiser for Amity Animal Rescue Fund. (AARF). This wonderful group of people, led by Attorney Debra Marino, came out on a Friday evening to have fun playing ball.

In the process, they raised awareness of the need to help AARF continue its mission of helping feral and companion animals in our community. Residents made baked goods which were available for sale. A donation table encouraged people to contribute to our cause.

TOWN DEPARTMENTS & AGENCIES

FROM THE OFFICE OF THE FIRE MARSHAL

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK IS OCTOBER 9-15

The week of October 9-15, 2016 is Fire Prevention Week. Since 1922, this event has been observed on the Sunday through Saturday period in which October 9 falls. It is an opportunity to alert and educate the public as to the importance of fire safety and each citizen's role in fire prevention. Originally, it was a one day event celebrated on October 9, 1911 on the 40th anniversary of the Great Chicago Fire by the group known today as the International Fire Marshals Association. It is held to commemorate firefighters and to advance fire prevention awareness. The observance was extended to a week in a proclamation by President Calvin Coolidge in 1922 and is the longest running public health and safety event on record. Every President of the United States, since 1925, has signed a proclamation declaring a national observance during this week. The 2016 theme for Fire Prevention Week is "Don't Wait - Check the Date! Replace Smoke Alarms Every 10 years".

Smoke alarms save lives. The chance of dying in a home fire is cut nearly in half by having a functioning smoke alarm. As the majority of these fires occur at night, many believe that they will be awakened by the smell of smoke, but the poisonous gases and smoke can numb the senses and cause a deeper sleep. An alarm can alert occupants to the presence of a fire and allow for an escape.

The Orange Fire Marshal's Office offers these tips for installing, testing and maintaining smoke alarms. Choose an alarm that bears the label of a recognized testing laboratory. An ionization smoke alarm is generally more responsive to flaming fires and a photo-electric smoke alarm is usually more responsive to smoldering fires. For the best protection, both types of alarms or a combination of the two should be installed in homes. Place smoke alarms on every level, including the basement, and outside all sleeping areas. For added safety, install smoke alarms in every bedroom, as well as rooms where sofas or futons may be used for guests or for a child's sleepover. Since smoke rises, alarms should be mounted on a wall at 4 to 12 inches from the ceiling and 4 inches from the nearest wall. For a vaulted ceiling, install at the highest point. Unless the alarm has 10 year batteries, change the batteries in smoke alarms at least twice a year. Replacing them at daylight savings time, when clocks are changed, is a helpful reminder. Test the alarm every month. Use the test button or an approved smoke substitute. Clean the units according to the manufacturer's instructions. If the home has a central monitoring system, test it as directed by the company. Do not use an open-flame device. Replace smoke alarms every 10 years to protect against failure. They may work when tested, but the older models can be less reliable. To find out how old an alarm is, look at the date of manufacture on the back of the alarm. If an alarm "chirps" to indicate a low battery, change it as soon as possible. Do not disable the alarm by "borrowing" the batteries for other uses or because of nuisance activations from cooking or bathroom steam. Never paint over a smoke alarm. Special alarms, with a strobe or flashing light and audible alarm, are available for those who are deaf or hard of hearing. Vibrating devices may also be helpful. When sleeping, be sure that the alarm will rouse all family members and have someone who is easily awakened assigned to wake the others, perhaps by yelling "FIRE" or pounding on doors or walls. There are also alarms available that include the ability to record a voice announcement.

Fires can occur day or night and the early notification to all family members by a smoke alarm can save lives. It is important to have and practice a home escape plan. Everyone should know two ways out of each room. A meeting place, outside the home, should be determined. By preparing, you and your family will respond more calmly, feel more secure and act more quickly in an emergency. Never hesitate to call 911 and alert the Fire Department if the alarm is activated, even if you cannot see or smell smoke. Smoke alarms are made to detect small, trace amounts of smoke and to provide an early warning of a fire. Information on fire safety and prevention can be viewed online at www.orangefiremarshal.com, www.nfpa.org and www.sparky.org.

In the past, The Orange Fire Marshal's Office has had a program that provided and/or installed free smoke alarms to Orange residents. It was very successful, as over 3000 smoke alarms were distributed. It is hoped to have the funding available in the near future to reinstate this service. If assistance is needed with changing the batteries in an existing alarm or for help when installing a battery powered detector, please contact the Fire Marshal's Office at (203) 891-4711, Monday through Friday from 8:30 am to 4:30 pm.

THE OVFD AUXILIARY IS HOSTING A 'PAINT NITE'

On Monday, October 24th come join us for an evening of fun and painting while helping to support the Orange Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary. All the money the Auxiliary raises goes to support our 100% volunteer Fire Department to help with the expenses for training, equipment, and apparatus to keep our small town safe.

Come let your inner artist out as we paint along with a professional artist, and learn how to create your very own one of a kind masterpiece that you get to take home with you. We will be painting 'Buzzin Around' which you can see here.

There's no experience necessary and we'll provide all the supplies, so you don't have to worry about a thing (except having a great time!). In keeping this a family friendly event, alcohol is not permitted on the premises. Coffee and dessert will be served.

We will be starting promptly at 7 PM at the Fire House in the center of town, 625 Orange Center Road, so please get there early to park and get seats with those you're coming with. Tickets are $45 and you can purchase them by going to <http://paintnite.com/pages/events/view/newhaven/1108210>. Tickets must be purchased in advance and are being sold exclusively online. We will not be able to take walk-ins at the door. If you don't have access to buying online, please contact us to make arrangements to attend.

For more information, please contact Jillian at 203-799-2486 or OVFDAuxiliary@hotmail.com, and find us on Facebook at <https://www.facebook.com/OVFDAuxiliary>. We look forward to seeing all the artwork that is created!

FROM THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS

Just a few gentle reminders regarding the Orange Recycle program:

The Recycle bins that have been issued to Orange homes belong to the Town of Orange and must stay with the home. When a family moves, the bin is to stay with the home. If a bin is taken from the home, it is the responsibility of the new home owner to purchase a bin. New bins cost $50.00 per bin. If anyone requires a second bin, they can be ordered by calling the Public Works Department at the same cost.

Please do not overstuff bins. Break down and cut up cardboard boxes before placing them in the bins. Also, plastic shopping bags are not recyclable items. A list of recyclable items is available at <http://www.orange-ct.gov/govser/recycling.htm>.

Please place your bins out on the curb the night before your designated day. Place bin at the end of the driveway where the pavement begins, bin opening toward the street. If the bin is too far, the recycle truck may not be able to reach it. Placement of bins should be at least 4 feet away from obstacles such as mailboxes, trees, stone walls, cars, snow piles, fire hydrants and other objects obstructing the lifting and dumping arm on the recycle truck.

The town's transfer station has recycling stations available for large items that do not fit in the bins or if you missed your day and cannot wait until next week. If a Holiday falls on your recycle day, bins will be picked up the following day. Transfer station hours are as follows:

- Monday, Wednesday, Friday, Saturday 8am – 4:30pm; and
- Tuesday and Thursday 8am – 2pm.

If you should have any questions, please contact the Public Works Department at 203-891-4712 or at snapoli@orange-ct.gov.

RED CROSS URGES BLOOD & PLATELET DONATIONS

The American Red Cross urges eligible donors to give blood and platelets this fall to help restock the shelves following a significant summer shortage to ensure an adequate blood supply for patients in need. Through the first two weeks of September, the Red Cross is down more than 10,000 donations from what is needed to replenish the blood supply and be prepared for emergencies large and small. Declines in donations can lead to blood shortages and make it difficult to meet patient needs should a disaster or emergency occur.

Donors of all blood types are needed as blood products continue to be distributed to hospitals almost as quickly as donations come in. To make an appointment to give blood, download the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). Donors are encouraged to make appointments and complete the RapidPass online health history questionnaire at redcrossblood.org/rapidpass to help reduce wait times.

Opportunities to give in Orange will be held on October 10, 2016, 11 a.m. - 4 p.m., TGI Fridays, 348 Boston Post Road.

Orange Community Nursery School is excited to kick off our 60th anniversary of nurturing pre-schoolers! Pictured here, the students of our 4 year old class and our 5 year old kindergarten prep class are showing their welcome back smiles!

Kindergartners of Mary L. Tracy School happily bounced off of buses for the first day of school! They were greeted by droves of proud parents and happy staffers. Smiles and warmth were all around. And maybe a few joyful tears as well. This school year promises to be another memorable one with our town's youngest students Peck Place students and their families enjoyed a Welcome Back Picnic hosted by the PTO on August 25th. Incoming First Graders enjoyed a private tour of their new school given by the 6th grade students. All students enjoyed pizza, play and popcorn on the playground.

Q: Can you tell me what John Cusack is up to? His movies are so varied and his roles so eclectic; I can't wait to see what he has planned next. -- Janet R., via email

A: Over the summer, John held a panel at Megacon in Orlando where he addressed that question. Currently, his Edgar Cayce project is still in development and is getting closer to fruition. He's dreamed of making this biopic for at least a decade, and I can't wait to see the fruits of his labor. He also is slated to star in "Southern Fury" with Nicolas Cage, and "Misfortune" with Willa Fitzgerald.

Another project he'd like to explore is a remake of John Huston's 1972 boxing movie "Fat City," which starred Stacy Keach and Jeff Bridges. He told us: "I don't think it's good to do a remake of a movie unless you think you can do it differently or can add something to it. I've been a boxing fan for a long time, and I thought, 'Man, I'm 49, so I'd like to do one while I can still do it.' So I thought, 'If I could do "Fat City," that would be really cool.' It was done in that sort of Technicolor '70s era when they started to make everything super-bright. At the time it was thought to be cool, but it actually looks dated now. But I thought that might be a cool remake to do."

How does John feel about sequels (and no, he's not keen on a "Say Anything" sequel)? "When it comes to sequels, you have to get all the people back together and do it the right way. So, if I was offered the chance to do a sequel to one of my own movies, I'd do it, but I'd want to do it right."

Q: I could not get enough of Netflix's "Stranger Things" this summer. Please tell me we'll get another season! -- Scott F., Conyers, Georgia

A: I am thrilled to report that there indeed will be a season two of the popular fantasy/thriller/mystery series, which is set in the summer of 1984. It centers on a group of kids who set out to save their presumed-dead friend, with the help of a new friend with supernatural powers. Season two, which will premiere in 2017 (most likely again in the summer), takes place in the fall of that same year, encompasses nine episodes and will continue of the adventures of season one.

Q: Is it true that this is the last season for "Pretty Little Liars"? -- Carrie D., via email

A: The show's creator and executive producer Marlene King confirmed that this seventh season will be the drama's last. The midseason final aired Aug. 30, with the final 10 episodes set to premiere beginning in April.

ARTS & LEISURE

ARTS EDUCATION FOR CHILDREN: ENRICHING LIVES

By Laura Hardt

Arts in CT, a nonprofit organization from Milford, Connecticut, is dedicated to bringing a lifelong love of all things creative into the state’s many communities. With over 65 different course offerings available in a myriad of art forms, people of all ages and from all walks of life are given the opportunity to express themselves in ways that they may never have been able to otherwise.

Though Arts in CT’s programs are open to everyone, the organization has made sure to place a special focus on arts education for children. With many creative programs being cut or budgeted out of students’ lives, Arts in CT helps to provide the necessary and enriching outlet that the arts offer to these young people.

Many of Arts in CT’s programs are tailored to students with an emphasis on arts integration. Through music, visual arts (drawing, painting, and the like), dance, theater, and many other fields, children are taught not only how to apply themselves creatively and hone their skills as artists, but how to use these skills and concepts in the classroom. Math and music become linked. Historical events are tied to artistic movements. Confidence speaking in front of others is boosted.

Arts in CT’s instructors are board certified and trained in the national common core standards, to ensure that students receive the best education possible. Through arts integrated classes within schools and during after school programs, children will gain the tools necessary to succeed in the classroom and later on in life. These techniques have proven effective around the country, helping to boost academic achievement and reduce absenteeism in even the most disadvantaged districts. As shown through a Mississippi State University research study, educational achievement gaps are reduced and test scores and ambition among students are raised when arts integration techniques are implemented in the classroom . According to the study, by learning the content they have already processed during the school day in a different manner (in this case, through the arts), students spend more time immersing themselves in these ideas in a manner that encourages them to think critically and creatively. In this way, knowledge is learned and retained far past the date of any test a student may take.

To make certain that all students have the chance to take part, Arts in CT offers scholarships to those in need. The organization believes that all children should have the opportunity to dream and succeed, and does its best to make these hopes a reality.

CENTENARIAN CELEBRATES AT ORANGE REHAB & HEALTH CARE

On September 23rd, 2016, Orange Rehabilitation and Health Care Center resident Evelyn Sidoti was honored with a 100th Birthday celebration at the Center. Mrs. Sidoti, a longtime Milfordite prior to moving to Orange Rehabilitation and Health Care, was born on September 23, 1916, in New York, New York. She moved to Milford, CT in the 1960s and became a member of the parish of Saint Mary Roman Catholic Church. She served others with passion as a Eucharistic Minister, giving communion not just to those attending Mass but also to those unable to attend due to illness or injury. She regularly led groups at local nursing homes in saying the Rosary, and is very proud to have cooked for the priests and deacons at the church for many years.

Evelyn Sidoti

The guest list included Mrs. Sidoti's family and friends, other facility residents, staff, and local and state politicians, including State Representatives

Pam Staneski and Charles Ferraro. Orange Rehabilitation and Health Care is a 60 bed skilled nursing center located conveniently on the Boston Post Road in Orange. It provides subacute rehabilitative and long-term care services, and has been family-owned and operated since its founding.

KOZIEL CELEBRATES 100 YEARS

Helen Len Koziel recently celebrated her 100th birthday. A resident of Orange, Helen enjoys group swimming sessions and individual exercising at both the Orange Town Pool and at the Milford YMCA. The YMCA members hosted a party for Helen with a buffet, complete with home-baked items, balloons and singing children! At High Plains in Orange, Helen was surrounded by her pool and fitness center friends and staff as they all enjoyed a cake and coffee and candy celebration.

Helen Len Koziel

Helen volunteers at the Beth El Soup Kitchen in Milford. Her fellow volunteers, "The Soup Chic's", hosted a luncheon at Rainbow Gardens for Helen. A birthday cake at the Beth El facility was an additional surprise, shared by staff, Soup Chic's, and clients. Helen was further honored by her neighbors when they attended Mass with her at St. Stanislaus Church in New Haven. A brunch at John Davenport's in New Haven followed which included a special birthday program written and performed by the Ladies of the Lake.

The culmination of her birthday celebrations was a family brunch at Biagetti's, hosted by Helen's children, Joe and Joan Koziel of Florida and Vincent and Barbara Schmidt of Orange. Long-time friends and extended family members gathered to honor our matriarch, our hero, our inspiration...the always-smiling, forever positive, unconditional love-giving woman of a century: HELEN KOZIEL.

Did You Know?
What to Do When a Loved One Dies

When a close friend, family member, or loved one dies, it can be intimidating not knowing what to do next or how soon you have to take action. Here are some suggestions of next steps to take after a loved one dies:

Locate Estate Planning Documents:

- Locate a Last Will and Testament ("Will"), any Codicils to the Will, any Trust documents, and any Memorandums. Contact the deceased individual's attorney to see if he/she knows where the documents were kept.
- Read through these documents and determine who is named as Executor and/or Trustee of the estate and contact that person.
- Read through the Memorandum or any other documents that indicate the deceased individual's preference for burial, cremation, or other disposition of remains.

Make Funeral Arrangements:

- If funeral arrangements and burial plots were prepaid, find the corresponding documents and contact the issuing company to notify them of the death and make arrangements.
- If there are no pre-existing arrangements, contact a local funeral home and begin the planning process.

Secure Property:

- If the deceased owned a home make sure it is well secured. If it seems visible to an outsider that the property is vacant, it could be targeted by criminals.
- Contact the post office and either forward or hold all mail.
- If there are any pets, make arrangements for their care.

Contact a Probate Attorney:

- If you are the executor named in the Will, contacting an attorney with experience in estate administration issues almost always will make the job easier for you.

If you are interested in learning more about what the next steps are when managing the estate of a deceased loved one, please call the office to schedule an appointment. We would be glad to meet with you for a free, no hassle initial consultation, no matter how long it lasts.

DOLLAR$ AND $EN$E

"CYBER CRIMES"

By Roberta L. Nestor

It almost seems inevitable that at some point you or someone you know will experience the darkness of the internet. As each year goes by, more of us are becoming victims of identity theft. Identity theft now comes in many forms from financial to criminal and then from medical to synthetic. Identity theft targets those that engage in social media, senior citizens, millennials as well as minor children. It is no longer a question of "how do I protect myself against identity theft?" but rather "what do I do when it happens?"

There are of course basics: First, contact your bank and other credit card companies. You will likely be required to establish new accounts, new PINS and on-line access for these. Next contact the three major credit agencies (Equifax, Transunion and Experian). Generally, these organizations will have their own forms or affidavits for you to complete. You might want to get in touch with www.scamsafe.com, a company that provides useful information related to identity theft and indicates which states participate in the Security Freeze Program and www.annualcreditreport.com who will provide you with one free credit report with on-going subsequent credit reports for a small fee.

The next steps are often not taken, however, highly recommended. You should contact the Federal Trade Commission to file a complaint. You can go on-line to file an identity theft complaint with the FTC www.ftc.gov/IDTheft or by calling 877-IDTHEFT. You should also file a report with your local police department, after all identity theft is a crime and legally documenting the incident will help you if there are repeated incidences. Most town and city websites offer great packets of information with all the numbers and resources you would need.

If your social security number has been compromised you should contact the Social Security Administration as well as the IRS. Not surprising, the IRS has a complete process for tax identity theft. Last year, the IRS received more than 1 million fraudulent tax returns and managed to stop nearly $7 billion in fraudulent tax refunds. Tax identity theft is burdensome because it never goes away. According to FORBES, the Alabama Department of Revenue Services has developed a system for taxpayers to create an electronic ID (eID) using a mobile phone app. Taxpayers file their tax return as usual and taxpayers who registered an eID will be notified once the Department of Revenue has received the taxpayer's tax return. To verify the taxpayer's identity, the taxpayer will be asked to take a selfie. That photo will be matched up with your driver's license photo. It is a whole new world!

A child's social security number can be used by identity thieves in many ways. They can open bank and credit card accounts, rent an apartment or even apply for government benefits. Periodically check your child's credit report to see if their information is being misused. It is also important to check the apps your child has downloaded on their phones. For example, there have been 100 million downloads of the global phenomenon of "Pokémon Go" as well as millions of others who have downloaded "mirror images" of the application. The fake Pokémon apps give the identity thieves a literal GPS and they can install malware, get into phone records, emails and anything else stored on your phone.

Bottom line? Be careful in cyberspace and know what to do when identity theft strikes. And make sure when you hit the "I accept" box you have read the fine print.

Jennifer Lawrence in "X-Men: Apocalypse" [Marvel Entertainment]

EDITOR'S NOTE: DVDs reviewed in this column are available in stores the week of October 3, 2016.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"X-Men: Apocalypse" (PG-13) -- A whole mess of mutants must face-off against the dreaded Apocalypse, an ancient and powerful mutant determined to live up to his name. The titular baddie (Oscar Isaac under piles of makeup) bursts onto the scene with death and destruction, and starts recruiting the strongest mutants, including Magneto (Michael Fassbender), to act as his four horsemen of killing all the humans. In his way stands the fresh-faced X-men class of 1983; young superheroes barely in control of their superpowers and led by the morally questionable Mystique (Jennifer Lawrence).

Director Bryan Singer was thought of as the guy you go to for a good X-Men movie. He's directed the better ones and been far away from the worst. Until now. The movie is just so bloated with characters, subplots and sounds that there isn't much room to really fight evil. That said, under-utilizing Oscar Isaac could be a greater injustice.

"Swiss Army Man" (R) -- When you're all alone, even having just that one friend can make all the difference. If you're especially desperate, that one friend need not be a living person, but rather the remains of one. That's one lesson learned by Hank (Paul Dano) a 20-something-ish guy stuck on an island, about to end it all until he sees some human flotsam (Daniel Radcliffe). Hank calls the corpse Manny, and as the two spend time together, it turns out that Manny is full of uses! He can be a nutcracker, a watercraft ... he even starts talking. Hank is sure of it.

It is, of course, bizarre, gross, pretty dark at times, but also overwhelmingly whimsical and warmhearted. The two-man directing team, Daniel Scheinert and Daniel Kwan, have made a noteworthy debut into feature films after making more bite-size pieces of insanity as music-video directors. Paul Dano is great in his role, and Daniel Radcliffe is the most magnetic and charming cadaver in theaters this year.

"The Purge: Election Year" (R) -- In this third installment of the hyper-violent social-allegory known as The Purge, we are treated to an embarrassingly on-the-nose treatment of election-year vitriol. As in the previous movies, The Purge is one night a year when all crime is legal, and this generally leads to gangs of psychopaths murdering people for fun. Senator Charlene Roan (Elizabeth Mitchell) is running for president, and a big part of her platform is ending the annual bloodbath. On the night of The Purge she is targeted by a coordinated attack that puts her and her head of security (Frank Grillo) on the run through the deadly night.

HOLLYWOOD

By Tony Rizzo

Recently, we told you that theater owners were disappointed with the low grosses of this summer's big movies. The studios say they have to gross double a film's cost to break even. "Ghostbusters" cost $144 million and so far has grossed only $217 million. "The Legend of Tarzan" cost $180 million and made $354 million. "Star Trek: Beyond" cost $185 million and has so far earned $300 million. On the plus side, "Suicide Squad" cost $175 million and pulled in $650 million, while "Finding Dory" is approaching the $1 billion mark. The big question: Why aren't studios keeping production costs down, so they can recoup their costs and make a profit?

The Monkees -- Mickey Dolenz, Davy Jones, Michael Nesmith and Peter Tork -- were put together as a fictional rock group for their TV series, "The Monkees," which aired from 1966-68. For years they've toured the country, mostly at Indian casinos, and sold out. Their Sept. 16 "homecoming gig" at the Pantages Theatre in Los Angeles sold out as soon as tickets went on sale. Mickey Dolenz, Michael Nesmith and Peter Tork are now minus Davy Jones, due to his passing in 2012. A few dates remain on the Monkees 50th Anniversary Tour: Seattle on Sept 25; Biloxi, Mississippi (Oct. 1); Paso Robles, California (Oct. 22); and Shippensburg, Pennsylvania (Oct. 29). The Monkees have survived because of their off-the-wall Beatles-like antics and their music, which happened to be so good, many of their songs became standards.

Bill Nye, "The Science Guy" (for five seasons), has signed a big deal with Netflix. His new talk show, "Bill Nye

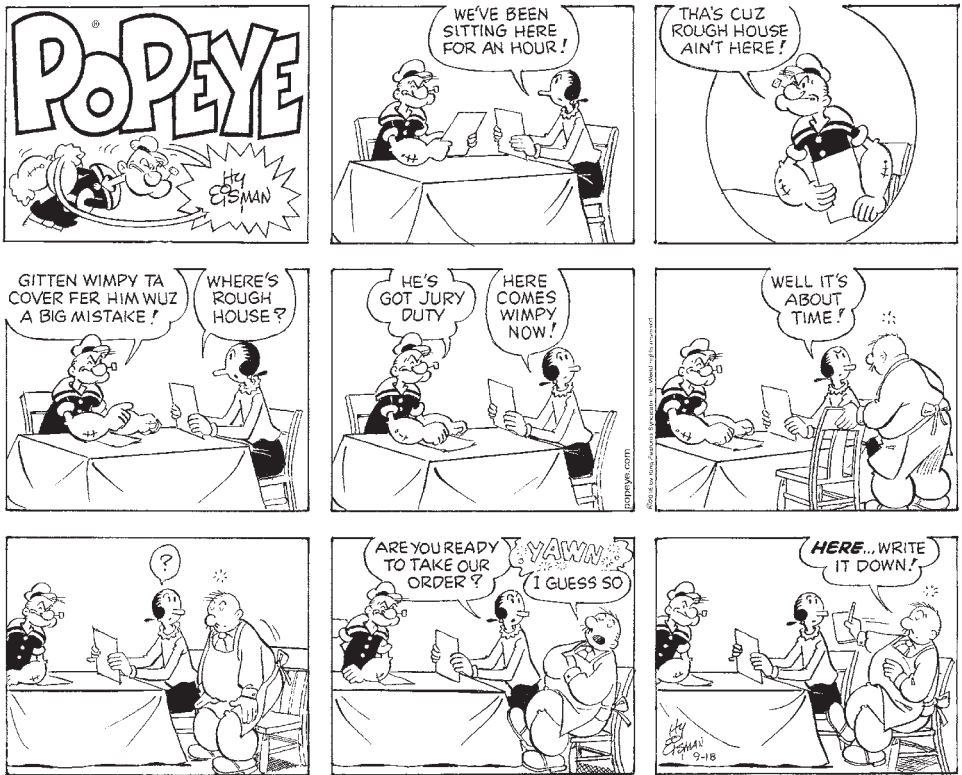

Derek Hough [ABC/Craig Sjodin]

Saves the World," will be available this spring. The show will focus on how science impacts politics, society and pop culture. This deal was made possible because of his popularity from "Dancing With the Stars."

Meanwhile, when news broke that Derek Hough, six-time "Mirror Ball" winner on "Dancing With the Stars," was returning for this season, everyone wondered what happened to his Broadway-bound show "Singin' in the Rain"? Hough claims they couldn't find a theater to open the show in, but Broadway insiders are saying the production was plagued with problems from the start. Even more suspicious is the fact that several big musicals have closed unexpectedly, freeing up those theaters. Conveniently, Derek has signed to play Corny Collins in NBC's live production of "Hairspray" on Dec. 8.

Stephen Colbert of "The Late Show" created a new term during one of his monologues that will be included in the next dictionary update. He described Donald Trump's "softening on immigration" as "electile dysfunction." I certainly can't top that!

HISTORY CORNER

By Ginny Reinhard

Buy an Old Clock & Save Time...

My last story dealt with Connecticut clocks and the ultimate use of clock movements in tin toys, also made in Connecticut. One clock company that is still manufacturing "clocks" is the Lux Clock Manufacturing Company of Waterbury, founded in 1914 by Paul Lux. Paul's wife and two sons made this a family business making clock movements only. After a fire in the their new, large facility, the company was rebuilt with family and friends in the 1920s on Johnson Street in Waterbury. During the time between 1931 & 1936 the company produced 3000 clocks per day having expanded their business until 1941 when they made war related products. A search for these products has proved elusive but after the war the Lux Clock Manufacturing Company continued to make an entire clock with the company solvent enough to open plants in Tennessee and Canada.

The Robertshaw Controls Company bought the Lux Company in 1961 producing clocks and timers using the name Lux Time Division. In 1986 the company was sold to the Siebe group of London with kitchen timers being produced to this day but not by the original Lux Clock Company. It is interesting to note that this company, started so long ago in Connecticut, did not fade into oblivion but reinvented itself to modern day.

The Lux clocks produced in Connecticut are very collectible even though they were produced in mass quantities and very inexpensive. They have become popular as novelty clocks some of which were bought for two and three dollars, now commanding two and three thousand dollars in mint condition. A trip to The Academy on a Saturday, a visitor to the antique shop will find 4 Lux cuckoo clocks on the wall having been refurbished by a local clock maker. Three of them have a somewhat stationary cuckoo and the fourth is a large clock complete with a deer head with an active cuckoo. The chain with its weights is so long that the staff has had to move a table away from the wall to accommodate its length. The clock of this size is wound by pulling on the chains.

One needs to be aware of reproductions and purchase their treasures from a reputable dealer. Lux produced animated clocks, mantle clocks, wall clocks, small and full size cuckoos and into the 20th century kitchen clocks, automobile clocks, stove timers and travel clocks. You will also be able to find a myriad of clocks in different styles with Lux movements. Some of the shelf clock faces were made by the Syracuse Ornamental Company, Inc. using a mixture of sawdust and resin that was poured into a mold, dried, then removed for painting in various colors. After WW II, the Lux Company started producing their clocks with plastic cases.

Today Lux is a privately owned company with headquarters in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania making thermostats, timers and range parts with 50 employees. Lux is one of the largest brands of thermostats, selling more than one million a year with a top rating. Starting out as a successful clock company, the Lux family can be proud of the innovative ideas for comfortable living on the market today.

So, now let's look at some other old clocks for you to collect. The Waterbury Clock Company began as a subsidiary of Benedict & Burnham, a brass manufacturing company in 1857. B & B had no background in clock making but saw clocks as a means for its brass. Over the years Waterbury would become a leading manufacturer of clocks and when it closed its doors in 1944, it had made some of the most memorable American antique wall clocks and mantel clocks, highly regarded clock movements and watches. During the Depression, Waterbury Clock managed to stay afloat with the production of the Mickey Mouse wristwatch which was a huge success. I can attest to that because I have one, bought for me by one of my uncle's employers in Woonsocket RI.

The company lacked an experienced clock maker...enter Chauncey Jerome and his brother Noble. Until their arrival, most of Waterbury's business had been in the sale of movements and cases for clocks made elsewhere. Under their direction, Waterbury's production grew rapidly needing a new building. What Jerome is most noted for is his change over from wooden clockworks to brass, perfecting his brass-works clock before moving to New Haven after his factory in Bristol burned. With his unfortunate dealings with P.T. Barnum, the Jerome Clock Company was forced into bankruptcy, never to recover but James English and Hiram Camp founded the New Haven Clock Company making clock cases taking over the control of Jerome's company, building it into the largest clock manufactory in Connecticut and one of the largest in the world.

One of the benefits to New Haven Clock Company was Jerome's reputation and the network of companies that remained interested in selling its clocks. In England Jerome & Col Ltd. sold Jerome clocks until 1904 when New Haven bought the English firm outright. Among the Jerome clocks that New Haven produced was called the Duchess. It had a rosewood veneer case an angled top, Roman numerals and a glass window to reveal the swinging pendulum. By 1920, nearly 2000 men and women turned out more than two million clocks and watches a year. With stiff competition and changing times, the company was forced out of business after WW II. The Orange Historical Society has a New Haven Clock on display at The Academy and it is still in working condition. Well, it did need some help with our clock maker.

So are you still interested in buying an antique clock? How about an Ansonia Clock? Its roots lie in the Ansonia Brass Company founded in 1844 supplying brass to clock manufacturers until 1851. Theodore Terry and Franklin Andrews who had a successful clock making business sold half of their business to Ansonia Brass in exchange for cheaper brass thus the Ansonia Clock Company was born. Many Ansonia clocks are eight-day movements however in 1875 they developed a 30-hour, spring-driven illuminated alarm clock. The alarm triggered a match to ignite a wick that illuminated the clock.

Ansonia's clocks include mantel clocks with painted china cases, beehive shelf clocks, shelf clocks with glass domes and the regulator clock which was a weight driven, pendulum clock. So far, have I peaked your interest in looking for Connecticut clocks? Is the name Seth Thomas familiar? It should be. Seth Thomas began his career as an apprentice to renowned clockmaker Eli Terry. In 1810, Thomas bought Terry's Connecticut factory and began making tall clocks with wooden movements as early as 1810. He used the wooden movement in his pillar and scroll clock cases with a scene painted on the case below the clock's face. Brass movements replaced the wooden ones in 1842. Thomas was an innovator but conservative in the appearance of his clocks. After his death in 1859, his sons introduced new clock styles including clocks with calendars.

I hope you can take time to browse in an antique shop one of these days and check out the Connecticut Clocks. Seems to me, anyone of the company' I've written about would make a nice collectible and certainly a nice gift... holidays are a comin'.

October is Adopt a Dog Month. With that in mind, bringing a new dog into the family is an exciting time for the human "pack" members, but can create stress for the non-human pack—whether dog (both new dog and resident dog), cat, bird, or other small pet. Understanding how to manage pet introductions can help ensure a lifetime of harmony for everyone.

General tips:

- Set reasonable goals when you bring a new dog into your pack. Knowing the dogs' backgrounds as to how well they were socialized will help you manage what might happen. Remember and respect that your resident dog and/or cat may perceive the new dog to be encroaching on their established territory, which can be very stressful.
- Proceed slowly and calmly. Slow-paced introductions may help prevent any fear-based or aggressive reactions from developing. If bad behaviors are not reined in from the start, they can become habit and be very hard to change in the future.
- Never leave new pets unattended, even if a pet is caged. When two pets meet, it is imperative you watch them at all times. The situation can change suddenly.
- If you have more than one resident dog, introduce each dog one at a time to the new dog to prevent them from overwhelming the newcomer.
- Stay in control of the introduction. If you are not sure how your pet will react, take the necessary precautions to keep him (and you) safe.
- Be patient and adaptable. You will need to teach your new dog to trust you while communicating to your resident pets that you will continue to keep them safe. Building good relationships takes time.

Dog to Dog

Before you bring the new dog (or puppy) home, bring home his scent so your resident pets can be introduced to his smell first. Rub the new dog with a cloth or use a blanket he has slept on and bring it into your home and place it where he will be sleeping.

In addition, be sure both your resident dog and the new dog are up to date on their vaccinations to avoid any risk of infection.

Introduce in a Neutral Location

Introduce the dogs in a neutral location that is unfamiliar to both dogs, such as a park. This prevents your resident dog from feeling his territory is being threatened. Each dog should be on a loosely held six-foot leash and handled by a separate person. Try to stay relaxed so the dogs don't pick up on any tension you might be feeling.

Don't force an interaction between the dogs. Just walk near each other for a few minutes. One or both of the dogs may ignore each other, which is fine. Just stay upbeat and give the dogs time to get comfortable with the situation.

Now, allow the dogs to sniff each other for just a few seconds, with the handlers offering high-pitched, happy praise if there are positive signs from the dogs. Then lead the dogs away from each other. Do several more sets of brief introductions, which prevent the dogs from focusing too hard and escalating to an aggressive response.

If you see any of these types of reactions, quickly lead the dogs away from each other and try to get them to focus on you. Then you can try a very brief introduction again, at a further distance. Only proceed to the next step when you see the dogs are tolerating each other.

Managing the New Dog in Your Home

Pick up all pet toys, food bowls, beds and the like before you bring the new dog into the house to prevent any tiffs over prized possessions. You can return the resident dog's toys to him in a few weeks, and give the new dogs some new toys of his own. In the meantime, give the dogs toys only when they are in separate areas or their crates.

When you bring the new dog home, put your current pets in a separate area of your home; then, walk the new dog around your home on a leash to show him where he will sleep and eat, where the other pets sleep and eat, etc.

Establish boundaries in your home by using baby gates and closing off rooms and areas while all the pets acclimate to the new situation. This way they can see and get used to one another. Allow the resident dog to roam the house, while confining the new dog behind a barrier at first.

Keep the resident dog's areas for sleeping and eating separate so he doesn't feel his territory is being threatened. Feed the dogs in separate areas, and pick up their food bowls after feeding time is done. Keep the dogs confined in separate areas of your home any time you are away or can't watch them.

While your dogs may enjoy each other as playmates, supervise their play to prevent them from getting over excited, which can lead to injury of one or both dogs. Interrupt their play if one dog begins to bully or growl at the other, and separate them for a few minutes. Praise them when they are playing well together.

Puppies to Adult Dogs

Not all resident dogs will welcome a new puppy into the home. Puppies are notorious for looking for attention from adult dogs (and everyone else), and so must be supervised when they are with other animals. Very young pups may not pick up on an adult dog's body language that says he's had enough playing. A well-socialized adult dog may growl to tell the pup to back off, which is appropriate behavior that helps the puppy learn boundaries.

Respect the adult dog's need for puppy-free quiet time, and be sure to spend one-on-one time with him as well.

Handle the puppy-to-dog introduction as you would between dogs. Keep both animals leashed, carefully watch their body language, allow brief sniffs, and offer praise when they behave well.

Know When to Get Help

People keep household pets because they enjoy their antics and companionship. However, if your dog doesn't get along with other pets, this only creates tension and disharmony in your home.

A qualified professional can help resolve conflicts your dog may be having with other pets, and can provide ways to help you live in a peaceful, happy household of pets and people.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
Cosmic changes create a potential for disruptions in your travel plans. In the meantime, you might want to consider shifting your focus to another area of your life that needs attention.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time for beauty-loving Bovines to enjoy something special for the senses. It will restore your spirit and return you to the workaday world ready for the next challenge.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) With your planetary ruler, Mercury, going retrograde, you might want to slow down the pace in pursuing some of your projects. Rushing things could be counterproductive.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Tensions begin to ease in those once-testy relationships. This helps create a more positive aspect all around. Expect to hear news that could lead you to rethink a recent decision.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The pace of activity that had slowed last week now begins to pick up. This is good news for Leos and Leonas who have career-building plans that need to be put into operation.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Venus offers encouragement to romance-seeking Virgos who are ready to get up, get out and meet more people, one of whom could be that long-sought soul mate.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An ongoing problem with a co-worker might need to be sent to arbitration. Get all your facts together so that you have a solid base from which to make your argument.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You are usually decisive about most matters. But you might want to defer your decision-making this week until you get more facts. Someone is holding out on you.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) That quiet period is ending, and a new burst of activity creates some problems at the workplace. But things are soon resolved, and everything goes back to normal.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Relationships could be either helpful or hurtful as you pursue your career goals. You might have to make some difficult choices depending on what your priorities are.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might still have some doubts about a career move that could involve a lot of travel. If so, continue to check things out until you feel secure about making a decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Love rules, as Venus continues to exercise her cosmic influence on both single and attached Pisces. New developments might cause you to change your travel plans.

BORN THIS WEEK: You often think of others before you consider your own needs. You enjoy helping people and would make a fine teacher or caregiver.

CAT ON A LEASH

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I was at the park across the street the other day and saw my neighbor there. Get this: She was walking her cat. With a collar and leash. I didn't know that was even possible, but the cat looked pretty content. How did my neighbor do that? -- Gerry in San Diego

DEAR GERRY: It's something you'll probably see more of, especially in cities and anywhere that pet owners live in smaller spaces with indoor cats. Bringing one's cat outside on a leash allows it to roam around outside, supervised, for a little while each day. Naturally, most cats don't take well to a leash and collar setup. A collar, when tugged on by the leash, can be really uncomfortable for cats. So cat owners should use a harness instead, which is more comfortable and stays secure when properly put on. Getting the cat into the harness may take a little time, but with repeated sessions and lots of rewards, many cats get comfortable enough with the harness to walk around (rather than flop down and play dead until it's removed, for example). Walking a cat is done only to get it outside, exploring the landscape. Cats don't typically go pee or poop on command, and rarely in strange places, so don't expect that to happen -- the litter box needs to stay in place. And you won't see them heeling or doing tricks on command either. That's more of a dog thing. Of course, owners still need to brush their cat's fur to make sure no fleas or ticks hitch a ride into the house, and check their paws for cuts or burrs. That's a small inconvenience in return for a happier cat.

The Garden Bug

The red-spotted purple

(Limenitis arthemis astyanax)

This butterfly lives from Florida over to eastern Texas, and northward into Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, New York, Vermont, and New Hampshire. Adults prefer to feed on tree sap, fermenting fruit or dung, but they also take nectar from flowers and frequently feed at mud puddles. Plant hosts for red-spotted purple larvae are black cherry, deerberry, willows, aspens, poplars, cottonwood, hawthorn, birches and black oak. - Brenda Weaver
